F & L Operations Cut Here; New Building Planned

The F and L Food Products division of Nalley's Inc. has curtailed operations at its plant at 2307 W. Colorado Ave. but definitely intends to continue in business here, according to F. James Lynch Jr., vice president of Nalley's and head of the local division.

Lynch denied reports that the entire plant will be shut down. "We will always maintain a plant in Colorado Springs," he told the Gazette Telegraph Saturday.

He said the present curtailment, which was started about two months ago, was made pending the construction of a new building in the Colorado Springs area, the site of which has not been chosen.

A. G. Erickson, president of the Goodwill Industries board of directors, said Saturday his organization has been negotiating for use of the present F and L plant but that final action has not been taken.

A large storage warehouse for potatoes grown on the Pioneer Potato Farm seven miles north of Ellicott will be retained by the firm, Lynch said.

Under the curtailment program, the number of personnel has been reduced at the West Side plant from 60 to 20 employes, Lynch said. In addition, some of the processing equipment has been moved to the firm's new Denver plant.

"However, we are continuing sales distribution and some man-

Monday Is Last Day to Register For Primary

Monday is the last day for El Paso County residents to register to vote in the Sept. 11 primary election.

Following the primary election, registration will be open for the Nov. 6 general election until Oct. 22.

Mrs. Harriet Beals, El Paso County clerk, said that branch registration offices may be set up in the area to accomodate those who wish to register for the general election.

Absentee ballots for the primary election may be picked up at the County Office Building until Sept. 8. Deadline for submitting them is 5 p.m. on election day.

Boy, 2½, Injured Critically When Struck by Car

Forrest Sinatra Brown, 2½, of 619 N. Pine St., was reported in very critical condition at St. Francis Hospital late Saturday night with severe head injuries received when he was struck by a car in the 400 block of East Willamette Avenue about 5:30 p.m.

Police Cpl. C. M. Maloney said the boy was crossing the street in the middle of the block when he was struck by a car driven by Gene Simpson Palmer, 31, of 1124 E. St. Vrain St.

Palmer told Maloney he was driving westbound on the street and did not see the boy before the impact. He said he heard a bump, stopped the car and backup about a foot.

He was taken by E and E am-

Fred Betz Says JFK May Visit Colorado Again

By GORDON G. GAUSS

DENVER (AP)—President John F. Kennedy may return to Colorado before the November election—this time on an out-and-out political mission.

His avowed purpose would be to aid Sen. John A. Carroll, D-Colo., in his campaign for reelection and to help Democratic congressional candidates. He also would be expected to say a good word for the entire state ticket.

Fred M. Betz, state Democratic chairman, disclosed the possibility in an interview.

"I have grounds for believing the President will return to the state before election," Betz said.

The chairman gave no details of the projected visit, other than that it would come sometime after the primary election Sept. 11. He gave no clue where Kennedy may stop or how long he might be in Colorado.

Betz said the state is considered by the Democratic National Committee to be a major bat-

Hamil Bases Drive For Governorship On Experience

David A. Hamil of Sterling, making his first foray into the home county of fellow Republican gubernatorial candidate John Love, told El Paso County GOP leaders Saturday that his claim for the job of governor is based on solid experience in business, in the state legislature and as a government administrator.

The northeastern Colorado cattleman attended a breakfast meeting at Ruth's Oven restaurant, where he spoke to some 40 local Republicans.

He avoided any direct attack on Love, whom he will face in the Republican primary Sept. 11, but emphasized his own 20 years of experience in government service.

Love, who is making his first try for political office, outpolled Hamil 845-556 at the Republican state convention last month.

Hamil devoted most of his talk Saturday to a blistering attack on the fiscal policies of Gov. Steve McNichols and the Democratic-controlled legislature.

"For the last six years the state of Colorado has been on a tax-and-spend binge second to none since 1776," Hamil said.

The elimination of the 20 per cent tax credit on state income taxes, the 1959 tax revision and the old-age pension "spillover" have added millions of dollars to the state treasury, he said.

"During this time there has never been any action on the part

Fourth Death Blamed Indirectly On Texas Crash

ELECTRA, Tex. (AP)—A fourth death Saturday was blamed indirectly on Friday's fiery crash of a tank truck into a rest home which burned three persons to death.

Fred M. Matney, 69, died in an Electra hospital. Dr. John G. Thompson said Matney had been ill some time and that excitement and shock resulting from the holocaust contributed to his death.

Most of the other 40 survivors of the tragedy found places to stay Saturday.

Four of the patients remained in the hospital in this north Texas town of 5,000—two of them burn victims.

The crash occurred when a truck driven by Dan Craighead, 22, Electra, caught fire. The tank truck contained a liquid heating fuel.

Craighead said the fire apparently started in the truck cab. He opened the door of the moving truck and fell out. Craighead rolled on the ground to extinguish the flames in his clothing.

The driverless truck rolled on and smashed through the front door of the rest home, where most of the patients were bedridden or were mental cases.

The three who perished were Mary Lee Sorrell, 87 Electra; Maud Barker, 83, Dallas; and Miss Myrtle Hunt, 83, retired Jack County school teacher.

Guerillas Oust Ben Bella, Forcing Algerian Crisis

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — A junta of guerrilla colonels forced Ahmed Ben Bella's Political Bureau out of power Saturday and Ben Bella was reported planning to flee Algiers.

Thus only 23 days after the leftists deputy premier wrested control from Provisional Premier Ben Youssef Ben Khedda; the eight-week-old nation faced a new and dangerous crisis.

All available reports indicated Ben Bella and a handful of followers were planning to leave the capital. Some reports said they would go to Oran, others to Tlemcen in western Algeria.

The colonel's junta, consisting of the general staff of the guerrilla Wilaya (zone) No. 4 which occupies Algiers, had no political program and the extent of its influence elsewhere in Algeria was unclear.

But it was strong enough to force the Political Bureau, in a dramatic announcement to the Algerian people, to declare that it

East-West Fight Eases In Berlin

BERLIN (AP) —Despite new gunfire on the Communist side of the wall, tension in this tinderbox city appeared to be easing Saturday night after eight days of bitter East-West wrangling.

One burst of gunfire in the early morning darkness was apparently aimed at an East German people's army soldier who made it uninjured into West Berlin. Eastern guards also halted an East German trying to swim a canal to West Berlin and hauled him into a police boat.

In all, West German police estimated 100 rounds were fired by Eastern guards in four different places. As far as they could tell, no one was hit.

Angry crowds, however, which a few days ago were stoning Soviet army buses and shouting insults across the Communist wall through the city were not to be seen as the weekend started.

The bitter indignation which welled up after the killing on Aug. 17 of Peter Fechter, 18, an East German, seemed to be subsiding. In its place was the old hatred

Railway Strike Appears Certain For Chicago Union

Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg announced in Washington Friday the no-strike pledge of AFL-CIO Order of Railroad Telegraphers would be canceled, effective at 5 p.m. (CDT) Wednesday. He said he took the action because there has been no progress in three weeks of negotiations.

George E. Leighty, union president, announced he would join local officials in Chicago to advance strike plans and "very probably" set a date for the work stoppage.

Railroad officials said they were uncertain of their next step. But they indicated a strike is likely unless a last minute meeting is arranged.

The no-strike commitment originally was to continue in force until mid-September. The pledge was made by the union Aug. 1 at the request of President Kennedy.

The union is demanding a garanteed job freeze for about 1,000 members employed by the railroad.

A presidential fact-finding board recommended the union drop its demand. It suggested the railroad provide earnings protection and a retraining program for telegraphers in danger of losing their jobs.

The railroad said it is willing to accept the recommendations.

Leighty said earlier if a strike occurs he expects other railroad unions to respect telegrapher pickets and force a complete shutdown of the railroad.

U.S. Blames Cuban Affair On Students

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States blamed Friday night's shelling of Havana on an exile Cuban students group and said Saturday it had no advance word of the attack.

"Any repetition of such action," the State Department said, could mean prosecution under the U.S. neutrality law forbidding private armed expeditions against countries not at war with the United States.

This mild warning was coupled with orders to the Coast Guard to seize the two private motor launches from which more than 60 shots were pumped into Havana's Miramar suburban shore area. The Justice Department launched an investigation with an eye to possible prosecution under the Neutrality Act. There were no immediate arrests.

Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro had blamed the attack on the United States and "the mercenary agents (Cuban exiles) who operate with impunity from the coasts of Florida."

British Pay Bill For Soblen Fight Against Deporting

LONDON (AP)—Dr. Robert A. Soblen's fight against British moves to deport him to the United States is being paid for by the British government, his lawyers said Saturday night.

Solomon Kaufman, partner in the legal firm which has represented the convicted Soviet spy since he landed here July 1, said a legal aid certificate was granted to Soblen on Thursday of last week.

Legal aid is granted to British litigants only if they have limited means or if their case presents a point of considerable public importance.

Soblen, 61, a Lithuanian-born psychiatrist, is wanted in the United States to serve a life prison term for passing wartime secrets to the Soviet Union. Released on $100,000 bail in New York to await the outcome of an

Sen. Byrd Gathers Crowd For Apple Orchard Prayer

BERRYVILLE, Va. (UPI)—Sen. Harry F. Byrd climbed on a flatbed truck in his apple orchard Saturday and summoned 3,500 picnickers to join him in a prayer.

"Almighty God," Byrd intoned.

"Almighty God," the crowd answered.

"...we acknowledge our dependence upon thee," Byrd contined, "And we beg Thy blessings upon us, our teachers and our country."

Already some in the crowd sensed what Byrd was up to. He explained it was the prayer the U. S. Supreme Court ruled could not be said in New York public schools.

"I asked you to repeat it," Byrd said, "so you could be defendants in any action taken against us."

With that observation the 75-year-old senator and political chieftain of Virginia launched his Byrd's eye view of current affairs, emphasizing his displeasure of the "Warren supreme court" and President John F. Kennedy's fiscal policies.

This was the 40th time Byrd had assembled friends, neighbors, fellow applegrowers and brother politicians in a picnic among the trees of his Rosemont Orchard, reputed to be the world's largest.

Byrd's almost legendary luck with the weather continued. He observed on this mild, sunny day that only once had the picnic encountered rain in 40 years.

Picking up his attack on the Supreme Court, Byrd said the country needs to get closer to God and to believe in all His works. For the Supreme Court to declare unconstitutional a prayer, the senator said, "is a legal distortion that can only cause doubt and distrust among young people.

"The Warren court was not satisfied with rewriting the constitution," Byrd said, "now it appears it wants to rewrite the bible."

Venus Spaceship Launch Rescheduled for Monday

Countdown Difficulties Delay Shot

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Technical problems Saturday night forced a 24-hour postponement of Sunday's scheduled attempt to launch a Mariner 2 space craft to the vicinity of the planet Venus.

The trouble cropped up as the countdown was underway on the Atlas-Agena B rocket. Without reporting the cause of the difficulty, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced the shot was off one day, rescheduling it for early Monday.

A NASA spokesman said the problem was not serious, but would require a few hours to correct. The launch crew had only a 90-minute period, starting shortly after midnight, in which to fire the big rocket to put the spacecraft on the proper trajectory.

If all goes right, Mariner 2 will pass within 10,000 miles of Venus on the intended target date and then zip on into endless orbit around the sun.

During a 30-minute sweep across Venus' sunlit side, Mariner 2's sensitive instruments, using high-frequency radio signals will seek to penetrate the heavy cloud veil surrounding the planet and unlock secrets which have puzzled astronomers and scientists for centuries.

The signals will be radioed 36 million miles back to earth where computers and scientists will translate them into solid information about the mysterious bright

Astronaut Glenn Grounded '1½ Orbits' by 'Car Trouble'

By CAROLE HUTCHISON

Astronaut John Glenn spent time equal to about one and one-half orbits around the earth in a Colorado Springs garage Saturday, while the family car made a half-hearted attempt at a "lift off" of its own.

The vehicle used by the Glenn family in its vacation trip in the Rockies demanded an oil change near here, with the family becoming the center of a small crowd in the garage of Daniel's Motors. "Lift off" was accomplished by a crew of mechanics who gave the "everything is go" signal after about two hours.

Glenn was enroute to Houston, Tex., new headquarters for the manned spacecraft program. He and his family have spent about one week in the wilderness near Yellowstone and Grand Teton National Parks.

The trip was taken while the family is in the process of moving its residence from Virginia to Houston and was actually "the long way around." In addition, for a brief period the group managed to escape the spotlight

Need for Strict Gas Truck Rules Seen in Home Fire

The crash of a flaming butane gas tank truck into a nursing home Friday in Electra, Tex., emphasizes the need for stricter regulation of trucks carrying inflammable or explosive materials, according to T. Seddon Duke, chairman of the board of directors of the National Fire Protection Assn.

Duke, who is in Colorado Springs for the World Senior golf championships at the Broadmoor, told the Gazette Telegraph Saturday that the Texas crash, in which three persons were killed and 15 injured, is a "horrible example" of what can happen to trucks carrying such loads on the highway.

"These materials are manufactured under the safest of procedures, but then they are loaded onto our highways, where they are subject to all sorts of accidents," Duke said.

The NFPA chief said laws are needed to prevent trucks carry-

Forest Service's 'Smokey' To Live in National Zoo

By JOHN H. KAMPS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Because of an outpouring of pennies from children, a home for Smokey the Bear may be built ahead of schedule.

The National Zoo has been planning to build, in about 10 years, living quarters for the cinnamon-colored black bear that became the federal Forest Service's fire prevention symbol. Right now Smokey shares quarters with ordinary bears at the zoo.

The construction date may be moved up, however, because junior forest ranges and other fans are sending in coins at a steadily increasing rate.

About 7,000 children have donated nearly $4,000 since they read about efforts of Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont., and other members of Congress to provide an appropriate home for Smokey.

Members of congressional appropriations committees have approved the idea. The zoo plans to build a special cage-house for Smokey, his anticipated mate, Goldie, and any cubs that might come along during the long-range, 10-year development project to cost more than $20,000.

Recently announced news that a bride named Goldie had been picked for the middle-age bachelor bear is expected to add to Smokey's correspondence.

Forest Service employes who handle Smokey's incoming mail, say its runs about 1,000 cards and letters daily. Last year it totaled 258,581 pieces.

Smokey was a fugitive from a New Mexico forest fire. He was rescued as a cub from a flaming forest and given to the Forest Service about 12 years ago. Black bears can expect to live up to 25 years.

Goldie is an 18-month-old cinnamon charmer, also from New Mexico. The orphan female, expected to arrive by plane next week, will be placed in a cage next to Smokey until they get acquainted.

Smokey's mail comes from the United States, South America, Europe, Hong Kong, Formosa and other places where children have seen likenesses of the bear wearing the jaunty ranger's hat and carrying a shovel.

Many of the young correspondents write in for junior forest ranger kits containing fire prevention messages and official badges. Some report on fire hazards and activities of the junior rangers.

Children who donate 25 cents or more get this letter from Smokey, signed by a paw print: "I want to thank you for your wonderful gift. Some day I will have a comfortable new home at the Washington zoo. . . I hope you will visit me..."

Senate Approves $6 Billion Bill For Farm Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators gave approval Saturday to spending nearly $6 billion for the nation's varied farm programs in the fiscal year which began July 1.

They approved by voice vote and sent back to the House the annual money bill supplying operating funds for the Department of Agriculture and related agencies.

Included in the measure is a novel plan to slash the multibillion dollar costs of mounting farm surpluses by a special $25 million research program for developing new uses and markets for farm products.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., who has steered a score of farm money bills through the Senate, said the new research effort may "solve the problem of what to do with all of these surpluses."

He said scientists should be able to develop cotton clothing which will never need ironing and frozen or dehydrated food, which retain original taste and freshness.

Sen. Spessard L. Holland, D-Fla., predicted that the stepped-up research "will pay off tremendously."

The Senate bill carries $4,774,983,000 in new cash, a reduction of more than $700 million below the amounts allowed earlier by the House.

Most of this reduction was in funds for the Agriculture Department's Commodity Credit Corporation, which handles the numerous farm price support and surplus disposal operations.

Russell conceded that part of these funds must be restored later, when more accurate totals are available.

There was no dispute between the Senate and House about $820 million of land funds nor more than $389 million of funds which become available through diversion of customs of receipts and similar operations.

Offsetting the Senate decreases were increases of about $50 million, including the $25 million for special research on new uses and markets.

The differences in the Senate and House versions of the legislation will have to be worked out in a conference committee.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana has announced the Senate will take up President Kennedy's controversial tax revision bill next.

Girls taking this class will have the background and opportunity to design and make costumes from different countries. On successful completion of the class, the girls will earn the Folk Dancer badge.

An advanced class, for girls who have already completed the badge, is also being organized. The classes are under the direction of Mrs. Nelson Burt, 1103 Holmes Drive, who has had considerable experience in the field of dance and dance education. 'New Accessions' Will Close at Center Sept. 12

One of the Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center's most outstanding exhibitions, the ninth biennial "New Accessions, U. S. A." will close Sept. 12.

Director Fred S. Bartlett urges everyone who has been not seen this assembage of the best in contemporary painting from all over the country to try to do so in the remaining two weeks.

For those who would like to more thoroly understand the paintings and artists, Bartlett will conduct a gallery tour of the exhibition Tuesday, Sept. 11. The tour will be open to the public, free of charge.

The "New Accessions" series was organized by Bartlett and the Fine Arts Center staff in 1946 as a means of bringing together the finest paintings of the time as judged by the leading art museums of the country.

This year, 32 institutions have lent 62 pictures which have been acquired to their permanent collections in the past two years. The artists may be American or foreign, but they must be currently painting or not more than ten years dead.

Because the paintings have been selected as outstanding by the museums or by leading collectors as gifts to the museums, Bartlett said the total exhibitions is a "very good indication of what is important and valuable in art today as judged by the people most closely associated with it."

Museums participating this year include such prominent names as: The Museum of Modern Art, Guggenheim Museum, Corcoran Gallery in Washington, Carnegie Institute, California Palace of the Legion of Honor, Munson - Williams - Proctor Institute and many others.

Viewers of the exhibit will see original paintings by such well-known artists as Albers, Kienbush, Kepes, Sage, Parker, Ernst, Burchfield, de Stael, Cuevas, Hepworth, Stamos, Hultberg, Congdon, Marca - Relli and McNeill.

The exhibition has attracted national attention and in art circles and has been written about in national magazines during past years.

Also to be seen in the Fine Arts Center galleries is the collection of a recent series of drawings by two well - known American artists, John Heliker and Joe Lasker. Both have exhibited widely in this country and Europe and are now teaching art in the New York area.

Bomb Jokester Gets Probation for Year

DENVER (UPI)—Last Feb. 22, 29 - year - old Glen E. Davis of Springfield, Colo., jokingly told a baggage clerk at Pueblo, Colo., airport he had placed a bomb in the luggage of a friend.

The clerk believed him and called for help. The FBI responded and hauled Davis in for questioning. He wound up facing a charge of imparting false information concerning an attempt to blow up an airliner—a misdemeanor that carries a maximum penalty of a year in prison and a $1,000 fine.

He pleaded guilty, and this week U.S. Dist. Court Judge William E. Doyle placed Vavis on probation for a year.

Khrushchev Urges Union Of Red Economies

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev says industrial cooperation among the Communist states soon will help them to surpass the West and to aid undeveloped nations.

In an article published Saturday in "Problems of Peace and Socialism," Khrushchev said that of primary importance was the decision of the leaders of the Communist countries last June giving decisive authority to national party and government leaders to harmonize and apportion production tasks among their nations.

Apparently the new group has supranational authority to apportion to each country the industrial production to which it is best suited. Only the Soviet Union, Khrushchev explained, should count on having a completely self-contained economy.

Even the Soviet Union, he said, would benefit from apportioning some of the production tasks to other countries of the group.

By contrast, he said, capitalist countries are trying to consolidate their production areas "to weaken the negative consequences found in the development of capitalist economy." He did not specifically mention the European Common Market but it has been the subject of unrelenting attacks by the soviet premier.

The Communist-bloc countries are banded into what is called the Council of Mutual Economic Aid, commonly known as Comicon.

Among initial targets of the organization, Khrushchev said, was creation of a fuel and power pool through interconnecting power lines and a vast pipeline network, part of which is already completed.

The whole system, he said, should be completed by 1970. By 1980 the vast production system of the area will be far beyond where it is now, he added.

Among the goals he listed:

3.4 billion tons of fuel in 1980 compared with 970 million in 1960.

3.5 trillion kilowatts of electric energy by 1980 compared with 407 billion in 1960.

330 million tons of steel in 1980 compared with 86 million in 1960.

He said the more-advanced countries should continue to aid those still lagging, and this was especially true of Outer Mongolia, which was admitted to the circle at last June's meeting. Red China is not a member.

He said machinery production in the states of the Comicon had increased 95 per cent between 1955 and 1960, and by 1965 should increase an additional 50 per cent.

Khrushchev said the target of the group was an increase in industrial production six-fold by 1980, agricultural production by three times, and gross national income by five times.

A primary objective of the operation, he said, would be to increase the capacity of the Socialist bloc to aid underdeveloped countries now or later to be liberated from "imperialism." He did not mince matters as to the aim.

"This aid will help their peoples to avoid the tortures and difficulties connected with the capitalist stage of development," he wrote.

That, he said, would mean "a real possibility of construction of socialism in all countries."

Shafroth Picked For Congress Run

DENVER (AP) — Formation of Shafroth-for-Congress clubs in three key counties of the Second Congressional District was announced Saturday by John F. Shafroth, candidate for the Democratic nomination.

At the same time his campaign manager, Allen C. Bradley of Aurora, said Shafroth is the only Democrat who can win the office in November because "he is the only one of the three candidates who can unite the Democratic Party in the Second District."

Shafroth, Denver attorney who lives in Littleton, is in a three-way race for the Democratic nomination in the northern Colorado district. The other candidates are Prof. Conrad McBride of the University of Colorado and Harold Adcock of Greeley, former legislator. The nomination will be decided at the Sept. 11 primary election.

The new Shafroth clubs are in Adams, Boulder and Logan Counties. Heading the Adams County organization are Paul F. Glasgow of Westminster and John L. Kane Jr. Co-chairmen of the Boulder group are Rich Gebhardt and Harold S. Lindbloom. E. J. Barnes of Sterling and Helen Budin head the Logan County drive.

Denver Firm to Aid In Exploring for Silver

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Interior Department signed a contract Saturday with a Denver firm to assist it in exploring for silver in Gunnison County, Colo.

The department said in a statement the contract — between the office of minerals exploration and the Gaddis Mining Company—was for exploration estimated to cost $30,290. The government's share of the cost will be $15,460.

The department said the company will hunt for the metal by drilling from the surface in a vein in the Taylor Park region.

Judge Rules Trial Possible for Bobby Gallegos

DENVER (UPI) — Dist. Judge Don D. Bowman ruled Saturday 18-year-old Bobby Gallegos, whose murder conviction was nullified by the U. S. Supreme Court on grounds that Denver police violated his constitutional rights, is subject to another murder trial.

Bowman dismissed a writ of habeas corpus, filed by defense attorney Charles Vigil, that sought to block any further proceeding against the youth.

In making the ruling Saturday, Bowman told Dist. Atty. Bert Keating to make sure future prosecution of Gallegos "will not be a vain and useless gesture."

Gallegos was convicted of beating a 76-year-old pensioner to death during a $13 robbery when he was only 14. A 12-year-old boy also charged in the case was acquitted on grounds that he could not tell right from wrong.

But the conviction was set aside June 14 by the U. S. Supreme Court, which said Denver police "grossly violated" the boy's constitutional rights after arresting him.

I Remember

By CHARLES S. DUDLEY

I had a very enjoyable visit with Ford Frick of New York, baseball commissioner, at the GT office Saturday morning. Ray Gunter took a picture of us while we chatted about old times. He stuck some paper in front of me and a pencil in my hand to make it appear that I was taking notes in an interview. The paper was just as blank after the picture was taken as when Gunter picked it up, and the pencil as unused. What I know about sports is nil. And Frick and I needed no notes as we talked about past experiences.

C. S. DUDLEY

Frick was sports editor and covered city hall when I went to work on the old Gazette in 1918. I worked with him on the old Telegraph before the two papers were combined in 1923. I was with him on the Gazette and Telegraph when he got his break in New York, with a telegram from the late Arthur Brisbane telling him he needed him on the New York Journal and asking him to come to New York for a hiring interview.

Frick told me Saturday something I had not heard before, of how he feared the telegram might be a put-up job on him and went across the street to the Western Union telegraph office to verify the authenticity of it.

He and Mrs. Frick have been at the Broadmoor Hotel for three days, but he went fishing near Breckenridge. He said he had the fish he caught frozen to take back to New York with him.

I have seen Ford in New York a couple of times since he left here, and he has looked me up in Colorado Sprigns before. Saturday morning I wanted him to meet Harry Hoiles, publisher of the Gazette Telegraph, as I told him of how well I had been treated on the paper in spite of a coronary, partial deafness and old age. As I introduced them they both recalled that they had met before.

It was my plan to have Loy Holman, sports editor, meet Frick, but he had to leave just before Frick arrived. It was my pleasure to introduce Bob LeFevre, Gazette Telegraph editor and president of Freedom School, as I told Frick how I had been given this column by LeFevre, Maurice Whitney, news editor (who was not here), and my big boss. My wife and I had intended to show Frick our scrapbook of my column clippings, but forgot to bring it from home.

Frick and I ran over a list of old friends, "Scoop" Ross, long Evening Telegraph city editor; Joe Moorhead, city editor of the Gazette; Bill Tway, Telegraph sports editor; Elden Woodworth, Guy Sampson, of the Gazette Telegraph, and Dad Bruce, police chief, all dead. We recalled also T. E. Nowels, managing editor of the Telegraph and later Gazette Telegraph; C. C. Hamlin, C. L. Tutt, a particular friend of Frick's and of whom he intended to get material for a book on Cripple Creek, and others — all gone. We also spoke of Russell Law and other old friends of Frick's here who are living. He had seen some of them on his visit, but had failed to see others.

I had to bring up the time when Frick wrote of either the Colorado College or Colorado Springs High School football team, I forget which, that they were poor losers. They ganged up on him and chased him up to the third floor newsroom of the Gazette, but he climbed on a desk and made a Mark Anthony speech, and they left cheering him. His memory of that occasion was vivid.

I have here related only a small part of what we found to talk about. Time passes and leaves much to be recalled.

My wife telephoned her best wishes. She was running in circles Saturday, with church and other work, and we had not known just when Frick would come. She and I sent our regards to Mr. Frick. I once had a Christmas dinner at the Frick home that I shall never forget.

Wounded Man Keeps Appointment With Wife

DENVER (UPI)—A 24-year-old man kept an appointment with his wife Friday night although he had been shot in the stomach and chest.

Nathan Avalos was wounded by a gunman. Police said he then drove to a tavern and met his wife, who accompanied him to the hospital in a taxicab.

Police jailed Charles Espinosa, 33, of Denver for investigation of aggravated assault. Two policemen said they saw Espinosa running from the scene of the shooting. They said he was carrying a 22-caliber revolver with four expended shells in its cylinder.

Avalos was reported in critical condition in Denver General Hospital Saturday.

Copper Producers Await Fall Upturn in Market

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK (AP) — Copper producers are anxiously awaiting signs of a fall upturn that would breather life into a market that has been very sluggish lately.

So far, though, indications for fall orders have not been too cherry. Speculation continues over the possibility that copper's price of 31 cents a pound, steady for more than a year in a remarkable display of stability, may weaken.

Producers and smelters reported that orders from brass and wire mills have picked up somewhat but they say that the present order flow indicates September shipments won't beat August by much. An August is not expected to be much better than July's low 105,400 tons.

Trade sources say there are some signs of inventory paring and that some brass and wire mills are relying more heavily on the good supplies of mill scrap. Scrap prices have weakened again, with one leading smelter trimming its bid for No. 2 copper wire scrap by a quarter cent to 24¾ cents a pound.

Reports from fabricators on current business vary. Metal trade dealers say demand has been very weak.

Silver traders said the market has turned very quiet. Mexican offers to sell at $1.09½ have dampened price growth.

This levelling off has not, however, drawn out speculative stocks. Apparently many feel that the price will resume its upward trend later and they are hanging on to their supplies until then.

Summer slowdown has affected demand for both lead and zinc. Lead is unchanged at 9½ cents New York and Zinc remains at 11½ cents, East St. Louis.

Doorman, 26, Shot In Midnight Scuffle

DENVER (UPI) —A 26-year-old doorman was shot in the abdomen shortly after midnight Saturday in a traven scupple which police described as apparent "horse play."

Edsel Wilson was taken to Denver General Hospital where his condition was reported as satisfactory.

Police jailed Michael D. May, 26, the band leader at the tavern, "The Fun House". He was held for investigation of aggravated assault.

Police said Wilson and May were "horsing around" with the pistol of special officer Richard Flinn, who also works at the nightclub. They said Flinn and May both described the shooting as unintentional.

Soldier Suing In Deaths Not At Ft. Carson

United Press International reported Saturday that a U.S. Army man has sued the American government for $350,000 for the death of his wife and five children in a plane crash on Guam two years ago.

The report said the soldier, Ignacio Umayam, is now stationed at Ft. Carson, but Army officials here told the Gazette Telegraph they have no record of his being assigned to the mountain post.

UPI said the suit was filed in district court at Guam.

The Philippine - born soldier claimed the crash of the World Airways plane chartered by the U.S. Military Air Transport Service (MATS) was caused by "negligence" on the part of government employes.

The plane, which came from Clark Air Base in the Philippines, stopped over in Guam en route to Travis Air Force Base in California. It crashed shortly after taking off from the Naval Air Station's Guam airstrip.

Umayam's wife, and their children, Jaime, Mario, Norma, Adriano and Lourdes, were among the 78 persons killed in the crash.

Umayam alleged in the suit that negligence was committed "in giving the pilot misleading and deceptive take-off instructions from the runway and failure to instruct the pilot not to commence the right turn to 100 degrees until altitude was reached sufficient to clear the mountain."

The U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) last July blamed the crash on the pilot's violation of takeoff procedures.

The pilot, according to the CAB, made a right turn too soon after becoming airborne and failed to clear the mountain. It said the airline manual forbids such turn at the Naval airstrip until the aircraft reached at least 1,000 feet altitude.

LONDON — British Civil Service rules now allow windows in the Postal Savings head office to be opened for exactly ten mintues thrice daily.

McNichols Says Demos Develop State Economy

LAMAR (UPI) — Gov. Steve McNichols said Saturday his administration's purpose had been the "total development of Colorado."

The governor, a candidate for re-election in November, said the administration had equalized the tax burden of all citizens, cut the state property tax mill levy and balanced the state budget.

"While money is not always a true indicator of the full effect and value of state programs, I think you ought to know that southeastern Colorado has received far more in dollars and cents from state programs than it had paid in," he said.

He said the eight counties in the southeast part of the state—Baca, Bent, Crowley, Huerfano, Kiowa, Las Animas, Otero, and Prowers — got back $3.6 million more in state programs in the 1960-61 fiscal year than the $5.1 million they paid in in taxes.

The governor spoke at a meeting of Democratic officials and candidates from southeast Colorado. It was the first of six such sessions scheduled to acquaint candidates and workers with party aims and platforms.

Democratic State Chairman Fred M. Betz also spoke. He blasted the Republican candidate for lieutenant governor, Dr. Gail H. Gilbert, as "a noisy, completely-misinformed...veterinarian."

Gilbert is mayor of Arvada, Colo.

"Colorado state government has moved forward rapidly during the past six years because it has had an able Democratic governor supported by a Democratic Legislature," Betz said.

"As one of the fastest - growing states in our nation, it is most essential that we continue this program which gives us unity of politics and purpose in both the executive and legislative branches in Colorado."

Teamsters Present $1,000 To Medical Center

Fred W. Bierig, president and business manager of Teamsters Local No. 146, presented a check for $1,000 Friday night to J. A. Sharoff, treasurer of the American Medical Center at Denver.

The presentation was made during ceremonies at the City Auditorium at the union's annual goodwill ball.

The check was part of a planned program of continuing teamster support for the 59 - year-old nonsectarian hospital, which provides free treatment for advanced cancer and chronic chest disease patients.

Beirig said teamsters locals thruout Colorado and Wyoming have adopted the American Medical Center as the prime beneficiary of the unions' charitable efforts.

"The cancer research and treatment program at the American Medical Center has received unstinted endorsement of the nation's top health authorities and the highest praise from the nation's humanitarians," Beirig said.

"There is no other hospital in the country giving such total care, including extensive surgery where needed, without charge to either patient or patients' families.

"Officials of the Teamsters Colorado and Wyoming Joint Council have investigated this project thoroly and agree unanimously on its worthiness."

Sharoff, president of J.A Sharoff and Company, poultry and egg wholesalers, said the hospital was pleased to welcome the teamsters among its contributors.

"Ever since 1904 the American Medical Center has been supported by voluntary contributions from thruout the country," Sharoff said.

"During its first 50 years it was a haven of health for thousands of chest disease sufferers, many of whom became leaders in Colorado business, industrial and professional life.

"Today our scientists are adding useful years to an ever increasing number of patients who come to us with far - advanced cancer."

Sharoff said the hospital is currently constructing a $500,000 Medical Research Institute whose scientific staff and studies are being supported, in part, by federal grants and contracts.

Sharoff also said the hospital is planning to expand its cancer service to allow for 100 patients.

New Mexico Police Capture Killer In Santa Fe

SANTA FE, N. M. (AP) — Convicted murderer Marvin Vaugh, 37, was captured today after eluding officers Friday night and sending most of Santa Fe's residents behind locked doors.

State Police said Vaughn was caught after he was spotted climbing over a fence at St. Michael's College about 2 a.m.

He was one of three prisoners who escaped Wednesday night from the New Mexico Penitentiary. Roy E. Ledoux, 26, was captured Friday about 4 p.m. without a struggle in a housing development near the college.

Still at large was the third escapee, John Edward Bostrom, 44.

Caughn was taken into custoy by two penitentiary guards in the search party who spotted him going over the fence.

"He (Caughn) hit the dirt shouting 'don't shoot captain, I surrender,'" Lucero said.

Astronaut Glenn Grounded Here By Car Trouble

thrust upon it by international fame.

Glenn is headed back to work, however, and will play a key role in preparations for the next space shot, planned as a six - orbital mission for Wally Shirra.

Glenn's Mercury flight was just the beginning of America's man-in-space program and he said it was logical to assume pilots for the second major phase, the Gemini project, would include those participating in the current phase.

In Project Gemini, two astronauts will remain in space for a period of several days, living and working side by side in a capsule about one-fifth bigger than the one that carried Col. Glenn.

The main goal of the Gemini astronauts will be orbital rendezvous — hooking up with another satellite orbiting around the earth.

After Gemini comes the man-on-the-moon project, dubbed Apollo. Contracts have already been let for research and development of this project.

Glenn expressed the belief, "Once you have been up there, you could get more out of it the second time."

He has not been assigned another space shot he said, but hopes he will get another flight. When asked how far in advance these assignments are made, he only laughed and replied, "You have plenty of time for preparation."

Glenn expects to have his family re-established in time for this teenaged children, Lyn and David, to begin school in Houston.

Tho he and others of the Mercury project will be working primarily from the Manned Space Center at Houston, all launching is scheduled for Cape Canaveral, he said.

Glenn began pilot training in 1940 and logged about 100 hours in light planes before the transition to jet flying was made. Of the 5,000 hours logged to date, none will carry the meaning to him of the four hours, 56 minutes made circling the earth, Glenn asserted.

Manitou Police Warn of Imposters In Sale of Ads

"If anyone asks you to put an ad in the Manitou Police Department annual brochure 'or else,' ask to see his credentials. If he has none, as he won't have, call Police Chief Booth Clark, MU 5-5407."

This is what Don Augustine, who has charge of promotion of the annual Policemen's Ball Nov. 2, at Memorial Hall, had to say Saturday.

"This 'or else' is entirely out of turn," he said. "The Manitou police do not do that kind of thing. If it is being done, as has been reported, Chief Clark wants to put an end to it quickly."

Chief Clark said prospective advertisers are being contacted by telephone by members of the Manitou Police Ass., and the advertisers informed that a personal visit will be made by a member of the association. The name of the person who will make the visit is given to the person contacted by telephone by the association.

Tex Ritter, famous star of radio, TV and the movies, is to be a guest of the Manitou Springs Police Department the day of the ball. He will present entertainment features at the ball, and on the afternoon of that day will entertain the children of Manitou Springs at a party Chief Clark is to give.

Money raised by sale of ads in the police department's annual brochure and by the ball is used to help needy persons, to buy uniforms and in other ways for the good of the police department and its charitable work.

Safety Council Predicts High Labor Day Toll

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Safety Council estimated Saturday that between 410 and 490 Americans could be killed in traffic accidents during the 78-hour Labor Day holiday weekend.

The council said another 16,000 to 20,000 persons could suffer disabling injuries during the period from 6 p.m. Friday, Aug. 31, to midnight Monday, Sept. 3.

The estimates are based on the council's records.

Council records show that during a comparable 78-hour, nonholiday period at this time of year 330 persons are killed and 13,000 suffer disabling injuries.

ing chemicals, such as propane and butane gas, from driving thru cities and towns.

He also proposed that all such vehicles be clearly labelled with the nature of their contents, so that if an accident should occur, local firemen would be able to identify the contents and know how to combat the fire.

Some chemicals react violently to water, Duke pointed out, and he cited several instances in which firemen have been injured seriously by using water on chemical fires.

Duke said Colorado Springs is fortunate in have no above ground storage tanks for chemicals of this type. "I can't remember when there has been an explosion of an underground tank," he said.

The NFPA, which has more than 20,000 members, sets safety standards followed by fire departments and communities thruout the country.

Three Vehicles Involved in Crash; Four Persons Hurt

A Texas man, two women from Derby and a Ft. Carson soldier were involved in a three-way accident two miles south of Colorado Springs on Colorado Highway 115 Saturday, according to the State Patrol.

All three vehicles were southbound on the highway when the incident occurred at 4:10 p.m. Henry A. Gold Jr., 20, of Caldwell, Tex., was making a left turn at the turnaround when Patricia Mae Willis, 18, of Derby, applied brakes in an attempt to miss Gold's car. Gene Yellico Jr., 23, of Ft. Carson, applied brakes but ran into the rear of Miss Willis' car.

The two men suffered no injuries but Miss Willis and her passenger, Miss Suzanne Davis, 18, also of Derby, complained of neck injuries.

Yellico estimated $500 damages to his auto; Miss Willis reported $300 damages to her car, and Gold estimated $50 damages to his.

Storage Battery Stolen From Parked Auto

A storage battery was stolen from a 1956 auto sometime Friday night in the 2500 block of Platte Avenue, according to a report at the sheriff's office.

The owner of the car, John W. Moore of 2241 Ivanhoe Dr., Security, an employe at Colorado Springs Motors Ltd., 2353 E. Highway 24, said he came out to get his car about midnight Friday, and discovered the theft.

The battery cables were cut and had to be replaced, Moore said. He identified the battery as an Allstate 12-V and said he did not have insurance against theft from his car.

Fred Betz Says JFK May Visit Colorado Again,

leground this year and that this would be one reason for the President's appearance.

Kennedy's two-hour stop in Pueblo a week ago Friday was his first visit to Colorado since his election. He visited the state in 1959, during the preliminary stages of his drive for the presidency, and in September, 1960, after his nomination.

The Pueblo visit was primarily to hail authorization of the giant project and bore some non-parti-Fryingpan-Arkansas reclamation project and bore some non-partisan overtones. While Senator Carroll introduced Kennedy and was close to him throughout the stop, several Republicans were on the speakers' stand. Among them were Sen. Gordon Allott, R - Colo., Congressman J. Edgar Chenoweth, R-Colo; and Congressman Peter H. Dominick, R-Colo, who is Carroll's opponent in the general election.

Betz said that Colorado Democrats also have been offered a chance to secure other administration leaders for appearances in the state during the campaign.

The Democratic chairman said the party is driving to sweep the four Colorado seats in the U.S. House of Representatives, as well as retain the Senate seat. Two of the congressmen are veteran Democrats—Reps. Byron G. Rogers of Denver and Wayne N. Aspinall of Palisade.

The Democratic nominee in the Third District is Albert Tomsic of Walsenburg, speaker of the Colorado House of Representatives. He has just opened a campaign headquarters at Colorado Springs, where Chenoweth has rolled up heavy margins in past elections.

In the Second District, the Democrats have a three-way contest for nomination involving Prof. Conrad McBride of the University of Colorado; John Shafroth, Denver attorney living in the suburbs; and Harold Adcock of Greeley, a former legislator.

Betz said the race is arousing considerable interest in the district and may bring out a heavy vote in the Democratic primary.

Democrats have only one statewide primary race — a contest between John W. Metzger of Broomfield and C. J. Berardini of Arapahoe County for nomination for attorney general.

Republicans, with statewide contests for nominations for governor and University of Colorado regents and two congressional races, should poll a proportionately heavier primary vote than the Democrats.

Battling for the GOP gubernatorial nomination are David A. Hamil of Sterling and John A. Love of Colorado Springs. In the contest for nomination to Congress from the Second District are Donald G. Brotzman of Boulder and State Rep. Howard Propst of Merino, and seeking the Denver congressional nomination are State Sen. William B. Chenoweth, son of the Third District congressman, and Edward Barclay Wilcox, retired minister.

Senate, FBI Probe for Clues In Estes Case

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate probers worked with the FBI to unravel what may be a key clue to whether someone high in the Agriculture Department sought to help or protect Billie Sol Estes in his manipulation of farm-aid programs.

But even as this detective-work phase of the long inquiry unfolded Saturday, it became increasingly likely that the huge depatment is in for a major overhaul as a result of the findings by the Senate Investigations subcommittee.

This probably will come only partly as a result of any revelations of improper collusion with the now indicted Pecos, Tex., promoter. Much more persuasive in the senators' recommendations is likely to be their apparently unanimous conclusion that the sprawling department is cumbersome and inefficient.

Of immediate concern to subcommittee sleuths and their FBI helpers is the story behind a draft of an order recommending department approval of the land-transfer deals under which Estes obtained more than 3,000 acres of cotton - planting allotments in 1961. These transactions since have been declared illegal and the Texan has been fined $554,000 for overplanting.

Auto Tire Stolen From Service Station

An automobile tire valued at $10 was reported stolen Saturday morning from the Skelly Service Station, 601 N. Union Blvd.

Station attendant P. E. Hoffman told police he discovered the tire was missing after he gave a motorist 50 cents worth of gas. He said he noticed two other men on foot lingering around the car.

Auto Tires, Seat Slashed by Vandals

Three tires and the front seat were reported slashed Friday night on a car parked in the south alley in the 00 block of West Colorado Avenue.

Nadine Sampson, told police she parked the car there at 10:45 and when she returned 15 minutes later she discovered the damage. No damage estimate was reported.

Venus Spaceship Launch Rescheduled for Monday

The findings could answer such questions as: How hot is the planet? How fast does it spin? Does it have a magnetic field? A radiation belt? Is its surface covered with water or is it a steaming jungle or arid desert?

Project officials believe the spacecraft instruments will help substantiate a theory that life does not exist on Venus because of oven-like temperatures which earth-based devices have recorded as high as 615 degrees above zero.

Packed in Mariner 2's insect-like frame are six experiments. Two will operate only during the half-hour rendezvous with Venus. They are a microwave radiometer to study composition of the atmosphere and surface temperature and an infrared radiometer to record temperatures throughout the cloud-filled atmosphere.

Other gauges will operate throughout the nearly four-month journey and provide date on space between earth and Venus. They will measure magnetic fields, high energy radiation, solar plasma and cosmic dust.

Mariner 2 represents the United States' last chance until 1964 to rocket a probe to Venus to start an extensive program of interplanetary exploration. Venus and earth come into favorable relative positions in their orbits around the sun every 19 months.

The current 50-day opportune period ends Sept. 13. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration scheduled two launchings in the period. Mariner 1 failed on July 22 when a faulty guidance equation sent the Atlas Agena-B off course and it was destroyed by the range safety officer after nearly five minutes of flight.

Nearly $250,000 Pledged For Osteopathic Hospital

Six hundred seventy-three contributors have subscribed almost a quarter of a million dollars toward the proposed Mamie Doud Eisenhower Osteopathic Hospital, according to a report released Saturday by the hospital board of directors following the final meeting of the campaign workers.

Another 100,000 is necessary before proceeding with the building project. These plans have been drawn by architect Gordon Sweet and been approved by both the State Board of Health and the hospital board of directors. The building, which will represent an evaluation of more than $700,000, will provide 65 beds together with complete laboratory, surgical and obstetrical facilities and a complete geriatrics wing.

The $236,000 so far subscribed to the hospital results from two capital fund campaigns, the first in 1958 and the second now in the process of completion.

"Some of our largest contributors are yet to be heard from," J. Stanley Hoddy, chairman of the large gift division, said. "It is our hope that with their support the required balance will be forthcoming, and construction of the hospital can get underway."

"The community response shows an awareness of the importance of good hospital facilities and of keeping abreast of our steadily growing population," reported A. Earl Bryson to the workers. "In fairness to those who have contributed so generously we must see the task thru to successful completion."

In accepting this challenge, "Task Force Twenty" was created to follow thru on uncompleted calls. Participating in Task Force Twenty are George Vradenburg, J. Stanley Hoddy, Clinton Woodruff, J. Darrel Stone, Merlyn Smith, Gordon Sweet, Ernest Tullis, George Teats, Carl Wangberg, A. Earl Bryson and Drs. Hollis Wolf, Harold Will, Ora Fry, Hazen Anderson, William Hayes, Anna Barnes, Harry Townsley and Fred Johnson.

The work was originally done by the elder Lynch and his wife in the kitchen of their home but expansion of the business caused later moves to a garage, a renovated chicken house and various other buildings until the company moved into the present West Side plant.

The company was one of the first potato chip manufacturers to use the double waxed bags for its Golden Flake product.

The firm was acquired in July, 1961, by Nalley's Inc., which has its headquarters in Tacoma, Wash. F and L has been operated since that time as a subsidiary corporation.

Hamil Bases Drive For Governorship On Experience

of the statehouse to give any relief to you taxpayers. "I believe that money not needed for necessary services is better off in the hands of the taxpayers.

"The United States and the state of Colorado were developed by the efforts of individual citizens. Government must provide the climate in which its citizens can develop their business, industries and services, but it is always the citizens themselves who do the work."

Hamil repeated his contention that a reduction of at least 15 per cent, or possibly 20 per cent, is possible in state income tax "without reducing the essential functions of government to the detriment of the state's growth."

Hamil said that Parkinson's "second law" has been fully demonstrated during the last six years of Democratic statehouse control: "The outgo always equals the income, especially at the state level. Whatever the income, you'll find someone is always ready to spend it."

Hamil said taxes can be cut by eliminating surpluses and by efficient administration, "but it means we'll have to watch the state's business as we do our own business.

"If we keep our government close to home, I am hopeful we can again put some sense into government this fall at the state and local level, as well as in 1964 at the White House."

On the State Mental Hospital at Pueblo — "It's strictly a management problem. The Department of Institutions is a bureaucracy upon a bureaucracy. The operation of the state hospital is a disgrace to the people of Colorado."

On reapportionment — "The federal plan is the best by far on the November ballot."

On the University of Colorado — "The best thing to do is to get a couple more Republicans on the Board of Regents. It's not good for either party to dominate the board." (Only one Republican now serves on the board.)

On attracting new business to the state —"Business and industry have been bypassing Colorado. Many fail to come here or grow here because they say our inventory tax is prohibitive."

Hamil has completed an airport-hopping tour of about half of the counties in the state, mostly in the northwest and on the Western Slope. He spoke Friday in Pueblo and will launch an extensive tour of southeastern Colorado this week.

On Monday he plans to visit Walsenburg, Trinidad, Springfield, Holly and Lamar.

He has scheduled stops Tuesday at Las Animas, La Junta, Eads, Kit Carson and Burlington. He will be at Cheyenne Wells, Limon Kiowa and Castle Rock Wednesday.

A total of $75 was reported stolen from the cash register at Babe's Market, 731 N. Weber St. Friday night.

East-West Fight Eases in Berlin Over Weekend

Brief services for the most recent victim of the East German border guards were held in Berlin without creating an incident.

The shooting of Fechter by his comrades at the command of East German Communist leader Walter M. Ulbricht illustrates "the wretchedness of Germany's fate," Albertz said.

The Soviets changed their guard at the Red war memorial in West Berlin in record time, using the three armored personnel carriers instead of buses.

At the international crossing point of the wall, Checkpoint Charlie, they picked up an American Army escort as ordered by the U.S. commandant, Maj. Gen. Albert Watson II.

The convoy sped to the monument near Brandenburg Gate, delivered the 18 soldiers and picked up the troops being relieved. The carriers were back at Checkpoint Charlie in 32 minutes with a British army escort.

The Russians, who seem to be trying to prove that it is dangerous for them to move through West Berlin after the stonings earlier in the week, attracted little attention.

West Berlin police have placed barbed wire near the checkpoint to keep back crowds, but it was not needed. Additional police also are provided whenever the Soviets appear with their personnel carriers.

Tear Gas Grenade Clears Customers From Restaurant

A tear gas grenade set off at Fuller's Barbecue, 530 E. Pikes Peak Ave., early Saturday morning cleared all customers out of the restaurant and brought firemen and police to the scene.

Fireman Jerry Dengler donned a gas mask and removed the grenade from the back room of the restaurant, where it apparently was dropped.

Police are searching for three Negroes in their early 20s, who were discribed by a witness standing in the room at the time the grenade was set off. Two other men were questioned by police but were later released.

David Fuller, owner of the restaurant, told police he was in the kitchen when he heard a noise like a backfire. Fuller said he was unable to get into the back room because of the rush of customers to get out and he had to leave when the gas became too thick.

Firemen used a large fan to clear the building of fumes. No injuries were reported.

Scooter, Bike Collide in Center Of 50-Foot Road

Two youths, one driving a three-wheel scooter and the other riding a bicycle, met on the center line of a 50-foot wide roadway Saturday, causing the bicycle rider to be taken to Penrose Hospital with extensive injuries.

The head-on accident took place at 5:30 p.m. on Parkview Boulevard in Skyway Park. Gordon W. Baumgardner investigated for the State Patrol, which reported the incident.

Roger Wilson King, 16, was driving the scooter, headed west, when he struck the left front of the bicycle being ridden by Bill Rodenbeck, 18, who was going east, the patrol said.

Damage to King's scooter was estimated to be $50 and the bicycle, valued at $85, was a total loss.

Brakes Fail; Car Hits Pole, Injuring Two

Mrs. Jacqueline Driscoll, 26, and her 6 month-old-son, Christopher, were injured Saturday when the brakes on Mrs. Driscoll's car failed when she tried to stop the car on East Brookside Avenue, 16 feet east of Nevada Avenue.

According to the State Patrol's report, Mrs. Driscoll was going west and put on brakes to stop for traffic in front of her. The brakes failed and as she cut to the left to miss the traffic, the car went across the eastbound traffic lane and hit a pole.

Mrs. Driscoll suffered a laceration on the right knee and a bruised nose. Christopher was bruised on the right side of his head, causing a large bump. Both were taken to Penrose Hospital and were later treated at Colorado Springs Medical Center.

Damages to the 1958 car Mrs. Driscoll was driving were estimated to be $1000. She lives at 9¼ W. Costilla St.

Vandals Break Panes in Go-Kart Track Building

Vandals broke all the windows in the building where the Go-Kart Track used to be, east on Highway 24, sometime between 6:30 p.m. Thursday and noon Friday, according to a report given the sheriff's office.

John Ceresa, 2429 Chelton Rd., who discovered the damage, called the sheriff's office at 11:14 a.m. Saturday. He was joined at the scene by Deputy Sheriff Al Moore, who discovered that some person or persons unknown had taken a 2 x 4 and had broken out the windows on the north and east sides and some on the west side from the outside.

A panel on the rear door had been kicked off and entry was gained. The vandals had broken the rest of the windows from the inside. They had taken another piece of board and had broken two veneer doors, the report read.

"In the long run, I believe that the nation will excel in the space age that creates the best atmosphere for scientific work, simply because it will have the richest resources for new techniques, new methods, new materials, new instruments, new engineers and new scientists."

Ads Have Changed Since Days of Monument Mascot

By MARION McINTYRE MCDONOUGH

"Wake up, Jacob, day is breaking," so said De Witt's Little Early Risers to the man who had taken them to arouse his sluggish liver.

No that is not a T. V. commercial but Dr. William McConnell of Monument advertising in the Mascot, Friday, July 17, 1896.

Newspaper advertising has changed in content and in the names of most products since the Mascot was published in Palmer Lake by Mrs. Harriet E. Wilson, editor. The two-sheeter was published in the interest of not only Palmer Lake and Monument but Castle Rock, Edgerton, Husted, Larkspur, Perry Park, Gwillimville, Greenland and Table Rock. Several of these places are no longer in existance.

Beside Dr. McConnell's ads for his "One Minute Cough Cure," advice for trying De Witt's relief for colic and cholera and other cure-alls, the Ayers Company claimed, "Naked pills are fit only for naked savages. Clothes are the mark of civilization - in pills as well as people. A good coat does not make a good pill anymore than good clothes makes a good man. But as sure as you look on a clothless man as a mad man, you may look on a coatless pill as a bad one. After 50 years of tests no pill is like Ayers Catharic pills - Sugar - Coated."

Advertisers and readers of this paper were doubless pill conscious, but the Mascot gave local news, state and world news, ladies fashions and ads of local and distant merchants.

"Best advertising medium between Denver and Colorado Springs," it claimed.

Even doctors and dentists from Colorado Springs and Denver published cards to lure patients, and lawyers to get you out of trouble as well as photographers to flatter you.

However J. J. Munger sold Palmer Lake town lots, cheap, while Frank Sherwin of Palmer Lake represented the Robinson Stucco Company of Denver. E. A. Tunnel and Co., proprietors of the Rockland Hotel, which opened for that season on July 20, advertised rates of $2 and $3 a day or $10 to $16 by the week with special family rates.

"W. M. Clark and son" of Palmer Lake tempted you with "Bakery and Confectionary Goods and Groceries" and "Cigars and Tobaco" on the side. "The Palmer Lake Livery, Feed and Sale Stable," owned by Younger and Ellis had "First Class Rigs on Short Notice and Gentle Saddle Horses." Not to be left out, the children were provided with a large herd of burros at the Burro Corral in the Glen.

In Monument, Moses Chandler could shoe your horse at "The Reliable Blacksmith Shop" or you could purchase for your own use, Clark's "Little Shoe Maker Outfit" for $1.75 at F. B. Smith's store. The best wall paper, at Denver prices, could be found at the Walker Block or you could horse and buggy to Castle Rock to get fresh seeds at Holcomb and Whitney or have a meal at Phillip Crawshaw's City Hotel there. A first class meal for 25 cents could e had at the WCTU Home for Women. No address given!

Vickers in Colorado Springs sold the best 5-cent cigars beside Pure Gold Flour and fresh meats and gave coupons with each purchase.

One could buy 35 and 40 cent wash silks on sale at 15 cents a yard at Lewis, Son and Burrow's, Denver, or Topsy Brand hosiery at the Cash Bazaar in Colorado Springs. "Best in the world for the money!"

Santa Fe and Denver and Rio Grande train schedules and church services were listed as well as the Palmer Lake Town officials. D. H. Mackey was mayor; J. W. Doyle, mayor - protem; Miss Grace Younger, clerk; Mrs. C. A. J. Berry, treasurer; G. W. Pakner, police judge. Trustees were G. W. Palmer, Ed Giem, Tom Mackey, J. W. Doyle, William Dilts. The Marshall was Jerry Schumaker and Martie O. Phillips was postmaster.

Among arrivals that July at the Rockland Hotel were J. W. Drinkwater and family and Mrs. H. A. McIntyre of Denver, W. A. Bell of Manitou and B. F. Horner and wife of Colorado Springs.

The Rocky Mountain Chatauqua opened on July 15 in Glen Park. F. M. Priestly, the president, gave the exordium. Prof. W. F. Steele from the University of Denver gave the address and Mrs. Alice Polk Hill the poem. Prof. George Cannon, a teacher at East Denver High School and state geologist, gave the department announcements. "In the evening there was a social and reunion in Music Hall, everybody appearing to have a jolly time."

Sessions included Bible study, lectures, languages, nature study and field talks, elecutionary entertainments, popular lectures, readings and concerts etc. Mrs. Alice Polk Hill brought down the house on the second evening of the Chatauqua by a poem, "The Voice of The Chatuaqua," which the Mascot reported, "was far above on literary effort anything which Glen Park has had for a number of years."

There was a tremendous rush for tents in the Glen. Chatauqua Lodge Annex, a tent cottage occupied by the young people who took part in the concerts, had a large sitting room with one of the portable fire places invented by F. M. Priestly, guaranteed not to smoke.

Fred Robinson, well - known druggist of Colorado Springs, located his children and nurses in the Shumaker cottage in Palmer Lake. Other Palmer Lake notes said that T. A. Hanks sped around in a beautiful new cart of hardwood, "finished as fine as a piano, with his stunning bays hitched in front."

"The surveyors are again on the road up Reservoir Canon. Probably the road will be done in time for another West Creek boom and that is sure to come with the fall months."

In Greenland, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Noe entertained at a party for young people. The evening was spent in card playing, music and social chat until 12 when a repast was served.

Monument news gave names still familiar. Mrs. Myrtle Newburgh was summering in Green. Townsend of New York City was visiting her mother, Mrs. Henry Limback. Mrs. W. E. Tourtelotte and two children of Rocky Ford were visiting Mr. and Mrs. D. Guire.

The "Woman's Corner" had "Up to Date Reading for Dames and Damsels," which included the description of the new princess gown which fitted like a glove, satin capes with rushings of lace and Persian ribbon, charming frocks for young girls and tired housewives.

The outstanding feature was an article called "The Saucy Dutchess," who was the daughter of Duke Vladimar of Russia. She had an ungovernalbe temper and the habit of slinging tableware at her attendants. Her latest feat was a cup of scalding tea she hurled at her governess. The Grand Dutchess, her mother, had also a temper but she was more noted for her not love affairs, which were the scandal of Europe.

Word from Athens, Greece, said the Cretan Assembly met and butchering of women and children continued despite it while in Canton, Ohio, McKinley greeted 500 women in a rainstorm. Cloudbursts were in Utah and a "Freak Man" in Witchita, Kan., objected to having two pretty women throwing kisses at him and disturbing the (his?) peace. More disturbing was the news from Alabama that a wife was stabbed while praying in church. Her screams alarmed the congregation and broke up the service.

By this time if you were worn out with such drastic news, even to read the jokes or the list of dead letters at the Post Office, you could try Mascot's fiction, "Tolly's Adventure," author unknown.

Every number of the Mascot covered just about everything. If the Mascot did not have it, what newspaper would for $1.50 a year?

Red Skelton Plans To Make Movie After TV Shows

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Red Skelton, a comedian who has survived 11 years of television, plans to make a movie in Japan after completing his video shows this season.

Skelton started his theatrical career with a medicine show when he was only 10 years old. He went from there to showboat stock companies, minstrel groups, vaudeville, burlesque and circus troupes.

Skelton's clowning reputation grew when he became a radio star in 1936. He made his motion picture debut three years later in "Having A Wonderful Time."

Rubberfaced Skelton combined moviemaking with television in 1951. He's been on the air ever since, an 11-year record unmatched by most show business laughgetters.

Other comedians have become big television stars, only to find themselves out of work within a few years. Skelton's durability in a medium which uses up comics quickly has always been a subject of discussion in television circles.

"I've been lucky," said Skelton shortly before going out in front of an audience to tape his show at CBS' television city. "People sort of accept you. If I knew the reasons I've been on this long, I'd tell the other guys."

Skelton is satisfied with television success, but he feels it's time for another movie.

"I'm known as an international comedian now," he said, lighting a big cigar. "I'd like to keep that up, comedy is an international language.

"I've turned down one picture a year. But now have a picture that I want to do in Japan. And, I understand Warner Bros. is cooking up one for me.

Skelton has worked on his Japanese movie idea for the past 10 years, rewriting the script many times.

"It's a wonderful little story called 'Kasa-San,' 'Mr. Umbrella,'" Skelton said. "Everytime we do something on television that could fit into the picture, I rewrite the script."

Skelton's health also was a factor in keeping him away from motion picture studios. In the past few years, he underwent two operations and fought to regain his health.

"I feel great now," said Skelton, who has trimmed down from 227 pounds to 189. "I'm in bed by 11 o'clock. I don't even see the late movie on television. The other night I went to sleep watching one of my own pictures. For years, I didn't understand why other people did."

New York Central Sees Bankruptcy Without Merger

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The New York Central Railroad expects to tumble into "early bankruptcy" unless it can merge with the Pennsylvania Railroad to compete against two proposed giant Eastern rail systems.

This was the substance of a preview of testimony New York Central President Alfred E. Perlman plans to present to two Interstate Commerce Commission examiners Monday.

In another major railroad case, an ICC examiner Friday recommended approval of the proposed railroads.

This merger proposal had some resemblances to the Pennsy-Central plan. It would consolidate two major railroads engaged in direct competition over virtually parallel lines through the Southeast and along the East Coast. Both lines run trains to Florida.

ICC examiner Hyman J. Blond recommended approval of the merger of properties and franchises of the two lines through capital stock acquisition, provided safeguards are adopted to protect the jobs of railway employes, affected railroads in the area, and shippers.

HORSEMAN GETS AROUND

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Name any big race track, and Gus Petty has worked there.

He's been on the job since 1899, dispensing drinks and advice about horses.

Gus, 80, who grew up at Hot Springs, Ark., made his first bet at 18 on a 100 to 1 shot that won.

"I giv'd up bell hoppin' then and there and been a-racin' ever since."

He's a good judge of horseflesh but has been wrong a time or two.

"He looked like a mule. I sure found out different."

The horse was Man o' War.

Dyna-Soar, the U.S. Air Force advanced space craft, is based on a concept first proposed in 1933 by an Austrian physicist, Eugen Saenger.

Brumas Is Back In Act Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Brumas is back in the act again.

On Friday, Brumas upstaged an associate justice of the Supreme Court, a new assistant attorney general, and his master, in stealing the show at a swearing-in ceremony.

Norbert A. Schlei, 33-year-old Yale graduate from North Hollywood, Calif., was being sworn in as assistant attorney general by Associate Justice John Marshall Harlan in Kennedy's office.

Twice when the nearly threescore witnesses applauded, Brumas romped along the front row, wildly wagging his enormous tail in approval. He also nuzzled Harlan and sprawled on the floor like a bear rug so that Schlei's children—Anne, 9, Bill, 7, and Andrew, 2—could pet him.

Kennedy complimented Schlei as a man of "tremendous ability." But with a stern look at his 100-pound pet, Kennedy said, "This is the last swearing-in that Brumas is going to attend."

Brumas first landed in the news by being photographed as he waddled majestically around the Department of Justice escorted by a pretty secretary.

Republicans quickly took him as a symbol of what they called "the dog days on the New Frontier" and threw a party where all hands sang "How much is that doggie in the Justice Department?"

New Vocational Course Planned At Security High

"Distributive Education," a vocational program adopted in many high schools thru Colorado, will be available in September at Widefield High School, Security.

Superintendent Richard D. Taylor and Principal Robert Poole said the program is developing rapidly and several students are enrolled.

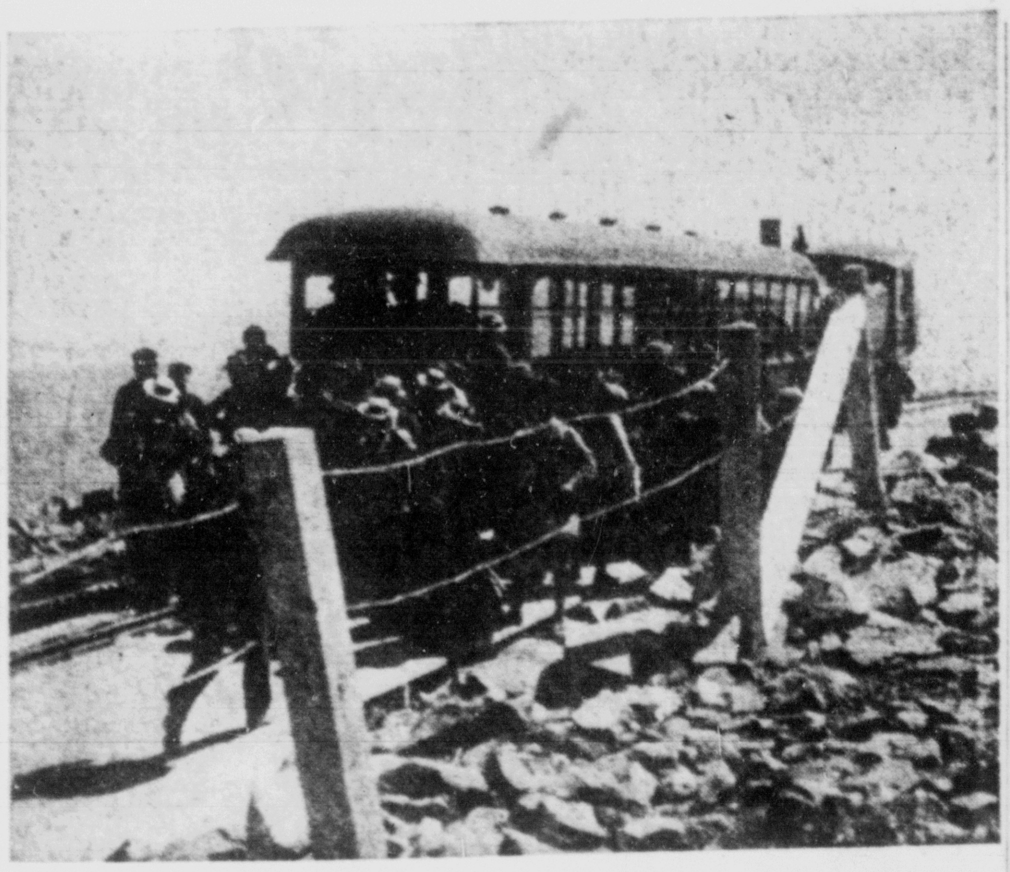
"Distributive Education" is a vocational interest program established for students who wish to investigate careers in retail, wholesale or service businesses. In addition to classroom training, students will be employed in the afternoon in retail businesses cooperating with the program.

Students who enroll may receive training in stock control, work, credit office work, interior advertising, display, personnel work, credit office work, interior decoration, etc., in any of the numerous fields associated with retail, wholesale, or service-selling work.

One objective of the "Distributive Education" program is to bridge the gap betweeen school and employment for high school graduates. Junior and senior boys and girls who enroll in the course receive laboratory credit, as well as a training wage for the work they do in downtown stores.

Dale H. Johnson, who is to be coordinator of the program is a graduate of the University of Denver in retailing. He has had several years experience in the retail business to further qualify him for the training of high school students.

Shortest place name in the world is the French village of Y (population 143), according to the Guiness Book of World Records.



EARLY DAY EXCURSION — Shown here is the group that made an excursion to the summit of Pikes Peak by Cog train on Oct. 1, 1898. A high wind that later spread a fire in Colorado Springs that destroyed the first Antlers Hotel began gaining velocity while the group was still at the summit.

Pikes Peak Region Yesterdays

By DORA FOSTER

The summit of Pikes Peak has long been a challenge to the residents of this region below. Its invitation to climb to its crest whether snow-capped or bathed in summer sunlight has been extended to us all many times. Many of our summer visitors feel its urge and and many sore muscles have resulted from the trip.

When my high school class planned one autumn to hike up to the top of that celebrated pile of rocks to the west of us, we girls were wearing long skirts — skirts that reached almost to our ankles. So the boys had promised us a loan of their extra knickerbockers, and caps, and we were all set to go.

But I had reckoned with my Welsh mother. When she heard of my plans she said, "You have something better to do than walking to the top of that mountain. It will be there a long time and some other time you may ride up."

None of the class went. But later when Colorado College ran an excursion to the top of the Peak, we made the trip on the Cog train, and all went well until on our return thru Colorado City, we had almost reached the top of the West Side hill on Huerfano Street when our electric street car was stopped by the lack of any current. So off we all piled and footed it down the hill across the viaduct, which was then being threatened by water and flames, and the tracks I made getting myself out of town and out toward the Broadmoor street car line were probably many more than I would have made climbing Pikes Peak. It was the afternoon of the great "Antler's fire," Oct. 1, 1898. Before I started for Broadmoor, tho I took a tour of Tejon Street as far north as Kiowa and saw many a funny sight as the merchants prepared to vacate their places of business.

No street cars came to remove me from town so I walked to the edge of lower Broadmoor where I found a single car that for some reason or other had not been idled by loss of power, so I rode home the rest of the way on it.

In 1880, 82 years ago this August, M. M. Sinton, the founder of the Sinton Dairy Company, made a trip to the peak's top and we will give his story here:

"I arrived from New York in 1880 and a short time later a cousin, Louis Bartlett, came. We were both 17 years old at the time and both of us were here for health reasons. Colorado air and sunshine did wonders for us, as it did for thousands of others, and we soon found employment. Come August we were game to try the then very popular sport of hiking up Pikes Peak.

"Realizing that we were not as husky as some, we decided to take two days for the trip. We planned to go up to timberline, make camp and spend the night there, hiking to the top next morning in time to see the sunrise. Early in the morning we hit the trail up Ruston creek at a point a little above where the hydro plant is now located. The mountains were beautiful from the start and there was a good well-traveled trail from there up. Ruxton Creek at that time had a lot of water that was clear beyond belief, to one accustomed to the streams in the east.

"The Ruston canon was deeply shaded and the first life we noted was the little water ousels that were flitting along over the tumbling brook. Then we saw several kinds of woodpeckers all very busy on the trunks of the evergreen trees that covered the steep sides of the mountains. At places where people had stopped to lunch we saw the beautiful rock squirrels and chipmunks and they were as tame as they are beautiful.

"We reached timberline quite early and in order to put in the time till dark we amused ourselves by toppling boulders from their positions on the steep hillside to watch them go plunging down the mountain. On their way down they would start others until a whole flock would go tearing thru the trees tearing the limbs from some of the trees from top to bottom.

"Tiring from this sport we were resting when we discovered something that at that distance looked like a line of ants on a trail far down below us. For a time we were very quiet thinking of what might have happened had they been there when our rock rolling was in progress. The moving line proved to be a line of burros, each covered with a blanket of firewood for the use of the men at the signal station. At that time the weather bureau kept observers at the summit both summer and winter.

"Later we gathered a goodly pile of wood for our camp fire to keep it during the night. As it was the hottest time of year we had not given much thought to the possibility of severe cold, but before morning we had reason to be thankful for the full supply of fuel. Late that afternoon there came up a violent thunderstorm. Fortunately for us it was below us, but we were in clouds that seemed about as wet as rain. When the storm cleared it turned cold and was it cold. In the morning we found ice in the running water on the steep side of the mountain. We hugged that camp fire all night, too cold on one side and too hot on the other. It kept us rolling and there was not much sleep for us. Once when I dozed off I was so near the fire I charred a sleeve but 'shaw' it was an old coat so what matter.

"In the morning we were off early to see the sun rise. Going up we met three husky young men coming down. 'Goin' to the top boys?" they asked. 'Yep,' we answered, feeling sure that we could make it. 'Taint worth while, lads, nothing' to see but a pile of granite rocks and a few whistling wood chucks.' Well, they missed out on one thing and that was the finest panorama of scenery both mountain and plain that one could imagine.

"To the north could be seen the night peaks near Estes Park; the smoke of the smelters indicated the location of Denver. Northeast was the Black Forest, due east was Colorado Spiings, with its Pikes Peak Ave., pointing directly at the summit. The sky line seemed to rise up out of an ocean reaching an altitude equal to our mountain elevation.Southeast we could distinguish where the Smelter City of Pueblo was from the smoke again. Due south were the Spanish Peaks and southwest was the snow-capped Sangre de Cristo, or Sawtooth range, as it is sometimes called. To the west was the Continental Divide with the College Peaks holding a prominent position. There were three of these peaks, Princeton, Harvard and Yale. Northwest we could see Crystal Peak, Sheep Nose mountain and where the fire station lookout is now located. The view from the Peak takes in a territory of 250 miles north and south and probably 150 miles east and west. 'Nothin' up there but a pile of granite rocks.'

"While up there we visited a spot where a marker indicated that the infant daughter of Sergeant and Erin O. Keefe was buried. The child was said to have been eaten by mountain rats. The story was a fake, but it got publicity the world over. We were somewhat ill from the altitude and dreaded the trip down, but found that when we got below timberline we made the down trip in a hurry.

"We found the storm of the evening before had washed the trail pretty badly and felt that we had been fortunate in being above it rather than in it. On our way down we saw several very large hawks or eagles soaring round and round in the sky at an altitude higher than the peak. Just what they were up so high for was more than we could imagine.

"Reaching Manitou we saw a man whom we took to be Ulysses S. Grant on the porch of the Mansions House. I think at that time Grant had been making a trip around the world.

"Home again in good season but oh, how stiff! A pony or a mule is the best mode of making the tirp, I think. In that way one has time to see the sights. A trip by auto is fine but is much too hurried to take in the vast territory that can be seen on a clear day from that point of vantage. Teddy Roosevelt said the Short Line scenery 'bandrupts the English language.' If that be true, then the trip up the Peak bankrupts all languages. IF you have never been up you have missed something."

The Joy of Little Things

When we see some spectacular bit of scenery either in this country or in other countries, we are completely thrilled and we all seek these places, yet we overlook the little things all about us. The one who has not visited the great and wonderful places can tell you what you have missed right at your door steps. What about those beautiful rainbows we have witnessed this summer? Could there be anything in nature so thrilling and yet how many people ever stop long enough to see them. Those exquisite colors can never be duplicated. Sometimes the reflection shows up as beautiful as the rainbow itself. At times we see a complete arch as it spans across the sky.

Have you even noticed dew drops, how they sparkle in the early morning light? They look like many precious jewels. Some are diamonds, garnets, rubies, opals, amethysts, and all the others. How beautiful they show up on the green leaves or the flowers!

That gorgeous sunrise when the whole sky is a blaze of red or the sunset when all the beautiful delicate colors show in the western sky.

You say, oh, they are just things we see every day. To be sure, but how many people ever stop to look around them and then travel miles and miles to see beauty.

There is so much we miss by by not observing beauty and wonder all about us. It is all free. We don't have to pay a fancy price to get in. Every day there is something out of the ordinary for us to see.

Do you observe the sunlight and shadow on the rocks in the in a wonderful picturesque country. Pikes Peak is never the same, as well as all the other mountains. The same is true on the plains.

Have you observed the many flower gardens over town? If you ride over town and observe them, you will be thrilled. It shows that the residents desire beauty around their homes.

We have a beautiful city situated in the midst of wonderful mountains and people flock here from other places where perhaps there is not much in the way of scenery and how much they appreciate what we have to offer.

People flock to places across the waters when our own United States has so much to offer.

Denver Hospital Unit Completes Duty at Carson

Departure of Denver's 156th General Hospital Saturday after two weeks of active duty closed training of 3585 citizen-soldiers at Ft. Carson for 1962.

An additional 250 individual reservists have been taking two to six weeks of active duty at Carson and with the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) units. Another 100 will report thru November.

Coordinating and supporting this annual activity is the Reserve Affairs staff of the Carson operations and training section which includes the Support Company. Reserve Affairs chief, will retire Aug. 31 after 20 years of service and turn over his duties to Capt. John Kelliher, executive officer.

Maintenance, inventory and storage of supplies remains to be done by this section. Some 140 buildings and quantities of equipment must be turned back to division units and Post Supply section.

The buildings along with three motor pools await their winter cleaning.

Warehouses containing U. S. Army Reserve property must be cleaned in preparation for inventory and storage of equipment.

Meetings will be underway soon with coordinators of Reserve units, Army and Marines, whose members use Carson ranges and other facilities on weekends throughout the year.

All training programs must consider division schedules.

Nearly 14 per cent of all U.S. workers reported in the 1960 census that their place of work was outside the county in which they livel.

IMITATION -- THE GREATEST FORM OF FLATTERY

About two years ago we introduced (and have been successfully using) the new prescription method of fitting hearing instruments. Since it has been proven successful, it is surprising how many say they can fit an aid by prescription methods. REMEMBER—a true prescription can be proven. A prescriptions-made instrument costs no more than others made by production-line methods. Why settle for less. Come in and see what "prescription fitting" can do for your hearing problem.

Segregation Plan Calls for Negroes In First Grade

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—A desegregation plan calling for admission of 127 more Negroes to the first grade in New Orleans schools was agreed to Saturday in federal district court.

The plan was submitted by the Orleans Parish School Board and was accepted by U. S. Dist. Judge Frank B. Ellis and Negro plaintiffs in a desegregation lawsuit.

It provides for admission of the 127 Negro children to 21 formerly all-white schools. The plan also calls for conversion of three other previously all-white schools to Negro schools.

The plan would also avoid transfers of Negro students to white second and third grade classes this September.

A total of 116 Negroes applied for admission to the McDonogh 19, Judah Benjamin and William Rogers schools this September. Rather than admit so many Negroes into those schools this year, the board requested that it be allowed to convert them into Negro schools.

The agreement between the board, the Negroes and Judge Ellis must be approved by the U. S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals.

The appeals court earlier this month ordered the acceptance of all 243 Negro first graders into white schools and the transfer of second and third grade Negro students to desegregated classes.

White students and the few Negroes who have already desegregated McDonogh 19 and Benjamin will be allowed to attend schools of their choice if those are converted to Negro schools.

William Rogers had only white students last year and they will also be allowed to transfer to schools of their choice.

West Side Garden Attracts Many Visitors

By MARGUERITE MITCHELL

The whole town's talking about Mrs. William Grover's flower garden in the lot next to her home at 2420 W. Kiowa St.

And no one has been more surprised than Mrs. Grover to suddenly see strangers hopping out of cars to ask if they could inspect her garden.

She was as delighted as any hobbiest is to show off her work but admitted she was slightly overcome — and a trifle puzzled — at all the attention she was getting.

Mrs. Grover doesn't listen to radio (she's too busy reading seed catalogs) and didn't know that several of her neighbors had called last week to exclaim about her flowers over two local stations that feature women's programs.

This started the influx of visitors, including Mayor William Henderson, and almost overnight Mrs. Grover found herself the center of compliments and questions.

"How do you do it?" she was asked. Hard work was her succinct reply.

"Why?" was another question.

"I want to," was her direct and simply answer.

"Doesn't it take a lot of money?" was another. Mrs. Grover has a typical female retort for this: "I stop counting when I reach $100."

Mrs. Grover began her hobby three years ago after seeing the colorful array of flowers pictured in a catalog from a seed company in South Carolina.

"A petunia is a petunia," was Mrs. Grover's rejoiner.

She placed her first order, started the seeds in flats placed in a small windowed porch of her home, and after one season Mrs. Grover was hooked — fertilizer, trowel and all.

She says her neighbors worry about her being on her knees so much, a position she found herself in numerous times this year when two hail storms almost destroyed the garden.

But she persevered and the limp flower stalks which had been compltely stripped took on new life with her tender loving care; with the exception of the dark opal basil, salpiglossia and pampas plume, three plants she was trying for the first time.

There is nothing willy-nilly about Mrs. Grover's planting; she takes great pains to place the flowers so the colors will not clash.

When an artist stopped recently to admire the garden and complimented Mrs. Grover on the arrangements, she said she couldn't have been more pleased.

Mrs. Grover doesn't think she has accomplished "something." As a matter of fact, she says she is certain she doesn't grow the largest dahlias or the tallest princess feathers or the most varieties of petunias (she has 18) in Colorado Springs.

She simply likes to grow flowers and says she does not want to get into a contest with anyone. If her garden does give people pleasure, that is enough for her.

Mrs. Grover has estimated that she must have between 35 and 40 different flowers, including Fever Few (a new one to her, perfected in Europe); cup flower (a border plant); Bells of Ireland (this tall flower with its unusual green blossoms which match its delicate leaves makes it ideal for greenery in floral arrangements; bush morning glory; double larkspur; snow on the mountain; a double petunia called Lyric which is a deep rose pink; powder puff asters (for sophisticated arrangements to blend with the new purple-blue-green decors); the popular Camache petunia; a dark red double petunia, and dahlias (one a glowing lemon yellow) which extend eight to ten inches in diameter.

"It's not everyone who is fortunate to have a vacant lot on which to grow flowers," Mrs. Grover said.

And it's not everyone who would use a vacant lot for this purpose. But as this Colorado Springs native says, she would rather use the space to grow multi-colored flowers rather than sell it for the single green.

Money doesn't always bring pleasure but flowers bring joy to everyone, according to Mrs. Grover, and that's all she wants to do with her flower garden.

By JACK METCALFE

WASHINGTON — The lid has finally been yanked off a malodorous welfare mess that festered for years under the noses of Congress and federal relief officials. One happy sequel is that relief chislers of the sort unearthed by the score in Washington are sure to face a rough time thruout the country. Another result may be a near-billion-dollar yearly break for taxpayers.

Surprisingly, it took freshman Sen. Robert C. Byrd (D - W.Va.), to stumble almost by accident on scandalous abuses by Washington freeloaders — which District of Columbia officials insisted to the end "couldn't happen here."

But thanks largely to the determination and considerable courage of Byrd, who has estimated Washington relief squandering in payments to ineligibles during the past five years at $18 million, a crash cleanup program is in full swing.

Another quarter affected by the stench Byrd unloosed was the Health, Education and Welfare Department. Its bouncy Secretary Anthony J. Celebrezze was sworn in just as the relief scandal blew up. Reasoning that chiseling such as had been revealed in Washington could not be limited to the capital, he ordered a sweeping probe "with a sense of urgency" of federally - supported relief programs everywhere.

Such a drive, tough but humane, could turn up evidence that cheating and bumbling are costing U.S. taxpayers more than $800 million a year. That estimate is based on a just-completed Washington welfare probe and the evidence turned up — much of it sickeningly reminiscent of New York welfare abuses disclosed in recent years.

General Accounting Office investigators sampled 280 aid-to-dependent - children cases and found that 184—or 65 per cent—were not eligible for any sort of assistance. In addition, 26 per cent were getting too much (or in one case too little) aid. Only 8 per cent of the 280 cases were in order.

An investigation of the general public assistance program which cares for temporary reliefers showed that 95 per cent of the recipients were ineligible. Some were in jail, others had not lived here the required year, some were working full time or had outside incomes.

PROBE PROVIDES SEVERAL SHOCKS

Translated into human terms, these inquiries provided some shockers:

'1. A 36-year-old mother of six who had drawn aid payments for four of her children for most of nine years was discovered with a man in her home at 3:30 a.m. one morning. He was the father of three of her children, but she denied he was her husband. Asked if he was employed, she said he was a gambler.

2. A 27-year-old mother of six who had been getting ADC payments since 1960 told probers the man in her house was her brother-in-law. He turned out to be her husband and father of five of her children. He also proved to be earning $65 a week, altho his wife received $191 a month in aid.

3. A 39-year-old woman who received a $72 monthly public assistance grant paid $30 monthly on a $228 department store bill.

4. A man who had received $209 monthly relief for three years while holding a job that paid more was sent $8,029 by welfare thru error. (Until the probe, no serious attempt was made to recover such "windfall" mistakes; that has been changed.)

MANY EXTRAVAGANCES DISCLOSED

Also uncovered was evidence of dope addiction, alcoholism, a high rate of police record and extravagance. Of 232 families checked, 155 had one TV set and 12 had two. In 102 homes, probers found 136 telephones and extensions — 70 had one, 30 had two and two had three telephone instruments. Forty-nine were extra - charge Princess phones, while 38 others were pastel-colored, also at higher cost.

The investigation also had some harsh words for Washington social workers. They were so lax or overburdened with paperwork that they spent only a few hours monthly calling on clients, so careless that they didn't bother to stop sending $181,165 in relief checks last year to persons already off the rolls, so bent on being a "friend at the door" that they couldn't bear to snoop.

Byrd, with this sizzling report in hand, told the DC government to come up by Sept. 1 with some concrete reform proposals which would insure aid to the needy of all ages but bar cash to chiselers. Coupled with this was the strong suggestion that the $22-million welfare budget could stand cuts up to $5 million.

QUERIES RELIEF-CHECK INCREASE

The senator, no relation to veteran Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.), got involved in the welfare mess because he is chairman of the DC Appropriations subcommittee. Early last year he started asking why Washington's welfare budget had tripled in the past decade while the population had actually declined, why aid to dependent children was up 37 per cent in the past five years.

Before he found the answers, Byrd got a lot of doubletalk and far more abuse. One charge that galled him particularly was that he was a political freebooter trying to cash in on the Newburgh, N.Y., welfare furor.

Byrd considers Newburgh City Manager Joseph Mitchell's relief-chiseling charges unproved. Further, he disclaims any intent of turning his own campaign into a nationwide anti - freeloading venture, for political or any other reasons.

Nonetheless, the conviction is strong on Capitol Hill that his disclosures will drop political fallout there and on every U.S. community with a welfare department worthy of the name.

It takes no barometer to forecast the chill wind that will hit urgent Kennedy Administration requests for increased nonessential spending should other cities discover relief frauds such as flourished in the shadow of the capitol.

Morse Continues Hopeful Outlook For School Bill

By JOE HALL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., said Saturday he has not given up hope for passage of the college education bill but that its prospects now do not look bright.

Morse, chairman of the Senate-House conferees on the measure, told a reporter he has no plans at the moment to call another meeting on the long-deadlocked legislation.

"I don't plan to do that until it appears we can get together on a bill," he said in reply to questions. "We haven't been able to do it so far."

The Kennedy administration has been counting on the college - aid measure as the one part of its badly battered aid-to-education program likely to be written into law by this Congress.

But in the conference, the measure ran into a church school controversy of the kind which has stalled the bill to aid grade and high schools since Morse steered it through the Senate in May 1961.

The House in January passed a bill to provide $1.5 million for college classroom facilities, 60 per cent in the form of rants and 40 per cent loans.

The Senate the following month passed a bill carrying the same amount for classrooms but as loans exclusively. It also would provide $250 million in grants for public junior colleges and $924 million for college student scholarships.

Joint Chiefs Plan Strategy For Military Space Work

By ELTON C. FAY
AP Military Affairs Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The strategy-making Joint Chiefs of Staff include the possible impact of military space operations in their planning for both the near and distant future.

This was disclosed Saturday in answers given by a Defense Department spokesman to a series of questions about U.S. strategic objectives as related to space warfare.

The questions had their genesis in a series of recent developments.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara was described as believing that no military application of space vehicles had been demonstrated in the twin-satellite orbiting feat of the Soviet Union.

Subsequently, McNamara modified that report view by saying:

The Russians have demonstrated a launching booster capacity "substantially in excess" of that of the United States; the new Titan III booster project will provide the United States with launching capability two to three times greater than the rocket engines now used by the Soviet Union; and by the time the Defense Department puts together its recommendations for the fiscal 1964 budget this winter it will have learned enough about requirements to add new projects to its military space programs.

The comments left unanswered the question of whether military space operations and defensive problems are just a gleam in the eye or already are being incorporated into future plans.

The joint chiefs maintain in "program for planning" three continuously revised strategic plans:

— A long-range strategic estimate covering a four-year period which begins eight years after adoption of the plan and thus carries coverages to a point 12 years ahead.

— A medium-range program estimate, covering a three-year period beginning four years in the future.

— A short-range joint strategic "capabilities plan," intended for immediate use with weapons systems already in existence.

The first two programs provide guidance for military research, development and engineering directed at the shaping of strategy in connection with weapons systems still in the hoped-for or development stage.

What is the Joint Chiefs of Staff doing about space in relation to those time-bracketed plans?

To this, the spokesman said: "Scientific and technological factors and trends which might affect future warfare are considered as well as political, economic and military factors, both current and future."

"The evidence that there is a potential for military advantages in space both in the short term and in the long term becomes increasingly apparent with each new major space achievement," he said.

"Public testimony before Congress by the secretary of defense and other members of the Defense Department including the military officers provides an insight to several active projects related to objectives in the field of military space operations," he added.

The spokesman said that, therefore, it is logical that the chiefs "seriously consider, in the strategic plans and estimates, the implications and the possibilities of military applications in space; of the threats to the national and free world security that such military applications might pose, and to the capabilities which would be required to meet these threats."

But, the spokesman said, it is difficult to forecast a pattern in development of military space capabilities.

"The inter-relationship of future threats, the requirement for decisiveness in countering threats, the requirement for proof that an existing system can be either supplanted or replaced by some entirely new system—and many other considerations which include unknowns—dictate caution in forecasting how long one system might be required or when it might become outmoded," he explained.

"However, it is possible to forecast patterns for some potential military space operations. An example is the possibility of combining the missile and space-threat warning functions and capabilities into an integrated system."

Here the spokesman appeared to be referring to the use of space vehicle tracking systems set up in connection with U.S. and foreign satellite flights and missile warning systems like the Ballistic Missile Early Warning System which is in operation in the arctic.

"Similar possibilties of integration are already taking effect in the area of weather forecasting," the spokesman said.

This seemed to mean the use of weather data obtained both from conventional terrestial observation stations and from the new weather reconnaissance satellites, for use by the military in preparing for missile or satellite launchings or for routine aircraft flights.

Mike Mansfield Predicts Senate Success Record

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana predicted Saturday that Congress will write a respectable record of achievement in its final month of work.

If it doesn't, Mansfield said it won't because President Kennedy hasn't furnished leadership in efforts to put over his program as some Republicans contend.

"The President has given us sound leadership," he said. "He has tried to meet Congress more than half way in his dealings with it. He has tried also to be as fair as possible to all groups in the population and to all segments in the economy."

Disputing that, Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, said in a separate interview there has been "a complete lack of success in presidential leadership."

The Iowa senator heads the Senate Repulican Policy Committee.

"In a good many areas I thi it's a good thing for the country that this leadership hasn't been successful. Thankfully, most of the legislation that has been passed or will be passed, isn't in the form the administration wanted," Hickenlooper said.

Council to Take Up Smartt Zoning Proposal Tuesday

The City Council will consider Tuesday a Planning Commission recommendation for a special use (SU) zone on a 40-acre tract in northeast Colorado Springs to permit the establishment of a scientific and research center by developer B. H. Smartt.

The tract is located northeast of the proposed Academy Boulevard and San Miguel Street.

The council will also consider a zoning appeal by Smartt to permit two adjacent tracts to be zoned from R-2 (Single-family residential) to R-5 (multi-family residential).

The Planning Commission recently recommended that the zone change be denied.

The problem of drainage also is expected to be raised at the council meeting. Several councilmen proposed at the last meeting that no further subdivision developments be permitted until a new method for financing adequat drainage facilities is found.

Smartt has been attempting to obtain zoning for the proposed scientific and research center for several months.

He originally requested an R-5 zone with a conditional use to permit buildings to house business not involving retail sales. He said several national organizations have expressed an interest here if the zone change could be obtained.

However, the Planning Commission proposed that the area be developed under the newly-established special-use zone, and the area to the west of Academy Bouevard and south of San Miguel Strett not be changed from the platted R-2 zone.

Smartt is expected to protest Tuesday against the repeated delays by the Planning Commission and the council.

Nearly 20 other itmes will be considered by the council Tuesday beginning at 9:30 a.m., including the following items of unfinished business.

An ordinance changing the northeast corner of Circle Drive and Pikes Peak Avenue from the R-2 C-5 zone. (second reading)

Petition by James F. King for annexation of Roswell Addition No. 3, a 1.65 acre tract northwest of Beacon and Fillmore Streets. It is requested it be annexed as C-6 (general business).

Coming under the heading of new business will be the following items:

Proposal by the City Planning Commission to change land in the vicinity of Colorado College to the SU-1 (Special Use Zone No.1).

New Community Church To Be Built in Black Forest

Construction is scheduled to start soon on a new Community Church in Black Forest that will be erected adjacent to the present log church at the intersection of Shoup and Black Forest Roads.

Total cost of the church has not yet been determined, according to Edward Morast of the board of trustees.

The Community Church is affiliated with the Congregational Church and the pastor is the Rev. Nicholas Natelli.

The first organized community church in Black Forest was founded in 1936, altho it was not incorporated until 1937 and Protestant services had been held on a regular Sunday basis since 1934.

The late Ira Wolford and the Rev. Mr. Hageman, now living in Elbert, organized the first services, holding Sunday evening vesper service at the Hageman home in Black Forest.

The meetings drew more and more people and in 1936 services were shifted to the first Black Forest Elementary School, which still sits only about a 100 yards from the present church and is the home of the Pearl Roe family.

In that year, regular Protestant church activities in Black Forest got more help when the church School Union, which then began sponsoring services.

As services became more regular and interest quickened, members of the community decided they needed a church building for the growing congregation, and it was decided to erect a church.

Work began in 1937 on that project. Logs were cut, peeled and stacked to dry to be used later. The tallest and straightest trees on many lots were donated to the cause and volunteer laborers felled and trimmed the trees.

Among the original members of the congregation when it was incorporated in 1937 who still live in Black Forest are Mrs. Wolford, Carver, his wife Margaret, Fred Carver, Lexie Carver Thiebaud and Eunice Pease.

These also had been among the original group on July 5, 1936, when the American Sunday School Union agreed to sponsor regular meetings and Restore S. Perry signed an acceptance of the Black Forest Church into the American Sunday School Union.

The church then the only church in the Black Forest Community, was erected on land donated by J. V. Collins, now living in Canon City, and Clarence Morrell, now a resident of Beloit Kan.

Ground breaking was held in 1938 and soon thereafter the basement was under construction. In 1940, the building was dedicated.

The building got heavy use from the day it was completed. The rustic-styled building has served as a meeting place for almost every kind of organization permanent or temporary, that has held a meeting in Black Forest in the past.

The church joined with the Congregational Conference in 1946.

Ten years later, it was decided to add an education wing and kitchen, that work began in 1956 and was completed in 1958.

Today, in addition to serving the community in all ways, from a Sunday School nursery to a pooling place on election day, the basement of the Community Church also is the home of the Black Forest Library.

City Officials Impressed On Homestake Inspection

Colorado Springs officials made an inspection last week of part of the Homestake water project, which will be developed jointly with the city of Aurora, and returned impressed by what they saw on the trip.

The six officials said there were still patches of snow on the Mount of the Holy Cross, which towers 13,966 feet into the sky, and other peaks in the area.

Jack McCullough, city water superintendent, estimated that Cross Creek was running about 50 second feet of water. One second foot for one day equals 646,272 gallons of water. During the runoff period in the spring, however, the flow down Cross Creek would be many times that, and that's when most of the diversion will take place in future years.

The city officials spent one night under the stars along the bands of Cross Creek at an elevation estimated at 10,400 feet above sea level. Most rugged part of the trip was a two - mile stretch of trail leading from the high ridge north of Holy Cross down into the Cross Creek canon. This Forest Service trail was rocky and extremely steep in spots.

The trip involved a 16 - mile horseback ride southwesterly from Minturn into the rugged White River National Forest to Cross Creek, which headwaters on the north side of the Mount of the Holy Cross.

Making the journey were City Councilman Harry W. Hoth, C. L. Heitman Jr., assistant to City Manager John M. Biery; Frederick T. Henry, city attorney; Louis Johnson, assistant city attorney; McCullough, and Malcolm Anderson, city public information director.

Accompanying them was John P. Elliott, Denver, associate engineer on the water project who spent a good many years mapping, surveying and filing of the water rights.

Diverting water from Cross Creek will be one of the last phases in the multi-million dollar Homestake development, and it may be 10 to 15 years before this part of the program gets under way.

Henry said a tunnel a mile long or so will have to be drilled so that the Cross Creek water can be diverted into Homestake Lake, which is located northwest of Leadville. A Cross Creek collection reservoir will have to be built too and a proposed site for such a dam was inspected by some of the group.

The present Homestake Lake will have to be tremendously enlarged to hold the water, which will then be sent thru a 5.3-mile tunnel to a point near Turquoise Lake west of Leadville, Henry said.

Just how the water will go from there to reach Colorado Springs and Aurora will depend on engineering studies now being made by Bechtel Inc., consulting engineers from San Francisco.

But it is expected that the first water from the project will reach Colorado Springs and Aurora by 1966. Under normal precipitation conditions, each city can expect about 35,000 acre feet of water annually when the project is fully developed.

Earlier this year, several city officials and others made a trip into Homestake Lake.

New High School Students to Take Tests This Week

Junior and senior high school pupils who are new to the Colorado Springs public schools, or who have been away a year or more, are urged to report to the main entrance of Palmer or Wasson High Schools at 8 a.m. on either Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday. At this time, tests customarily given all new pupils will be administered.

Pupils who plan to attend North, South, and West Junior High Schools and Palmer High School will be tested at Palmer. Wasson High School will be the center for pupils attending East and Horace Mann Junior High Schools and Wasson.

These examinations are given in advance in order to facilitate enrollment. Information obtained from them aids counselors in placing pupils in the right courses. No pupil is enrolled until after the tests have been taken and results returned to the school. Friday, Sept. 7, will probably be the earliest enrollment date for pupils who do not take the tests before September 5.

Helen K. Bailey, director of pupil accounting, said special arrangements should be made to test any children with physical or other handicaps. When a large number is being tested, it is impossible to give these children the special attention they need. Parents should contact the principal of the school in which the boy or girl will enroll. He will make arrangements with the Department of Pupil Accounting and Testing Services for special tests.

In addition to reporting in the morning, it will be necessary to return in the afternoon to complete the battery of tests at 1 p.m. The afternoon session will be over about 2:30 p.m. for the junior high pupils, but senior high pupils will be near Acacia Park and town to eat.

Entrances to be used are the main entrance at Palmer High School at East Platte and North Nevada Avenues and the office entrance at Wasson High School on Afton Way.

Julie Newmar Means Action In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It is always a pleasure to have Julie Newmar back in town, because where Julie is, there is action.

The erason for this quickly meets the eye. Julie is 5-feet-10 of adroitly assembled (39-23-39) female. She is also provocative when she opens her mouth. Her cogent comments, punctuated by a lubricant laugh, can be delightfully original, especially when they deal with matters concerning s-e-x.

Julie is displaying her traffic-congesting form in leotards for "Three on a Match," her first film in a couple of years. She has passed up a few movies because producers could see her only as a sexpot. Silly producers.

"Were have you been?" she was asked.

"I have been studying at the Actor's Studio in New York, I have been all over Europe, including the Greek Isles, I have been to Russia, I have been in love, and I have been making thousands and thousands and thousands of dollars in summer stock," she replied.

She explained the various items: she has taken courses at the Valhalla of the method actor in an effort to escape into more serious roles ("I am really quite good at playing a nasty woman"), she enjoyed Europe; she found the Russians unresponsive ("I wore an evening dress that was virtually a nightgown, and nothing happened"); she is now out of love; she was a smash in "Damn Yankees" on the moneyed straw-hat circuit.

On other matters, she opined that the twist is fun but unsexy.

"Anything that is an exhibition is not sexy," she commented. "I think the slower latin dances are much sexier. Personally, I prefer a slow foxtrot—about two steps a minute."

There was that laugh again. She added that success in the twist depended upon what kind of a figure you had. Figures count strongly in Julie's scheme of things. The sexiest kind of male, she proposed, is the tall, lean man.

"He is the one who appeals to me most—the man who looks underfed and helpless, but he isn't," she said with the laugh. "I can assure you he isn't."

Grasping at straws, I came up with an old dodge: name the 10 sexiest men.

"Cary Grant," she started without hesitation. She gave a slight shudder and explained: "I go off into a blue cloud whenever I think about him. When he smiles, it is as powerful as a Shakespeare love sonnet. He has said, 'I love you, you're marvelous 'even before he opens his mouth.

"If I ever meet him, I'll probably fall in a small heap."

Summit School Court Action Ready to Start

DENVER (AP) — Court action will start next week in a dispute which has halted construction of new schools in little Summit County, high along the Continental Divide.

He said at Sterling that it probably will take place Wednesday, starting at 10 a.m., but the time is subject to change.

The Colorado Supreme Court assigned Judge Shallenberger to the case Wednesday, but no announcement of it was made at the Capitol until Thursday. Court officials said there was no statement because assignment of judges is routine.

Justice Albert T. Frantz of the Supreme Court, acting as chief justice in the absence of Chief Justice Edward C. Day, made the assignment.

It was done in an effort to speed up action on the case.

Dist. Judge William H. Luby removed himself from the case Aug. 9 after handing down expenditure of funds for construction of a new building. He turned the case over to Dist. Judge Hilbert Schauer of Fort Morgan, who had participated in a previous Summit County school case.

A hearing date was set at the time for Sept. 19, the first day Judge Schauer's schedule permitted him to hear the arguments after time was allowed attorneys to prepare their cases. Lawyers for the school board asked an earlier hearing and Judge Schauer withdrew to permit another judge to be called in.

A delegation of Summit County women and children, carrying placards, visited the Capitol Thursday morning asking aid of state officials in opening schools. They said unless something is done there may be no public school in the county.

Educational Value of TV Cited by Actor-Judge Jones

By EDGAR ALLAN JONES Jr.
Written For UPI

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Television as a mass medium has demonstrated considerable educational value.

Moving into its fifth year as a daily ABC-TV program, "Day In Court" has for several years consistently attracted some 20 million viewers. Furthermore, the fan letters and ratings indicate "Day In Court" legal proceedings are received with interest and understanding. This is due to the unique blend of dramatic value and educational content which is the hallmark of the program.

Thus it is that a distinguished federal judge finds educational merit in "Day In Court" at the same time as the famous Lunts of the theatrical world should regard it as favored television fare.

This signifies to me that authenticity, when combined with sound dramatics, can be compelling to the mass audience of television.

Judge Charles E. Clark for some 10 years comprised a three-judge panel in the Second Federal Circuit Court of Appeals in New York with Judges Learned Hand and Augustus Hand, perhaps the most distinguished such panel in American history. To my happy surprise, Judge Clark some months ago wrote me that he was favorably impressed with the educational impact of "Day In Court."

To him, the program consistently "offered realistic and heartwarming pictures of how justice, tempered with mercy and common sense, can be and is accorded to the many who have to come before our 'minor courts.' Years ago I served as a judge of such a court, and so was particularly pleased to see how faithfully these important courts are represented."

Actually, the programs are produced by means of elaborate scripts, running to 30 or more pages of actor-and-actress memorized lines, and carefully planned lawyer-interrogation of witnesses, foundationed on an elaborate process of legal research conducted by honor third-year law students under the direction of a law professor.

Lawyers appearing as counsel (anonymously) on ABC-TV programs have proved capable and sensitive to their role of interpreting the American lawyer in a dignified and competent manner to the American people.

The appearance of attorneys on a fictionalized television program has been approved by the American Bar Association's Committee on Legal Ethics, which issued its formal ruling (opinion No. 298) on April 15, 1961, upholding the propriety of lawyers appearing on dramatic shows in simulated trials.

The ABA also, in 1959, conferred its Gavel Award on the program for its role in improving public understanding of the administration of justice. In addition, the Freedoms Foundation of Valley Forge has similarly cited the program, in 1962.

When it is recalled that previously a report prepared for the American Bar Association's survey of the legal profession revealed that 40 per cent of the middle-class families with problems had not consulted a lawyer, the importance of shows such as "Day In Court" becomes plain. If we can help show that lawyers can be of assistance to many who do not now seek their aid, I think we shall have accomplished a great deal.

Headwaters Rule Proposed by FPC

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Power Commission proposed a new rule Friday designed to speed its procedures in making assessments for headwater benefits accuring to non-federal hydro-electric power projects.

Interested parties were given until Oct. 16 to file comment. ment.

The Federal Power Act provides that downstream owners of non-federal hydro-electric projects pay for a share of the costs of upstream developments to compensate for the benefits they receive. Payments are made on the basis of commission determinations.

In the past, the commission has made annual determinations of the amounts to be paid on the basis of extensive studies. The commission said it has fallen behind in this work and the new rule would facilitate progress.

Owners and operators of storage reservoirs would be required to file information with the commission each year concerning the headwater benefits. This data would be used to determine an initial billing, which would be submitted annually until there was a change in the development of the river basin or in the costs to be apportioned under law.

A project owner would have the right to protest a billing and request a hearing, but the burden of proof would be on the owner to show that the amount billed exceeded the value of the power benefits received.

ONE MUSTACHE WANTED

CINCINNATI (AP) — Some players of the Cincinnati Reds are telling Dr. Richard John Rohde that he ought to let his mustacahe grow back.

Last season, Dr Rohde, the team trainer, had a mustache, and the players pleaded with him to "shave it off."

"I will if we win the National League pennant," Dr. Rohde told them. So the Reds won the pennant and that's why Doc. Rohde has a hairless upper lip. Now they want to change their luck and have asked the trainer to grow another lip brush.

No One's Laughing!

It's been a relatively dry summer in Colorado but the humidity will rise with the approach of football season. Crying towels have long been in vogu eas a breezy segment of fall fashion and the way local coaches are shedding summer smiles—we may end up with enough moisture to staurate the "Frying Pan."

Swivel - hipping around the "sourpuss brigade" are a few, but their reasons are delicate. One is Ben Martin, who sees the gleaming symbol of Falcon Stadium as an eraser for worry lines. He also has enough talent before him and sufficient bad luck behind to suggest that controlled optimism is not out of hand.

Others who feature a bit more cheer in their complexions include: Bud Davis of C.U., who has the job of teaching recruiting practices first — and football later; and Mike Lude of C.S.U., who has already had his name in the news so much that he may end up on his own roster.

Still, optimism is running shallow. One who is accustomed to disasterous happenings around him and still provides football miracles within his small sphere, is Colorado College's Jerry Carle. Jerry annually has more reason for pessimism and less taste for publicizing it than any gridiron mentor in the region.

No so this time. Stripped of junior college recruits, two dozen graduates, and spring practice, Carle and staff retain very little but their sense of humor. That may be stretched like a wartime girdle by the middle of November.

"We could possibly go undefeated — if we didn't have any games," jests top assistant, Frank Flood. "I'd say we have a chance to win twice," says Carle, "but those games are so late in the season we may not be in shape to play them.

"You've read 'The Last Hurrah,'" Carle continues. "Well, we call this season 'The Last Ha-Ha!' No one will be laughing when it's over."

No one is really laughing now. The Tigers forge into a schedule where every opponent, save a couple, figures to be improved. CC has few returnees, little experience, no size, practically no speed, and little time to prepare. It may be suicide.

This, of course, is no fault of Carle or aides. Junior college transfers had been their answer for some time. That solution is the latest in a long line grabbed away from them by CC policy. It will, according to Carle, take at least three years to repair the damage.

Word of the fate has spread around campus. Blame is directed various ways.

"You newspaper guys give me a pain," says one sensitive soul. "You always pick on the coaches."

"Not so," we said while gazing in awe at the line of sprinklers which was showering scorched Washburn Field. "We just wondered how a school that is forced to bring about such absolute scholarship restrictions can afford to pay the water bill."

"It's strategy," said another bystander. "Some of Jerry's backs can swim faster than they can run. We're flooding the field."

"It's not funny," commented another. "Carle and the boys have done some job giving this school as good a football program as its had the past few seasons. Now they've left them without any talent. I asked one of the coaches what offense they are going to use this season and he told me it was an offshoot of the 'belly series' — called the 'back series.' He said with a line this small, the kids have to learn to function from that position. I guess it's all right but I think they're going to have trouble with handoffs."

"Maybe they'll go to a passing game," we suggested.

"I doubt it," one of these skeptics said. "Some of their quarterbacks threw so badly last year that Jerry accused Red Eastlack of bringing basketballs to practice instead of footballs.

"They'll have fire, tho," he added. "I heard Frank Flood and Tony Frasca were all over town the fifth of July buying left-over firecrackers. I guess that's what they use 'em for."

We agreed, even tho it sounds a little preposterous.

Anyhow, they won't need firecrackers. That's what we eventually told these guys — who were beginning to sound like antagonists.

CC football teams have survived one crisis after another the past few years. We know this one coming up is going to be tough. But the fellas will be ready when practice starts Monday morning — and they'll make it.

That is — if they keep the sense of humor!

New Stadium May Inspire Falcons to Grid Heights

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

In the midst of shutter snapping and small talk between players, suddenly a handful of blue-clad bruisers scampered up the concrete steps which lead high to the press box and upper rows of seats in the yet unusued Falcon Stadium at the Air Force Academy.

It took no expert in psychology to tell that these young men — some barely out of their teens — were impressed with the sight.

You could almost sense the feeling that would be realized the first time down the long, broad ramp that leads to the carpet-like turf. The chills that undoubtedly will vibrate the backbone on every uniformed Cadet when the crowd lets go with its first cheer could be felt by those watching these husky gladiators in football pads examine their new home.

This was the impression left after the first official use of the new $3.5 million stadium at the Air Force Academy — Press Day for the Falcons of '62.

One could not help but wonder if this factor . . . the first season with a home stadium for the AFA . . . might have an effect on the results. To visiting teams it will be just another stadium, altho beautiful, but to the Falcons this combination of concrete, wood, steel and manicured landscaping is their "home."

The full meaning of this isn't realized until it is remembered that the Air Force has yet to play a "home" game. All regional games of the past have been played in Denver, Boulder and Washburn field in Colorado Springs.

* * *

Actually the visiting team has been as much "at home" as the Falcons in other seasons.

An all-too sobering fact, however, protrudes like an ambulance siren on New Year's Eve. The schedule facing the Falcons this fall is without doubt the most nationally representative in the history of the school — and probably the toughest ever tackled.

One simple characteristic typifies the schedule these Cadets must buck. No less than five teams on this fall's slate are fresh from bowl games last year.

Prognosticators have judged the Falcons capable of winning from one to five of their contests on the 10-game slate. All agree that much will depend on the crucial game performance of several of the untried sophomores.

Ben Martin, head coach starting his fifth year here, is keeping a buttoned lip on how he truly feels the won-lost outcome will be. But he does confess confidence in his squad and an opportunistic approach is obvious among the entire coaching staff.

"We definitely feel that the squad is improved over the teams of the past two seasons," Martin told the gathering of press inquisitors from thruout the state. "This team will be stronger physically than a year ago . . . and we will be a little faster team-wise."

Martin repeated that he feels the Falcons are off to their best start of the season since he took over in the fall of 1958. The AFA varsity traveled to Oxnard AFB in California two weeks ago to get the jump on most teams in conditioning.

"We're off and running on this season," Martin said. "And I feel that this is the year we can level our sights on the football program for what we hope to continue for the future."

By this, it was assume that Martin meant the AFA has set a goal on the level of football to be played in the new Falcon Stadium . . . and by another quick glance at that schedule it's obvious that this is nothing short of top caliber.

Depth — numbers of experience and "trusted" people in all positions — is still lacking at the Air Academy. And this should be the key of success or failure for the Falcons.

"As with the '58 team (which went undefeated and into the Cotton Bowl) the success of this team will depend on a few veterans with experience and also some key sophomores. Then we had such matured players as Rich Mayo, Bob Brickey and Mike Quinlan as sophomores. We think we have others who will perform well for us this year," Martin said.

A couple clues to this fall's system may have emerged from Martin's brief talk with the press Saturday.

One was that there may be an "experiment" toward platoon units — similar to those which became so popular at LSU under Paul Dietzel, current mentor at West Point. Martin hinted at this when he said his staff is working with several new players about 75 per cent of the time on defense, and another group is working the same percentage on offense.

"I hope to use these players in their specialties when ever the situation dictates," Martin said.

Another was almost made-to-order by the NCAA rules committee this past year when they rewrote the regulations to read that a kicking team may now down the ball within the 10-yard line. With the Air Force having one of the nation's finest punters in quarterback Terry Isaacson (an average of over 40 yards last year as a soph) the AFA is bound to use this as a defensive weapon.

"Football has always been a game of position," Martin said, "and we will alter our thinking to meet this by training our punters to kick the high ball that lands and sticks so that our linemen can cover."

One other is the switch of two-year veteran fullback Nick Arshinkoff to halfback. This gives the tentative starting backfield two power-type runners in Arshinkoff and sophomore Larry Tollstam (5-11, 206 from Lansing, Mich.) along with Isaacson at quarterback and tricky Darryl Bloodworth at the other half.

"Some people might construe this to mean we will have a twin-fullback offense like the Green Bay Packers," Maring said, "and this may be true.

"We have always tried to integrate a certain amount of passing along with a sound running game, and altho we won't have the passer we've had in the past (Mayo) the spot pass has always been good to us," Martin said.

This week the Air Force has been concerned with trimming the bulky freshman squad of nearly 130 down to about 75 and this should be completed by Monday. The Varsity will also start cracking pads come Monday, working toward the target date of Sept. 22 when they will play their first game in Falcon Stadium against Colorado State University.

Also a feature of Press Day at the AFA was a noon picnic lunch, which was the same fare to be offered on Colorado Day, Sept. 22, with the public invited for an outdoor picnic in the shadow of the stadium. The barbecue planned will be the best buck's worth in the region for a fine meal, and it's a good excuse to beat the crowd to the grand opening of Falcon Stadium.

Senior's Qualifying Ends Today

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Qualifying rounds continued this morning for the World Senior Golf Tournament at the Broadmoor after approximately half the field toured the 18 hole course to post official rounds Saturday.

A total of 97 qualifiers stroked thru their paces Saturday and a like number was expected to follow today. After the rounds wind up this afternoon, pairings are to be drawn up with the top 64 qualifiers being arranged in the Championship Flight. The remainder of the qualifiers will be dropped into lesser flights, based on their scores.

The match play tournament will then get underway Monday morning with the first daylong stand of 18 hole rounds. Competition will continue thruout the week with the finals in the Championship Flight scheduled for Saturday.

Scores Saturday were a bit above the normal expectation for this tournament but a number of the top favorites held off from qualifying until today. Tops among the Saturday venturers was Glenn L. Miller of Logansport, Ind., a first year entry. Miller, who sports a seven-handicap from his home club, bettered that here with a fine five-over-par 77.

Only two other first day qualifiers broke 80. Richard Toney of Piedmont, Mo. fired a 79 and W. A. Craig of Mountain Grove, Mo. matched that score. Ted Payseur, a semi-finalist here during the first tournament two years back and the former athletic director at Northwestern University, came in with an 80. An additional nine golfers were grouped at 81.

Scheduled to go out today were Howard Creel, the defending champion who plays out of Houston, Tex. and the Broadmoor, and Adrian McManus of Pasadena, Calif., who was last year's runner-up. These two are among the ranking favorites this summer, altho the overall field is considered to have been strengthened considerably. Creel is also the defending medalist.

A number of other top golfers in this 55 or older field are due to go out today also. Included are Leon Sikes of Palm Beach, Fla., E. J. Rogers of Oklahoma City, Forrest Andrews of Dekalb, Ill., Glen Norville of Oklahoma City, and Frank Godchaux of Abbeville, La.

Among the favorites touring the course Saturday were Archie Gonzales of New Orleans, who carried a one handicap. However, he fired an 86 qualifying and may be on the borderline for making the Championship cut when pairings are drawn up this evening.

Game of Violence

Within the next couple weeks thousands of men and boys thruout the country will be straping on pads, adjusting helmets and lacing cleated shoes for another go at one of the roughest pastimes this nations knows. The football season is about to begin.

For those interested in figures — taking high schools alone, football has far more participants than any other sport. Nation - wide, football last year had 769,200 in the preps as compared to 633,235 for the next most popular, basketball. And this figure takes into account that basketball is offered by almost 6,000 more schools than the grid sport.

We are offereing these numbers only to show that in relative comparison to some other activities, this sometimes brutal sport is less dangerous than some people would believe.

In fact, playing football is much safer than driving a car, according to National Safety Council statistics. Automobile accidents accounted for 28 fatalities per 100,000 people last year, while there were only 1.1 fatalities per every 100,000 football players.

Still, there were 37 fatalities last year which were connected either directly or indirectly to football. And each one was recorded with headlines thruout the nation — and each was engraved on the worried minds of parents whose boys could be next on this tragic list.

We certainly won't try to kid anyone into believing that playing football isn't dangerous for your boy. He can get hurt, and unless conditioning and the mental aspect of the sport is taken seriously, he probably will.

But, we would remind parents that playing the game probably is less dangerous than many other activities your son could be engaged in during the time spent in practice and in actual contests. The statistic above concerning automobiles certainly proves that, and the same could be said of merely walking across the street as pedestrian - auto accidents are more frequent than football injuries on a participation percentage.

There is one encouraging forecast coming from the National Safety Council. The people with the sharp pencils and equally keen minds for numbers agree with many experts that this figure of football fatalities should decline this season.

From those in high schools, there were 15 deaths which were directly attributed to football. Seven others died of mishaps indirectly associated with the sport.

But this number — the highest since official surveys began in 1946 — was considered the crest of a cycle and now the curve of probability should start to fall. And this drop should come without benefit of drastic changes in equipment, according to the National Federation of State High School Associations (NFSHSA).

"We have found no evidence that the unusual number of fatalities last year were caused by equipment and are certain that equipment factors did not enter into these fatalities," Cliff Fagan, executive secretary of NFSHSA said recently.

Mainly because of the lethal look and feel of the plastic helmet, this piece of equipment came in for much criticism last year. But authorities claim the current construction of the authorized helmet is the safest yet and that improvements in the face guard have cut out most of the dangers connected with this as compared to the original design.

There are a few basic rules to follow, however, in preventing injury or fatalities on the football field.

The first concern the schools and especially the coaches, but by our observations, the local supervision is of such high caliber that there should be little worry by the parents. These rules cover proper fit of equipment (which is all - important) and training on the field. This has even been assured somewhat by legislation this year which requires custom-made mouth and tooth guards for all players.

There are a few points which parents are to watch for, and in the process protect their football-playing children.

First, no matter how physically well - qualified your boy is, he shouldn't play unless he really wants to play. This is usually emphasized by the coach, but it should never be disregarded. If the boy enters practice of a game with a half - hearted attitude he is almost sure to be injured.

Put two boys on a field and let them come together for a block or tackle and if one is not aggressive he is apt to be hurt. The boy who is trying with all his ability will probably come out of the game un - marked. And this goes for a practice session as well as the game.

No boy should be pushed into a game of physical contact such as football just to gratify a father who would have him follow his footsteps.

Secondly, it's not enough just wanting to play. The boy must be physically adequate — and this doesn't always mean being large in size. There are some boys who are "tough" enough and yet can walk thru the legs of some giants on the field and probably knock them right on their moleskins.

It is usually required by schools, but all boys should have a thoro physical examination by a doctor before signing up for a team.

Thirdly, even the most physically adequate boy should be continually trying to improve muscle development. This, too, is covered somewhat by most schools, but it can be helped at home by encouraging regular exercise. It has been said — and usually ignored — that the automobile has injured more youngsters legs by lack of excercise than the hurt it has caused by accident.

A few simple calisthenics with emphasis on the neck, shoulder, back and leg muscles can pay big dividends on the playing field.

And fourth, after reporting for practice your boy should be cautioned into conditioning efforts to guard against injury. This includes extra attention toward the lessons of fundamentals of the game. Few players who are schooled and adept in the fundamentals of running, blocking and tackling will be hurt.

And perhaps most important, the player should be drilled into constant alertness on the field. To relax mentally is to relax physically and this is just the time he is prime for serious injury.

We do not want to sound pessimistic about it, but it's no secret that football is a game of contact and sometimes violence.

To be prepared to meet this, however, is training that can be gained in no other way. There are many lessons to be learned on the football field — and none is any greater than the lesson of self - discipline.

The harsh lessons of life are often the ones which are remembered the longest. And there is great enjoyment to be gained from the game of football for those who were meant to play the game.

Patterson-Liston Fight Scheduled For Local Show

Tentative plans between the management of the Broadmoor International Center and the Westland Theaters of Colorado Springs calls for a local showing of the closed - circuit teleship fight between champion ship fight between chamion Floyd Patterson and No. 1 challenger Sonny Liston — termed by many experts to be the "Fight of the Decade."

The fight is scheduled for Sept. 25 in Chicago. The only "live" showing of the bout will be on the closed - circuit as neither radio nor regular TV will carry the fight.

Tickets will go on sale shortly at both the Chief Theater downtown and the Broadmoor International Center.

83 HOMERS IN 46 GAMES

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) — "Home runs actually fly out of this park (D.C. Stadium)" said Baltimore's Jim Gentile before the All-Star game. But no National or American Leaguers hit one. In the first 46 American League games here this season, 83 four-baggers were hit.

West Side Belts Budweiser To Upset Tournament Dope

By JERRY MEGAHAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

West Side Merchants pitcher Jim Lamb suddenly turned into a lion Saturday afternoon. At least he looked that way to favored Budweiser as they watched the stocky right-hander slap them with a three-hitter and a 4-1 loss which sent the Beermen skidding into the loser's bracket of the State Softball Tournament out at Memorial Park.

The Bud team one of the pre-tournament favorites, never had a chance against Lamb, even when Tony Frasca got a freakish inside-the-park home run, which hit the base of the fence in right-center and skittered back toward the infield with the West Side outfield in furious but futile pursuit.

Ron Cadwell and Bob McHam touched him for singles in the third and fourth, but Lamb was ruthless in the clutch and his fielding support was flawless all the way.

The upset - minded Merchants, who lost the City Championship to Bud earlier in the week, took advantage of some wobbly fielding by the Budweiser catcher to punch across two unearned runs in the third.

Dick Classen got aboard on a fielder's choice, advanced to second on a passed ball and ankled on in to third on Jack Catt's single. The Merchants tried a double steal and the catcher threw high over the second baseman's head, with both runners scoring before the center fielder retrieved the ball.

The Beermen came briefly to life in the top of the sixth when Frasca slapped his homer. Lamb got a little shaky and walked the next two batters after working both of them to full counts. He quickly got back on the beam and erased the next three batters on infield outs to squelch Bud's only serious threat of the game.

Dragosh retaliated in the top of the seventh with a towering drive that cleared the fence and the cars in deep center field for the final run of the game.

In the other winner's bracket game, Spencer Sporting Goods staged a four-run rally in the bottom of the sixth to down their fellow Englewoodians, the Minmesota Contractors, 4-3.

Joe Nash of Spencer and Jim Van Wyck of the Contractors locked horns in a pitching duel during the first half of the game but the hitters took over with a vengeance from the fifth inning on.

The Contractors, who hadn't gotten a man beyond first base in the first four stanzas, waited until two were out before they finally got to Nash. Neil Gardner, on via a fielder's choice, moved over to third on Dave Harder's single and scored on a passed ball.

Spencer didn't take it lying down. Stifled by two-hit hurling by Van Wyck up to the sixth, they finally got going in the bottom half of the inning. With one away, Ron Ginn doubled to right field. A passed ball moved him down to third and he scored on Therm Cardwell's single. Carl Floyd followed Cardwell with another single past the shortstop's glove.

Cliff Banks hit a grounder right at the Contractor shortstop who booted the ball, then threw wide at first to send Cardwell across with the tying run. Jim Bartholomew capped it off with a two-run triple into the right field corner and Spencer was in front to stay.

The Contractors came on again with two out in the seventh. After Nelson single home Gardner to cut the margin to one run, the Sporting Goods manager yanked Nash and sent in Al Hockenberger who struck out Andy Anderson on three pitches to end the game.

Dick Paige nearly stole West Side's thunder in an afternoon game in the loser's bracket as he fired a no-hitter to knock Lorigs out of the tournament. Paige walked only three, struck out six in a masterful performance.

Walt Lenz and Warren Goodrich carried the big bats for Exchange. Lenz drove in two runs with a pair of singles and Goodrich came thru for a two - run double.

Exchange's luck ran out in the evening session as they lost a taut 3-1 decision to Budweiser. The Beermen, battling to stay in the tournament after their earlier loss to West Side, got five - hit pitching from iron-man Ron Cadwell, who was rather ill-used by the Merchants in the afternoon session.

It was a complete reversal of the City Championship game of Wednesday night, won by Bud in a wild-and-wooly 15-10 struggle.

Budweiser exploded for three runs in the top of the fourth and then held on grimly. Bob McHam and Jerry Wagoner singled back - to - back and both came home on Jim Daugherty's solid double to left-center. Jack Van Bibber singled Daugherty across and that was all she wrote for Bud. It turned out to be enough.

Loyd Chamberlin of the Bankers and his replacement Paige gave up only four hits but they were all bunched in that climactic fourth.

In the other afternoon game, Bob's Auto of Englewood bounced Bullock Mortuary, also of Englewood, out of the tourney in a tight 7-6 thriller.

Actually the game didn't become tight until the bottom of the seventh when the Mortuary men staged a belated fie - run rally to come within a whisker of dumping Bob's. Joe Kurdgal of Bob's entered the game after the fire broke out and quelled the rally just in time.

Shannon Fair's single and two Bullock errors gave Bob's two runs in the top half of the inning which proved to be the winning margin.

All the Auto team's afternoon heroics were to no avail however. They were eliminated from the running themselves in the evening session, 10 - 3, by the Minnesota Contractors. Lefty Glickman hammered out three doubles and a single in four trips to the plate, single in four trips to the plate, pacing a 10 hit Contractor attack.

The tournament winds up today with two morning games on Fields 3 and 4 at 10:00. Spencer Sporting Goods and West Side tangle in the finals of the winners' bracket on 3 and Bud and the Contractors collide on 4.

The loser in the winners' bracket meets the winners in the losers' bracket, if you follow us, at 3:00 this afternoon and the finals come off at 7:00 this evening.

Offense Big Question In Bronc Grid Future

By GENE MEAKINS
United Press International

DENVER (UPI) — Jack Faulkner is expected to mold a solid defensive unit in his first season as head coach of the Denver Broncos, but the offense poses major problems.

The 36 - year - old rookie head coach will put the emphasis on defense in an attempt to rouse Denver from its American Football League doldrums. Faulkner feels the lack of manpower on offense, especially in the line, will prevent the Broncos from challenging for the Western Division championship.

"I think we'll come up with a good defensive unit," said Faulkner, "but we've got to strengthen our defense. Our biggest problem is depth in all positions.

"But everyone who plays us will know they have been in one heck of a ball game."

The man who developed the San Diego Chargers' defensive unit into one of the best in the AFL under head coach Sid Gillman has his work cut out for him.

While Faulkner's defensive backs at San Diego were setting an all-professional record of 49 pass interceptions a year ago, Denver was intercepting only 26 passes and its opponents were stealing 45 Bronco aerials. Denver dropped 11 of 14 AFL games last season.

Arriving too late on the Denver scene to do much recruiting, Faulkner picked up four AFL veterans by trades — quarterback Hunter Enis, fullback Bo Dickinson, end Bob Scarpitto and safetyman Bob Zeman.

Among the rookie standouts in training are flanker Jerry Tarr, the NCAA champion hurdler from Oregon; end Larry Jordan of Youngstown; linebacker Tom Erlandson of Washington State; cornerbacks Chuck Marshall of Oregon State and John McGeever of Auburn, and three Colorado linemen — Jim Perkins, John Denvir and Bob McCullough.

Faulkner, in an effort to bolster his line, picked up NFL veteran Don Joyce, 250 pounds; Isaac Lassiter, 275, cut from the Los Angeles Rams, and another former NFL star, Jim Doran.

Enis and rookie Gale Weidner of Colorado are trying to oust last season's performers, Frank Tripucka and George Herring, from the quarterback slot. Rich Lucas also may get a chance at the position.

On defense, the line and linebackers are strong positions, and Faulkner believes he will have a good secondary.

The veteran defensive line is bulwarked by tackles Bud McFadin, 270 pounds, and Gordie Holz, 260, and ends John Cash, 240, and Chuck Gavin, 245. Joining Wahoo McDaniel, 240, as linebackers are newcomers Jim Fraser, 240 pound former Wisconsin star, and the 220-pound Erlandson.

Green Bay Whips Bears In Classic

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The Green Bay Packers rallied for four touchdowns and extended their National Football League exhibition victory string to 17 games by defeating the Chicago Bears 35-21 Saturday night in the 13th annual Midwest Shrine Classic.

The Packers were handcuffed in the first two periods and trailed 14-7 at the intermission. But they came out in fired-up fashion in the second half and gave a partisan crowd of 44,326 plenty to cheer about.

Fullback Jim Taylor, held to eight yards rushing as the Packer's bruising ground attack was shackled in the first half, scored two touchdowns in the tremendous comeback. Taylor picked up 111 yards in the stirring rally, banging two for his first score and racing 26 for the other.

Kootenai Wins Arlington Race

CHICAGO (AP) — Kootenai, owned by Barbara Hunter, of Nicholasville, Ky., galloped through the mud at Arlington Park Saturday to win the $55,750 Arlington Matron by 4½ lengths.

Shirley Jones, who won the race a year ago while Kootenai was running fifth as the favorite, finished second in the 1⅛ mile race for fillies and mares.

Fluoresee was third and Times Two was fourth before a crowd of 25,283.

Ex-School Teacher Takes Grand American Trapshoot

VANDALIA, Ohio (AP) — The 63rd Grand American Trapshoot ended Saturday and when the echoes of a million and a half shotgun shells died away a 35-year-old former school teacher stood out as the nation's No.1 gunner.

Bernard Kalapach of Highland, Ind., currently a labor relations supervisor and redorm candidate sor the Lake County Council, broke 968 of the week's 1,000 targets at 16 yards, 300 at handicaps and 100 doubles.

The young Ohioan, however, although he didn't win a title all week, won the all-around championship based on the North American clay target 16-yard event, the Grand American Handicap and the doubles. He broke 388 of the 400 to finish one ahead of Kalapach and veteran Joe Hiestand of Hillsboro, Ohio.

Punkin Flock, a 5-foot-1-inch 117-pound package of shooting skill from Miami, Fla., paced the women in the overall with a 938 score, 10 ahead of Mrs. Marion Harrison of Los Angeles.

Chris Bishop, a 15-year-old high school student from Prairie Village, Kan., cracked 962 of 1,000 for the junior overall title, and his score of 378 of 400 was good for an all-around junior tie with Daryl Drennen of Granville, Ill.

Bob Andrews of Jackson, Miss., won the professional overall for the fifth time in six years by a 956 to 952 margin over Cliff Doughman of Alton, Ill. The same pair tied at 380 for the all-around championship.

The national doubles and Vandalia Handicap events wound up the week-long program Saturday. In the doubles, which set a new entry record of 531, 44-year-old Ned Lilly of Stanton, Mich., was the winner. Gail Pierson, an LSU student from Nachitoches, Lal, led the women with 92; Tommy Vincent of Point Arena, Calif., was top junior with 92; Britt Robinson of Tahoka, Tex., led the sub-juniors (14 and under) with 87, and Andrews led the professionals with 95.

Fritz Nies of Two Rivers, Wis., broke 99 to defeat a field of 880 in the handicap, the closing competition. Susan Hardy of Devon, Pa., paced the women with 97, two ahead of Mrs. Flock, and young Bishop won the junior with 98. The professional race was a tie between R. J. Erickson of Minneapolis and P. J. Smith of Lakewood, Colo. Each broke 90.

Molina Batters Brown, Ex-Champ May Be Done

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — Joe Brown, lightweight champion of the world until four months ago, may be washed up and headed for retirement.

Brown was battered about the ring by the powerful but crude Luis Molina Friday night and lost a unanimous decision to a man that he would have toyed with a year ago.

But Brown differed.

"Observers at ringside tell me my legs look as good as ever," said the former champion after the licking. "I have no intention of retiring now.

"This was my first fight since losing the crown in April. I was rusty. I'm in shape now. I hope I can get another fight right away.

"That will tell me if my legs are gone or not. I don't think they are."

Brown lost the crown to Carlos Ortiz in a bout at Las Vegas, Nev., in April—a battle in which he made a very poor showing. He was no better Friday night.

Molina immediately demanded a shot at the lightweight title after the victory.

"I'm ready for Ortiz now," said the San Jose grocer. "I'd like to fight him right away."

The bout was held in the San Jose Baseball Park and drew a crowd of 6,500. The gate was $32,000. Brown got $9,600 for his beating. Molina is to get 25 per cent of the net.

Both men weighed in at 138 pounds, but Molina was strong as a bull as he chased the faltering Brown around the ring for the full 10 rounds.

"I was a bit cautious at first," said Molina. "I thought he could hit harder. But when I found out he didn't hurt me, then, I just kept rushing him."

Molina shook up the former champion several times with hard, looping rights to the head. On the other hand, Brown never could land solidly against Molina, who was covered up Archie Moore-style as he came in to toss his punches.

Anne Decker Favorite In National

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Anne Quast Decker of Marysville, Wash., sets out Monday in defense of her women's national amateur championship against a classy field that includes all her Curtis Cup teammates, five British stars, and former tennis queen Althea Gibson.

The lush, well-manicured Country Club of Rochester course is the scene of the week-long 62nd women's championship of the U.S. golf Association.

Two other former champions are in the field of 128-long-hitting JoAnne Gunderson and Barbara McIntire. Miss Gunderson won in 1957 and again in 1960, and Miss McIntire in 1959.

The other U.S. Curtis Cup teammates are Phyllis (Tish) Preuss, last year's runner-up, Ann Casey Johnstone, Jean Ashley, Judy Bell, Clifford Ann Creed, and Polly Riley.

From Britain, there will be five Curtis Cuppers — English champion Jean Roberts and Ruth Porter, Frances Smith, Ann Irvin and Sheila Vaughan.

Canada had a 13-woman contingent among the qualifiers.

Althea Gibson, playing in the championship for the first time, has made remarkable advances as a golfer in the two years since she quit while at the peak of women's tennis.

Her weaknesses are her short game, and lack of tournament experience — and both could cost her dearly on the tricky 6,161-yard, par 36-36—72 course.

The last major league pitcher to win 20 games for a last place club was Ned Garver, who compiled a 20-12 record with the St. Louis Browns in 1951.

Bums Blast Mets to Retain Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baltimore swept a day-night doubleheader from the stumbling New York Yankees Saturday, 8-6 and 4-3, making it four in two days over the American League leaders and extending the Yankee loss string to five.

The two losses, however, only cut the Yankee lead to four games over the second-place Los Angeles Angels, who lost their second in as many days, 9-2, to Chicago.

The Los Angeles Dodgers snapped a hitting famine, banging out 15 hits to defeat the New York Mets 8-2 and retain their 2½ game lead over San Francisco. They remained three ahead of Cincinnati.

San Francisco beat Philadelphia 6-1, and Pittsburgh salvaged the night game of a day-night affair at St. Louis 4-0. The Cards won the day game 3-2.

Cincinnati scored an unearned run in the seventh inning to defeat the Houston Colts 7-6 for their 18th victory in the last 21 games. St. Louis edged Pittsburgh 3-2 and Milwaukee trounced the Chicago Cubs 10-1.

In the American League, Minnesota topped Kansas City 3-1, Cleveland defeated Boston 8-6 and Detroit beat Washington 7-5.

The Dodgers blasted four home runs, one by Junior Gilliam, who also had three singles, as they inflicted the 21st defeat upon New York's Roger Craig. The Davis boys, Tommy and Willie, and Ron Fairly also hit homers. Ron Perranoski, who pitched one-hit ball through 4 2-3 innings of relief, was credited with the victory.

Joey Jay, with the help of Jim Brosnan in the eighth, registered his 20th victory for the Reds. Cincinnati scored the winning run in the seventh inning when Frank Robinson reached second base on catcher Hal Smith's passed ball of a third strike and scored on Marty Keough's two-out single. The Reds earlier had taken a 4-0 lead when Keough hit a three-run homer and Chico Cardenas followed with a solo blow.

Julian Javier singled home the run in the ninth inning that broke a 2-2 tie for St. Louis. Pinch hitter Red Schoendisnst opened the cards ninth with a single, went to third on a single by Jim Schaffer and scored when Javier's bad-bounce grounder hit Pittsburgh shortstop Dick Groat in the face. Bob Friend was charged with his 12th defeat and Larry Jackson gained his 12th victory.

A barrage of four home runs supported Warren Spahn's three-hitter as the 41-year-old Milwaukee southpaw registered his sixth straight victory, his 14th of the season and 323rd of his career. Spahn had a no-hitter until the sixth and lost his shutout in the ninth when Dick Bertell led off with a triple and scored on Ken Hubb's two-out single.

Henry Aaron hit his 35th homer for the Braves to extend his hitting streak through 25 consecutive games. Other Milwaukee homers were hit by Amado Samuel, Eddie Mathews and Lee Maye.

Hubbs, the Cubs' second baseman, handled three chances to give him 68 successive errorless games, five short of the major league mark of 73 by Bobby Doerer of the Red Sox in 1948.

The Orioles spotted the Yankees a 4-0 lead, then came roaring back with seven consecutive hits and six runs with two out in the sixth. Pinch hitter Jackie Brandt, Gus Triandos and Dick Williams all hit safely in the inning.

Harmon Killebrew and Zoilo Versalles drove in key runs as the Twins snapped a three-game losing streak against the Athletics. Left-hander Dick Stigman scattered eight KC hits for his ninth victory. He has lost three.

Jerry Kindall hit a two-run homer for Cleveland in the eight inning off relief pitcher Dick Radatz to snap a 6-6 tie with Boston. Barry Latman settled down after the Red Sox had whacked him for five runs in the third inning and went on to register his fifth victory. He has lost 11.

The Tigers, trailing 5-1, scored six times in the eighth inning for their come-from-behind victory. Chico Fernandez homered with two aboard in the inning but it was a two-out single by Dick McAuliffe off relief pitcher Jim Hannan that snapped a 5-5 tie.

The White Sox scored three runs in the first inning, without a hit, and went on to hand the Angels their fourth loss in five starts. Angel starter Bo Belinsky (8-7) walked the first three men he faced, and fielder's choice grounders by Al Smith and Jim Landis drove in two. Belinsky forced in another by hitting Mike Hershberger with a pitch. Smith drove in three runs with his grounder, a double and a homer.

San Jose Wins LL Title On Campbell's No-Hitter

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — Ted Campbell, a 6-foot-1, 210-pound 12-year-old, pitched a no hitter Saturday as San Jose, Calif. won the 16th Little League World Series with a 3-0 victory over Kankakee, Ill.

Two unearned runs and a towering homer by Baughe Takaha accounted for the scoring. At the final out, with both teams breaking out in tears, it was difficult to distinguish the winners from the losers.

A crowd of some 20,000 jammed the scaled-down park and surrounding hillsides for the 6-inning climax of the week-long, eight-team series.

It was the second consecutive victory for a California team. El Cajon won the title last year. Kankakee has been in the series three times without a title.

Campbell, looking like a basketball center at a midget's convention, silenced the Kankakee team with slow breaking pitches. He struck out 11 and walked only 1. Only one ball was hit to the outfield.

Dan Brewster, who had a no-hitter earlier in the series, pitched a strong game for Kankakee, striking out 10 and walking only 1.

But the walk and his own fielding error led to the two unearned runs in the fourth inning. After Dave Schneider walked and went to second on a passed ball, Brewster threw Milton Murata's bouncer into the stands, allowing Schneider to score. Murato scored from second on a single through the box by Tony Riley when the Kankakee catcher muffed the throw from center field.

Red Cuddy smashed a bases loaded home run and led Pitman, N.J. to third place with an 8-5 victory over Monterrey, Mexico.

Home run—Takaha, San Jose.

Pirates Halt Walkout In Rescheduled Games

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Pittsburgh Pirate players called off today a threatened walkout of a scheduled day-night doubleheader in St. Louis. The decision came after pitcher Bob Friend, the Pirates' player representative, conferred with baseball's player advisor, Judge Robert Cannon of Milwaukee.

Judge Cannon advised the Pirates to play the Cardinals after he had talked with National League President Warren Giles. The Pirates agreed to play the games scheduled for 1:30 p.m. this afternoon and 8 p.m. tonight.

The Pirate players objected to the night game, which was rescheduled by the Cardinal management, in agreement with the Pirate management, after Friday night's contest was rained out.

Pittsburgh players, led by Friend and shortstop Dick Groat, objected to playing a day game, then returning for a night game before a Sunday doubleheader. Friend said a similar thing happened in 1960 and Giles ruled in the players' favor.

The players said the management does not have the right to schedule a game the night before a doubleheader. Friend said Judge Cannon told him there is nothing in the rules covering such a situation if it is the team's last visit of the season to that city.

Friend said the Pirates were willing to play an afternoon doubleheader today and again Sunday.

Friend suggested a day game today and a night game Monday, when there is an open date. The players were against a twi-night doubleheader tonight, suggested by Giles.

"That's what we're trying to avoid," Friend said.

Massengale Paces Pack In Oklahoma

By JACK WILKINSON
United Press International

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI)—Muscular Don Massengale, ignoring a tricky north wind and a strong challenge by Gay Brewer Jr., extended his lead to three strokes in the $35,000 Oklahoma City Open Saturday.

Massengale, a 25-year-old former TCU star from Jacksboro, Tex., shot a 2-under par 70 Saturday for a 54-hole total of 207. Still looking for his first win of a three year pro career, Massengale is 9-under par for the tournament.

Brewer, who trailed Massengale by one stroke after 36 holes and caught him in Saturday's front nine, took a double bogie on Quail Creek's treacherous 12th hole and wound up with a par 72, and a 54-hole total of 210. Brewer, a 30-year-old Crystal River, Fla., professional is 6 under par for the tournament.

Johnny Pott of Gulf Hills, Miss., moved into third place with a 212. Pott, the first round co-leader, got a one-under 71 Saturday. Doug Sanders of Ojai, Calif., was fourth, 6 strokes off the pace at 213. He shot a 2-over par 74 Saturday.

The field was trimmed to 61 professionals and 9 amateurs for Sunday's wrapup. It took a score of at least 231 to survive the 54-hole cut, the highest score on the PGA tour this year.

Brewer and Massengale waged a torrid duel for the leadership during Saturday's front nine. Brewer collected two birdies and Massengale one and they were all even at the turn.

Massecgale sank a 40-foot birdie on No. 10 and took the lead again.

Then came the big turning point of the tournament so far. Brewer pulled his tee shot to the left on the 176-yard, par three, 12th hole and landed beside a lake. He chipped over the front of the green and then chipped back. He was down in two a double-bogie five.

Massengale played unerring golf hitting every green. His four birdies were collected on putts of 40, 8, 3 and 1-foot.

Coming in at 214 Saturday was Frank Boynton of Corpus Christie, Tex. he had a 72. One stroke back were Tony Lema, San Leandro, Calif., Gene Littler, Rancho Lanardo, Calif., and Tommy Jacobs, Bermuda Dunes, calif.

Sanders, one of the early co-favorites in the tournament was only two strokes behind the aders after Saturday's round. His three bogies gave him a difficult round of 37-37. He had other troubles too. He fell into a creek on the 15th while helping Terry Dill, Austin, Tex., recover his ball.

T.V. Lark Tops Field in Stake

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — T. V. Lark, the nation's No. 1 grass course racer last season, came from last place to win the $29,300 Philadelphia Turf Handicap by two lengths at Atlantic City Saturday.

William G. Helis, Jr's Hellenic Hero finished second, and Harbor View Farm's Loyla Lady 2nd, the only mare in the mile and a sixteenth test, was third.

T. V. Lark paid $5.80, $3.60 and $3.00. Hellenic Hero returned $4.20 and $3.40 and Loyal Lady 2nd, paid $6.80.

Baltimore Rips Dallas Team, 24-10

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — Baltimore shook off pesky Dallas in the second half Saturday night and romped to a 24-10 National Football League exhibition victory over the Cowboys.

The Colts, held to a 3-3 tie at halftime, finally broke out with some offensive fireworks in the third quarter, scoring three touchdowns and wrapping up the game, their third exhibition victory without a loss.

The breakthrough came suddenly in the third period. Dallas quarterback Eddie LeBaron flipped a pass which Colt defensive halfback Lenny Lyles intercepted on the Dallas 45. Lyles raced untouched for the touchdown.

The next time quarterback Johnny Unitas and Co. got the ball, they marched 48 yards in eight plays for the second touchdown. The counter came on a Unitas to Bob Clemens pass covering 11 yards.

Kay Chandler Wins Golf Medal

The Eisenhower Women's Golf Association recently held its first invitational golf tournament with Kay Chandler of the Air Force Academy's Eisenhower Course reigning as medalist with an 8 and Gladys Randall of Fitzsimons the winnter of the first flight with a low net score of 73.

Over 100 women golfers from the Pikes Peak area participated in the tourney under good weather conditions and enjoyed a buffet luncheon on the Eisenhower Club grounds after the tournament.

Winners of the second thru seventh flights and their low net scores were: Ginny Hanes of Patty Jewett with a 77, Gody Hall of Ft. Carson with another 77, Janet LeCompte of Broadmoor with an 80, Elsie Stubblefield of Eisenhower with a 79, Dorothy Chapman of Canon City with an 82, and LaVerne Hansen of Canon City with a 76.

The Harvard football coaching staff has six members — but none of them went to Harvard. Head coach John Yovicsin and Jim Lenz went to Gettysburg; Roger Robinson and Paul McKee went to Syracuse; Jim Feula attended George Washington; and Bob Gongola went to Illinois.

POSTERS TAKEN

PARAMUS, N.J. (AP) — The "wanted" posters were taking up almost an entire wall in front of the Post Office Building, so Postmaster Harold Sadlock instituted a bulletin board system.

At the top of the board he placed a sign saying it was a crime to take any of the posters.

Why Have a Free Market

We were asked a couple of pertinent questions the other day and possibly some useful end could be served if we repeated them and answered them here.

The first question was, in effect, a series of questions relative to the free market which culminated in this: "Why do you keep talking about the free market when it is something we don't have, never have had, and probably never will have? Why don't you confine yourself to conditions as they exist today? Possibly then some people could get more out of what you say."

We concede at once to the charge that we keep talking about the free market. Also, we will concede that we do not have a free market now.

And, additionally, we will go along with the claim, if it is made, that now that a profoundly specialized economy has come into being, we have not had a chance to test out in practice just how a free market would behave.

There have been instances in history prior to the industrial revolution when a free market did exist. Obviously, such a market was not a highly specialized market. Equally obvious is the fact that such a market was never in existence over a large territory but existed principally in small areas with vigorous and self-reliant peoples.

Nonetheless, economic science has made such progress in the past three or four decades that it can be predicted with some hope for accuracy, just what would happen were we to have a free market in even so elaborate and intricate an economy as the one which presently abides in the United States.

The reason we keep talking about a free market is that only with a free market can we have any hope of understanding just what economics is, and how it works. An impaired market, which is the reality that confronts us, is not as good a condition as can be obtained.

The basic difference between a free market and a controlled market is that in the former, the customer is king. In the latter, the politicians make the decisions which are binding upon the customers.

Thus, in a free market, freedom is not only possible, it is the rule by means of which the market functions. And it will be seen at once by anyone of perception that when persons are free to make their own decisions and to exchange their energies as they see fit, according to their own concepts of what is good or bad for them, then we will have a situation which will be most conducive to the greatest good for the greatest number.

This is why we favor a free market over any and all kinds of partial imitations.

All of us are customers. Only when all of us are free to make the choices we think best for ourselves, can we fulfill our own potentials and, also, can we learn by the errors we may make from time to time, just what we must not do so that we do not inhibit our own potentials.

A controlled market, be it partially or totally controlled, must by its nature favor some persons at the expense of other persons. Thus, a rigged or controlled market is not free and cannot possibly provide as much in the way of satisfactions for all of us as customers. Tho it may please some persons more than a free market would, it must follow that it will DISPLEASE others more than a free market would.

Thus, only the free market is a truly fair and equitable market.

We continue to talk about a free market because we believe that people do not understand how good the free market is. Most people are fearful of the free market, just as most people are partially fearful of freedom itself.

They want freedom for themselves, just as they want a free market in which to act as customers. But they are not familiar with the way the free market works and hence they fear what others would do in a condition of freedom.

So, they seek to have laws passed which will inhibit the market place in their own favor. By so doing, they invariably place unnecessary burdens on many others to some degree. And in the end, these same burdens placed on others prevent the others from satisfying the wants and desires of those who have originally moved to impair the market place.

Knowledge removes fear. It is the unknown that terrifies. Today in these United States, the free market is largely unknown, and hence is largely the source of fear in many places. We strive to remove that fear by expressing knowledge.

Difficulties

One of the real rewards which comes as a result of doing something very difficult, is that others will now be ready to trust you to do something else, even more dificult.

Is a Free Market Harmful

In the foregoing editorial we mentioned a pair of questions that have recently been asked of us. We commented on the first question and follow here with the second.

"Most people tend to believe that the closer we come to a free market, the worse conditions would become. How do we move toward a free market and at the same time avoid the terrible conditions which are usually pictured as occurring in that transitional period when we move from a condition of a protected market into a condition of a totally free market?"

The first thing to keep in mind is this.

The present market place is one that has been invaded by the government. It has provided certain "protected" areas wherein persons can operate with impunity even if they break market place rules. It has provided other places where there is little or no "protection" as such.

This means, if one analyzes the situation, that in our present distorted market place, some persons experience favorable conditions they have not earned by applying market place rules. They are getting more than their actions warrant.

In other words, customers are patronizing them who are not getting all they could get if the market were free. To a very real degree, then, the customers of these "protected" areas in the market place are being imposed upon. They still choose to purchase in these areas, because their choices have been delimited by government action. Were such a delimiting process eliminated, then other entrepreneurs would have an opportunity to enter this same area and to compete according to market place rules by seeking to better satisfy the demands of customers.

Examples are all about us but we will mention only three. Farmers now operate in a "protected" market. By such protection the farmer does not have to produce for the consumers. Rather, the farmer produces the kind of produce the government will subsidize. The result is a monstrous imbalance in the farming area. Many crops are raised for which there is little or no present market. Mountains of surplus accrue. The surplus is purchased with tax money which all of us provide. Many other things which customers might want are produced in very meager supply, if at all.

All customers are compelled, by the taxing power, to pay for this imbalance. The result is that many farmers are no longer free men. They have been purchased by their government and act only as an extension of the government. Nor are the farmers happy with the situation.

The same condition pertains in certain manufacturing industries which have obtained tariff "protection." Such firms are now put upon by foreign competitors. And all of us have been taxed to retain this "protected" market to the benefit of certain manufacturers, but to the disadvantage of all customers.

Customers (and all of us are in this category) are required to pay the taxes which support tariff procedures. We pay more for the goods we buy in this country than would be necessary, for similar goods are available at lower prices were we free to purchase them.

And to make the matter a double crime, we are taxed meanwhile to provide the foreign aid money whereby foreign producers have entered into the competitive arena with our own manufacturers.

A third example is specific. It relates to the handling of the flow of first class letters. The government has a monopoly in this area. This means that all of us are called upon to underwrite the losses of the governmental postal system, which alone last year racked up a loss of more than $900 million. Meanwhile, entrepreneurs, were they free to compete, could have and would have entered into this field and would certainly have provided better service at lower costs. All of us are the losers.

If all of these "protections" were to be dropped, what would happen? Undoubtedly those who have been winning unjustified "benefits" would no longer receive them. This might bring a hardship upon them. True. But the accompanying benefit would be to ALL customers. And all of us are customers. Thus, what might turn out to be a hardship in one direction (for the favored few) would turn out to be a marvelous advantage to all of us as customers.

Fortunately, we do not have to "plan" a free market. All we have to do is to stop preventing a free market from emerging. If we stop calling on the government to regulate the market, in time we will have a free market for the natural forces in the economy will see to it.

Thus, in sum, everyone will benefit, tho a few (as producers) may be injured. But even they, as customers, will share in the benefits.

Thus, a free market is not to be feared but, rather, should be welcomed. And we should work toward the day of an unprotected market place. Only in such instance can the greatest good for the greatest number be realized.

ROBERT ALLEN

Allen-Scott Report

Kennedy's Acute Concern

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy carefully weighed political, as well as business, factors in determining the timing and nature of a tax cut.

That is pointedly being made clear in his frequent White House "skull sessions" on this thorny decision.

Graphically illustrative of the President's acute concern over the political aspects of the nation's lagging economy is the question he tossed into the discussion at one unannounced conference on cutting taxes.

In addition to members of the Cabinet, the President's Council of Economic Advisers, and several prominent economists, also present was Representative Wilbur Mills, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee that has constitutional jurisdiction over tax legislation.

Walter Heller, head of the Economic Advisers, presented some new statistics on key business indices indicating little likelihood of a general improvement in business in the remaining half of the year.

He foresaw no immediate recession, but did caution of the possibility of a "gradual deterioration" in the economy.

DELPHIC ORACLE

It was at this point that the President asked his politics-loaded question.

"How do you think people are likely to react in the fall election," he said, "if the economy should continue to slow down and the danger of a recession became pronounced?"

Without exception, all present were emphatic that measures must be taken to avert this.

"If business prospects have not definitely bettered by fall," one Cabinet member told the President, "that is bound to have adverse political effect. That is what happened to the Democrats in 1938, when the Roosevelt administration experienced an economic upset only two years after his unprecedented 1936 re-election. And the same thing occurred to the Republicans in 1958, when business slumped in the Eisenhower administration after his landslide victory in 1956."

The President made no reply, but left no doubt he got the point.

Also significantly, Representative Mills indicated he was not as adamant against a tax cut this year as had been widely reported. The influential Arkansan stated:

(1) He believes the "right kind" of tax cut can be a powerful stimulus to the economy; (2) if a "case can be made" that business is on a downward trend and a "strong shot in the arm" is advisable to reverse that trend, Mills is ready to support it.

Another "shot in the arm" discussed at this White House meeting was an advance payment of veterans' life insurance dividends — as the President ordered shortly after taking office last year.

Budget Director David Bell estimated such an advance payment would come to at least $200 million, most of which would immediately go for consumer spending.

POLITICALS

Democratic National Chairman John Bailey has given some cheering word to the Senate and House Democratic Campaign Committees. He has promised to give each $250,000 for the coming fall election battle — the most financial help they have gotten from the National Committee in many years. This money is in addition to the $10,000 a month the two committees have been receiving from the National Committee since last year. Already, Bailey has given each committee around $50,000 of the amount he has promised them. The funds are coming from the $100 and $250-a-plate dinners held earlier this year. . .

Senator William Proxmire, D-Wis., finally did show up at a Washington fund-raising party for Governor Gaylord Nelson's campaign to unseat Republican Senator Alexander Wiley. This party was given by Senator Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., who has agreed to campaign for Nelson. In sending out invitations, Kefauver urged guests to "bring your checkbook." Apparently Proxmire did not. Accompanied by his wife, he popped in for a brief round of handshaking, and then left without contributing.

Senator J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., is a Rhodes Scholar, one-time president of his state's university, and chairman of the influental Foreign Relations Committee. But altho a world-known statesman, he is carefully not stressing that in his re-election campaign. To his constituents, Fulbright is emphasizing he is just plain "Bill Fulbright." That is the way he strikingly captions and signs a newsletter he is now issuing to his home folks. . .Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, who was Democratic national committeewoman for the District of Columbia for 35 years, and minister to Norway in the Roosevelt administration, was 92 years old July 21. Known to her friends as "Daisy," Mrs. Harriman was born and bred in the aristocratic tradition, but has been an unswerving Democrat all her mature life. She was a leader in the suffragist cause, and still takes an active interest in politics.

GOP POLITICALS

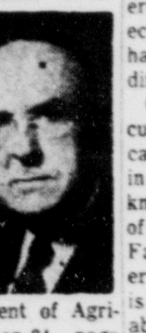
Former Governor Alf Landon, 1936 Republican presidential candidate, is going to bat for Defense Secretary McNamara in his controversial efforts to enforce unification of the armed services. Last spring, Landon strongly endorsed President Kennedy's trade liberalization program and swung most of Kansas' Republican members of Congress behind it. Now Landon has offered to arrange a meeting for McNamara in Topeka to present his views on eliminating waste and duplication in the military services. Wrote Landon to McNamara, "You are planning talks about the country on your policy and program. I will be glad to assist in any way in arranging a meeting worthy of that occasion.". . .

The Conservative Party in New York State has organized 87 clubs, with at least one in each of the 62 counties. The Conservative Party consists of both Democrats and Republicans, chiefly the latter, who are strongly critical of Governor Nelson Rockefeller and Senator Jacob Javits, up for re-election this year. The party gives every indication of being well-financed.

It's Up to You

Blueprint for Control

By H. E. KERSHNER, L.H.D.



Secretary Freeman's agricultural program is being called a scheme for socialization. President Shuman of the American Farm Bureau Federation says it "will lead to agricultural dictatorship administered by the Socialists in Washington."

The planning staff of the Department of Agriculture has drawn up an 84-page blueprint for reshaping the entire agricultural economy of our country.

It is proposed, not only to control prices and output, but to return vast areas of our country to forest and grass land, eliminate thousands of so-called inefficient farms, finance the education of farm boys and older farmers for non-farm employment and, in general, substitute government control for the free farming which has produced so abundantly in our country.

The scheme also has far-reaching repercussions in non-farm areas. Textile mills would get a substantial subsidy when buying cotton. It is expected that the prices of meat and other foodstuffs would be a little higher for self-supporting people, but such commodities would be supplied to the "needy" somewhat cheaper. The food stamp plan would be expanded tenfold and by the end of five years would include four million people at a cost of $360 million.

The "needy" abroad would get about $2 billion worth of "food aid" annually, some of it moving thru the United Nations.

At the same time, plans are being pushed in Washington to destroy free enterprise in the United States drug industry and subject that area of our economy to very close federal control. It would destroy the incentive to spend tens of millions of dollars in research for new products and the perfection of new techniques that would make the whole drug industry more useful to the American people.

These two current developments make clear that the American people are facing an immediate choice between a plunge into government-directed and managed economy or socialism on the one hand, and a prompt turn in the direction of freedom on the other.

Government planning in agriculture is now costing the American people about $6 billion a year in direct subsidies, plus an unknown amount in increased cost of food and fiber. The American Farm Bureau, larger than all other farm organizations combined, is resolutely championing the abolition of government control of farming and the return of that great and important industry to the area of free enterprise. It grew great under freedom and it can re-win its greatness, including prosperity for our farmers, if the dead hand of bureaucracy be removed from its throat.

INDIVIDUAL EFFORT

To the Editor:

Getting 100 average Americans to sit down together in a room is not too difficult — even tho it is to listen to a speech against communism — if you offer them refreshments afterward. The difficult thing is to get those 100 people to agree on something — just about anything.

Oddly, this very thing has been tried and there is one proposition that draws almost unanimous agreement. These 100 average Americans, when asked if they favor communism, roar in unison, "No!" But then upon being asked what communism is, they give nearly 100 different answers. Worse than that, they demonstrate that, while professing strong personal opposition to communism, they are actively embracing one or more phases of it in their daily lives.

For example, the farmers among them do not believe in communism, but they feel that since labor and big business are getting subsidies it is no more than right that farmers should be given a government payment for cutting down on their crop acreage. Or if they live in dry country, they think it proper that the government should reclaim land, by irrigation, at public expense, and make it available to farmers there.

The non-farmers in the group see the fallacy in such reasoning. But when it is suggested to them that our public schools are run in accord with the tenets of the communist system, they throw up their hands in holy horror.

When such a state of confusion exists, amounting to complete blindness concerning what communism is at the points where it now touches our own lives, it suggests that some of the things we learned in school were not presented with sufficient sharpness. A lot of us need to go back to school and unlearn some of the distorted opinions we picked up on the first go-around. And it can be done. I know, because I did it.

A number of schools are springing up around the country just for the purpose of teaching people what communism really is and what freedom is, and that there is a difference between the two. By some fortunate quirk of fate, my attention was directed to one of these schools — Freedom School, near Colorado Springs, Colorado — with the result that I recently completed a two-week seminar there. I found it to be unquestionably the greatest educational experience of my life. Never before had I received so much enlightenment in such a short time.

The conclusion I came away with was that we Americans need to quit expanding our government and, instead, start expanding freedom.

When a farmer wants to cut a patch of weeds, the first thing he does is to put a sharp sickle in his mowing machine. Most people are fighting communism like a farmer driving his tractor thru a weed patch with no sickle in the mower. It makes a big show of activity that way, but it does not cut anything.

We can cut something — cut our overgrown government down to size — if we will keep constantly in mind our significance as individuals.

There is only one way I can be effective in shrinking government and that is by refusing to depend on government, refusing to take its bribes and goodies and handouts. There is only one way I can be sure of expanding freedom and that is by acting more freely myself, by following the individual path in my daily actions instead of the collective highway.

REAL CONCERN

To the Editor:

Our real concern should be over what government cannot do for us, not so much over what government can do for us.

The government cannot fight a war, it must draft us to do the fighting. The government cannot pay a bill, until it borrows or taxes the money from us. Government cannot run the economy successfully, see what has happen in Red China and Red Russia when governments tried.

Only able to give what it takes, never able to control without wiping out private control, gaining power only by denying rights of the individuals, we should think long and hard before becoming indebted and beholden to government.

Not restrained to the status of a public servant, government soon assumes the position of master and when government is master, totalitarianism exists.

Our Dramatic Arts Ruined by Unions

By RUSSELL KIRK

Why do the great majority of Americans never see a play or attend an opera? Why do we have comparatively flourishing theaters only in Manhattan and those, most of the time, offering shoddy goods? Why do great cities like Boston, Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland get only an occasional road-show, or an amateur dramatic ptrformance? Why does Washington D.C., the capital of the greatest state in the world, have only one regular theater?

Among several reasons for this lamentable condition, a big one is the extortionate power of the unions which exert a stranglehold on the big-city stage productions. Miss Martha Graham's company of dancers, for instance, has barely managed to scrimp and scamp along for decades: most of the price of tickets to see the Graham company dance goes to a lounging set of stagehands, in every town.

The principal villains are the Theatrical Protective Union Number One and the American Federation of Musicians. The first is a closed union to which the fortunate are admitted not thru competence, but thru influence. The second, going to an opposite extreme, requires neither skill nor competence, but tries to get in as many people as possible for the sake of their dues.

A considerable number of bartenders, clerks, cab drivers, gardeners, electricians and plumbers are members of the Federation of Musicians, tho they may never play a note. And both these organizations are so extortionate that they have killed the goose which laid the golden eggs. "Live" music is nearly extinct in America, and the American theater is mostly Manhattan entertainment for a group of Brooklyn housewives.

Some examples of what is wrong: whatever number of stagehands the Theatrical Protective Union bosses think desirable, any producer must hire. The union bases its demand not on the number technically adequate, but on how many seats the theater has and what the prospective take might be. Sometimes a show using only two actors is compelled to hire 19 stagehands.

Of these supernumeraries, the head prop man gets $166.59 a week, a winch-turner is entitled to $132.08 a week and, with luck, stagehands can earn as much as $350 a week. This would be wealth beyond the dreams of avarice for the average actor. And the price of tickets goes up accordingly.

"The Sound of Music" employed a cast of 41 — and 43 stagehands. The Mike Nichols-Elaine May show was ordered to hire 15 stagehands; when a special curtain was added, 4 more stagehands were assigned, at an added cost of $753.32 a week. When the Broadway musical "Irma la Douce" shifted to a bigger theater, 243 seats had to be kept vacant every night — for, had they been offered for sale, the Musicians' Union would have demanded that the weekly musical payroll increase by $1,600. How long, O Muses, how long?

Law of the Land

By GEORGE BOARDMAN, Ph.D.

From time to time politicians resort to a statement which is always designed to end a discussion of the merits of a particular bill or piece of legislation. I would like here to quote to you from a letter written to a good friend by Senator Carl Hayden of Arizona on September 6, 1960 setting forth his opinion in connection with international agreements.

It states in part, "Congress can, as it has done, by a majority vote enact a law to abrogate any treaty, international agreement or protocol."

We are inclined to agree with that statement made by Senator Hayden and believe it is a good point for concerned Americans to keep in mind when their elected representatives attempt to go with the standard cliche which insists that a fact accomplished should also be a fact accepted. Nothing could be further from the truth.

According to the senator, Congress can, by a majority vote, enact a law to abrogate any treaty, international agreement or protocol and it should get about the business of doing exactly that, three at a time.

This is a mighty fine time to remember that Congress can also, by a majority vote, enact a law to abrogate or nullify or render inactive any of the laws passed by previous Congresses and that Congress may also act to abrogate and nullify laws which have been created by executive decree, directive and interdepartmental interpretation of other laws.

It is worthy of note that the United States Congress for the past thirty years has been singularly inactive in correcting the multitude of vitally important mistakes it has made and this seems to be typical of government at every level. When government makes a mistake, it spends any necessary amount of time and money to try to cover up the error instead of admitting the mistake and erasing it from the books promptly.

I can think of no greater failing of government than its reluctance to either admit mistakes of judgment, errors of omission or commission, or to take the necessary steps to correct such mistakes without adding to the tremendous burden already imposed upon the taxpayers of this country.

Only yesterday we had a six-hour conversation with a candidate for public office and in the course of the conversation he remarked that as an attorney he found mighty few clients who wanted to see justice done and that for the most part they were seeking special privilege rather than justice. He said, "I suppose this comes from the growing unwillingness of all of the people to accept the responsibility for their own actions."

I asked him, "How do you feel about government following the same course?" and his response was immediate and vehement. He said, "It has probably been the actions of government which have inspired people to seek special privilege rather than justice. If government were quick to admit the error of its ways and to accept the responsibility for its mistakes and take steps to eradicate the effects of such mistakes immediately, the people would be provided with an illustration which might inspire them to do likewise."

We then spoke about government's set rule of attempting to cover up mistakes because publicity would be bad for the prestige of government and he said many clients and their associates take the same attitude. For instance, several pharmacists might hope that the error of a colleague could be covered up because exposure of the error to public gaze might injure the prestige of the pharmaceutical profession. In the clothing profession a lady's dress might shrink to an embarrassing size if subjected to a little rainfall and manufacturers of ladies' garments would prefer that such occurrences be hushed up because publicity might be bad for the garment-making industry. He remarked that the situation was exactly like the old army game, in which unpleasant happenings should be covered up for the good of the service.

We were in complete agreement that attempts to cover up mistakes are not in the best interest of any service, any industry, any profession or any political entity.

This candidate reported an occurrence which depressed him greatly. He was talking to a voter who told him that his father and his grandfather and his great grandfather belonged to a certain political party and that he always voted the straight ticket. He added that he was only concerned with getting what he could out of the present situation and that he intended to get it while the getting is good.

The candidate said, "I believe I am smarter than you, and particularly in my own profession. I can have you evicted from your place of business and put out in the street in the pouring rain within a matter of thirty days and you will not be able to stop me."

The merchant stated that he owned his stock and fixtures and other appurtenances to his business, and the attorney reminded him that much of his stock was floored on a monthly payment basis, that he probably owed some money here or there or the other place and that all he would have to do would be to go around and buy up all the merchant's debts with the idea of putting him out of business if they were not paid immediately. At that time the merchant stated that this was something different, and the candidate reminded him that politics, as the merchant forgot, was a double-edged sword. If one man could be separated from his property for the benefit of the merchant, then the merchant's property must be in jeopardy for eventually it would become his turn to be separated from his property for the benefit of someone else. About that time the merchant became troubled and decided to sit down for a while and discuss the political mess which plagues the country with this congressional candidate.

Towards the last part of our conversation we asked the candidate this question. Since not a single evil which has been created by government has been alleviated by government during the past thirty years or more, why do you believe it is possible to go to Washington and correct any of the evils which exist and which are being added to week after week? The candidate replied, "I have never thought about it in just that way, but I suppose I am continuing to hope that honest men can remain honest if they go to Washington and that what politicians have done, other politicians can undo."

In our own village we are seeing an example of politicians at work. An incumbent failed to carry this district in the last election, and at present county road crews are busily at work repairing the streets which do not need repairing and generally making work for local residents, who are being solicited by another politician so that they may jump on the gravy train about a month before election time.

The world in which we live is not so strange, but what do you think of the people?

A Wise King Of Long Ago

By LEWIS LOVE
From "The Freeman"
Irvington-on-Hudson, N.Y.

In a distant land — there once lived a just and wise old king, who had observed and learned much about his people and about himself and about his power. His people were free to go their way. They were free to petition their king and seek his wisdom in their affairs. But they did not fear the king or his soldiers, for his rule granted no privilege to one that was not a privilege to all equally.

There came one day to the royal court an artisan, a mason and a beggar who was lame.

"O great and wise king," they cried, "we are sorely troubled with our plight." "I," said the artisan, "make many useful goods. I use great skill and labor long, and yet when I am finished, the people will not pay my price."

"And I," said the mason, "am a layer of stone for houses and fine walls, yet I am idle, for no one gives me work."

"I am a poor lame beggar," said the third man, "who seeks alms from those who pass, as they find it in their hearts to do so, but alms are so few as to be of great concern lest I perish."

"I can see that your troubles are great," consoled the king, "and what would you ask of me?"

Then they spoke as a group, the artisan, the mason, and the beggar who was lame: "Your power is very great, our king, and you can make the people see the folly of their ways and make them aid us in our troubles."

"Perhaps," said the king, "perhaps my power is great, but I must use it wisely or it shall be lost." And he called to the captain of his guard.

"Bring forth three swords," he commanded, "one for each of these men, and instruct them in their use. These three shall go forth in the land and compel those who will not voluntarily deal with them to obey their command."

"No! No!" the three men called out, "this we did not ask. We are men of honor. We could not set upon our fellow man to compel him to our will. This we cannot do It is you, O king, who must use the power."

"You ask me to do that which you would not do because of honor?" questioned the king. "Is honor one thing to a beggar and another to a king? I, too, am an honorable man, and that which is dishonorable for you will never be less dishonorable for your king, nor will it be honorable for you to do through your ruler that which is morally wrong for you to do yourself."

Rymond R. Johnson, 120 Rose Dr., Security, and Mike Ludwig Jr., recently of 841 N. 31st St. but now of Santa Monica, Calif., are the recipients of U.S. patent No. 3,042,950 dated July 10 for their "Bowling Alley Conditioning Machine."

Johnson is employed as pinsetter mechanic and maintenance man at the new Circle Lanes which will open soon at North Circle Drive and Galley Road. Ludwig was formerly owner of the Bowl - Mor Lanes, 31 W. Las Vegas St.

The steps necessary in reconditioning the surface of a bowling alley include cleaning, oiling, heating and buffing. Johnson and Ludwig felt that a single machine, capable of performing all these functions, would be a desirable innovation.

In devising such a machine, they have provided a mechanism which is supported on wheels that permit it to be propelled to and from the alley, but which drops out of contact with the alley during the conditioning operation.

The contrivance includes three properly positioned rotary cleaning and polishing brushes which are adjustable individually toward and away from the alley to produce different finishing effects.

The apparatus is powered by a suitable motor and incluudes means for spraying conditioning oil on the alley ahead of the brushes, and also drying lamps, guiding members and a hanle assembly upon which readily accessible control devices are mounted.

The machine is of compact and relatively simple construction, efficient and effective in operation and easy to use and control. In use, it is brought to the foul line of the alley; its guide members are adjusted; tis floor - engaging wheels are moved out of contact with the alley surface, and the rotary brushes are brought into contact with such surface so that, upon rotation, they serve, in addition to their cleaning and buffing action, as the means for propelling the machine along the alley.

The spraying mechanism is turned on to apply the conditioning oil, and the drying lamps may also be turned on to heat the alley surface, liquefy the sprayed oil and promote a better cleaning action.

The machine moves along the alley and when it nears the pin deck, the oil spray is stopped, the drying lamps are turned oil, and the dirction of rotation of the brushes is reversed so that the machine backs itself along the alley while the brushes, in the meantime, buff the surface and complete the job.

The application for this patent, which consists of nine claims of originality, was filed Sept. 30, 1960.

Johnson has also invented an easy clip ball wheel cleaner, a gear box drip pan to protect carpet in pinsetter, a clip for pit curtain rod and cable to replace pit cushion lift rod.

Ludwig moved last week to Santa Monica.

Eggheads Detest Pressure of Tests Heaped on Teens

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Back to school, your youngster will be exposed to internal and external tests.

The internal ones measure whether he's mastered his lessons. They originate within the school. Usually, his teacher makes them up.

The external ones, compiled outside the school, measure intelligence quotient, ability to learn and scholastic achievement.

The scores on these external standardized tests help to determine whether your child rates a scholarship or college entrance.

How good are these standardized tests? And are they fair? Is it right to place so much stock in the results?

These questions among others were considered earlier this year by a joint committee of the American Association of School Administrators, the Council of Chief State School Officers, and the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

—Function limited. The tests measure the quantity of knowledge, not the quolity. They measure only the student's knowledge in a narrow area.

—Tests can't measure innate intelligence. That's why "only recently educators stopped referring to certain widely-used tests as 'intelligence' tests and began calling them, properly, 'scholastic aptitude tests'."

— Too narrow. Tests leave out a range of students who do not fit the test pattern, such as the culturally deprived children whose "different" background isn't provided for in the tests. Another group the tests can't reach is made up of creative students whose talent goes beyond giving just the one, correct answer demanded by the test.

—Too little understood. The tests are not infallible. No standardized instrument can measure traits not susceptible to quantification; yet, scores made on these tests are critical for many pupils and their families. They often determine what the future holds.

—Too influential. For scholarships and college entrance, what is tested becomes of overwhelming importance, and what is not tested becomes unimportant. Some teachers, therefore, base their teaching on the tests. It is a serious mistake to think of the secondary school as nothing more than a training ground for college and university students.

The committee noted that such emphasis fails to take into account the fact that graduation from high school is the end of formal education for many students.

The tendency of the tests, then, is to downgrade the nonacademic part of the curriculum and this can easily lead to imbalance in schools.

The committee recommended that school administrators evaluate each test before recommending its adoption; that using scores on a single test as a measure of the educational quality be stopped; that scholarship tests be administered without charge; that students be given the option to refuse to take external scholarship tests; that scores not be used to compare students, schools or states; and that tax - supported scholarships be provided in nonacademic fields, too.

Stock Market Rings Up Second Straight Weekly Gain

By ED MORSE
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market reckoned with some conflicting influences last week, then pulled ahead for a fair gain, crossing an important recovery milestone as it advanced.

Lively trading interest boosted volume to 20,493,852 shares from 18,808,440 in the previous week. It was the largest total since the week ended July 14 when 23,073,-480 shares changed hands.

In a resumption of the "summer rally," the market rang up its second straight weekly rise as the Dow Jones industrial average gained 3.72 at 613.74.

Aerospace issues and automotive stocks responded to bullish reports while the steels backed away as their "profit squeeze" was underlined by the news that Republic Steel had cut its dividend to 50 cents from 75 cents.

Most of the space age issues were stimulated by news about the huge Titan III rocket project, for which Martin-Marietta was named the prime contractor. Many other companies will undoubtedly find themselves working on subcontracts.

What gave the market its biggest shot-in-the-arm this week, however, was the General Motors prediction that 1963 would be just as good a year for the auto industry as 1962 and that seven million cars would be sold.

This optimism from the nation's greatest manufacturing firm, following by a couple of days a forecast by Ford Motor that, although 1963 would be a "good year," new car sales would be likely to decline by 5 to 10 per cent, gave the stock market a lot of gas.

Responding to the GM forecast, motors paced a vigorous rally which finished the job of erasing all the market's losses since the big plunge of "Black Monday," May 28. By the close on Wednesday, stock averages were back where they stood on May 24.

The Dow Jones industrial average nudged ahead a bit further on Thursday, putting this indicator at 616.00, its top for the week. This was still a long way below the historic high of 734.91 reached Dec. 13, 1961, but it was way above this year's closing low of 535.76 reached June 26.

As the week ended, there was mild profit taking in the extremely slow and cautious Friday session. Some market analysts believed that the market had now penetrated into a vulnerable area where a heavy supply of stock was likely to be offered for sale.

As the market rose in the big Wednesday session, Wall Streeters had additional cheer from the performance of International Business Machines which finally managed to buck through the resistance level of 400 in its price chart. IBM closed the week at 409, for a net gain of 19½.

A number of speculative favorites also got a play, American Photocopy rising 2¼, Polaroid 5¾, and Zenith 6.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks this week advanced 3.5 to 226.4.

The five most active issues this week on the New York Stock Exchange were:

Martin-Marietta, up ¼ at 24⅜ on 459,000 shares; Litton Industries, up 4⅞ at 62⅜; Studebaker, up 1 at 8; Brunswick, up ⅛ at 21; and Korvette, up 3¾ at 46⅛.

Fuel Cell Means Efficient Way To Produce Power

By EDWARD M. MCMANUS

TULSA (UPI) — Researchers long have looked for an economical and efficient way to produce power.

They may have found it in the fuel cell.

A breakthrough in development of such a device could have great impact on the oil industry, which would provide the fuel—probably natural gas, kerosene or distillate fuel oil.

Humble Oil and Refg. Co., a leader in fuel cell research, predicts the cell may have wide eventual use in industry, in the home and even in space. Humble experts are working under a $380,-000 contract from the U.S. Army Signal Research and Development Laboratory.

Essentially, the idea of the fuel cell is to mix certain chemicals to produce electricity without combustion, noise or smoke. The experimental fuel cell resembles a convention storage battery, but consumes fuel like an engine.

Oxygen goes into one side of the cell and a companion fuel flows into the other. The two fuels react to set up a current of electricity.

In conventional batteries, the chemicals which produce electricity must be recharged and they eventually become exhausted. But the fuel cell gets a constant supply of fresh chemicals, so it can generate electricity continuously and indefinitely.

Some day, it might provide a single source of energy for the home—to heat, cool, light it and power its electrical appliances. Power transmission lines would be replaced by a pipeline or tank feeding fuel to a package of cells.

It also is potentially practical for central power generation stations and small power plants in hospitals, factories and on farms. The scientists are studying the use of the fuel cell to run tractors, buses, locomotives and ships.

At present, the cell will operate only with the more expensive fuels. If the fuel cost can be reduced, development will expand. Eventually, a biochemical fuel cell might run on such organic matter as corn cobs, peanut shells or sawdust.

The efficiency of the experimental fuel cell is remarkable. Efficiency ratios are expected to reach about 70 per cent in practical usage, compared with 40 per cent in most electric generating plants and only 15 to 25 per cent in automobile engines.

Expert Advises Studying 'Trees' In Market 'Forest'

By JACK LEFLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Some market analysts are advising investors to look beyond the popular averages in appraising the current possibilities of the stock market.

While the Dow Jones industrial average—a 30-stock index which broadly interprets the market picture—has regained more than one-third of the slump that climaxed in late July, they feel that other issues are in more favorable positions.

Kenneth Ward of Hayden, Stone & Co. says that while comments on the averages are always important and necessary in determining price trends, especially the broader ones, all averages are composed of stocks that are in different stages of their own price cycles.

He suggests that since the present market is selective and discriminating, it seems more important to study the height and health of individual trees in the forest than to worry about the broad status of the forest itself.

"Right now," Ward says, "the market has none of the characteristic signs of price action of an important top. Too many stocks of good yield and investment quality are selling not far from their recent lows.

"Near term resistance on the Dow Jones industrial average is indicated around 620-625 and about 124-126 on the rail average, with support apparent at 595-600 and 119-120, respectively. Meanwhile, a search for stocks of companies whose earnings and growth prospects should be continued."

The brokerage firm, Thomson & McKinnon, expects the market's current upswing to carry further in the present business setting before any corrections of consequence occur.

Denver Real Estate Buys Shopping Center

The Denver Real Estate Investment Assn., which has a number of stockholders in the Pikes Peak Region, and the Arthur E. Johnson Foundation have bought the Lakeside Shopping Center, West 44th Avenue and Harland Street, Denver, for a reported $8 million.

Each organization will hold a 50 per cent interest in the center.

Included in the transaction were the 47-store integrated shopping center and the 62-acre site. Selling the property was Gerri Von Frellick, president of Markets Inc., owner and developer of the center.

The Denver Real Estate Investment Assn. was organized in May, 1961, and since then has acquired several residential and commercial properties and office buildings.

Included in its holdings are the 187-unit Country Club Gardens apartment complete at South Downing St. and East Ellsworth Avenue and the Perl-Mack Shopping Center in Denver.

Ralph B. Mayo, Denver CPA, is executive trustee for the investment association. Other trustees are William Grant, Walter Koch, John J. Sullivan and E. Warren Willard.

In addition to Johnson, widely known oil man and financier, other trustees of the foundation are Helen K. Johnson, Gerald R. Hillyard, Barbara Johnson Hillyard, Gilbert J. Mueller and Judge Philip B. Gilliam.

Atlas Corporation Becoming Mining Industrial Concern

NEW YORK (AP)—Atlas Corp. has announced an overhaul of its organization setup to implement conversion from an investment company to a mining and industrial concern.

Last month, the Securities and Exchange Commission cleared the way for the new steps by removing Atlas from SEC supervision as an investment company.

David A. Stretch, president, notified stockholders of these principal moves:

1. Merger of Titeflex, Inc., and the Hidden Splendor Mining Co., both former Atlas subsidiaries.
2. Acquisition and merger into Atlas of Uranium Reduction Co., operator of uranium mills.
3. Acquisition of the Mi Vida Mine, owned by Charles A Steen, through a related transaction involving liquidation of the Utex Exploration Co.
4. Borrowing of $23.5 million, secured by a mortgage and deed of trust, from New York, San Francisco and Salt Lake City banks.

In June, Atlas sold controlling interest in Northeast Airlines, a heavy money-loser in late years, to Hughes Tool Co. Completeion of the transaction is pending.

Stretch said proceeds from the loan paid in part for stock of Uranium Reduction and Utex, discharge of existing bank indebtedness of Atlas and Titeflex, maker of flexible metal hoses, coverage of principal and interest due next Jan. 1 on debentures issued by a predecessor company and redemption of outstanding preferred stock of Hidden Splendor.

"Henceforth, management will devote its major efforts to development and expansion of the company's natural resources, industrial and service activities, rather than investments," Stretch said.

He said the reshuffle would relieve Atlas of burdensome obligations, clear the way for substantial earnings and provide future income tax credits.

The 477,888 preferred shares of Hidden Splendor were redeemed for $11.72 a share, the fixed redemption price of $11.55 plus accrued dividends.

Hidden Splendor common, in the amount of 380,982 shares not owned by Atlas, was converted on a one for one basis to $6 principal 5 per cent convertible debentures of Atlas, initially convertible at $2.60 a share. The issue comes due in 1977.

Stretch said the total purchase price of Uranium Reduction and the Mi Vida Mine aggregated $21,342,340, of which $9,390,000 remains payable in installments through May 1966.

The bank loans, bearing 5½ per cent interest, are repayable in 42 consecutive monthly installments starting Jan. 31, 1963.

Business Better In Men's Wear Market Place

NEW YORK (UPI)—If Bernard L. Salesky is a prophet, then the possibility some men lost their shirts in the stock market a few months ago failed to scare off the American man's desire for new attire this year.

Sales is chairman of the board of Hat Corpn., of America, and his brother, Charles, is president. Their company is one of the nation's foremost producers of hats, including three of the most widely known brands, and of men's clothing generally.

"I think the men's wear business this fall is bound to be better," he said this week while discussing industry prospects for the balance of 1962.

"The purchasing power and demand is here. People are expecting a tax cut sooner or later — I feel we've got to have one to loosen up purchasing power — and that idea is going to help.

"And the men's wear people generally have widened their vision and are venturing into fields they have not tried before. In the past there have been signs the industry was suffering from myopia."

All in all, he said, he looked for industry sales to be up about 7 per cent this fall over last year's. "At the start of the year the industry had hoped for a 10 per cent rise, figured it would be 5 — and seven 7 looks good," he said.

Encouraging Signs Appear On Economic Horizon

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The economic panorama took on somewhat brighter hues the past week but still was marred by smudges.

Rises by business indicators, a prediction of banner sales of automobiles in 1963, and an advancing stock market provided encouraging signs.

A laggard steel industry, beset by a profit squeeze, and spotty performances in scattered segments of the business world were a drag.

Statistics indicated the trend of the economy was predominantly upward in July. With reports on 30 barometers measuring various sectors of the economy still incomplete, the Census Bureau said 10 were up, 6 were down, and 1 was unchanged. In June, 15 of the 24 reported were down, 8 were up, and 1 was unchanged.

These indicators chart such things as housing starts, average factory work week, Standard & Poor's stock market index, retail sales, durable goods orders, initial claims for unemployment insurance, and prices of industrial materials.

Business men were cheered by the statement of Semon E. Knudsen, vice president of General Motors Corp., the world's largest manufacturing company, that in his opinion there will be no recession in 1963. He predicted that the automobile industry will sell 7 million cars this year and next year.

Responding to good news, the stock market staged a vigorous rally and climbed above the level at which it had stood before the Black Monday crash of May 28 the worst fall since 1929.

The aerospace issues paced the advance on word that the Defense Department had awarded the prime contract for the Titan III space-launching vehicle to Martin-Marietta Co. The entire Titan III project is expected to cost $500 million. The market leadership passed to motor shares after Knudsen's statement.

The market surge was temporarily interrupted when steel issues fell on news that Republic Steel Corp. had sliced its quarterly dividend from 75 cents to 50 cents.

T. F. Patton, Republic president said his company "like other companies in the steel industry, has been caught in a squeeze between incessantly rising labor and other costs on the one hand and conditions which have prevented the company from obtaining relief through higher prices for its products on the other."

That the scars from the price battle between the Kennedy administration and steel producers remain deep also was evident in a statement by Avery C. Adams, chairman of Jones & Laughlin Steel Co.

He cited President Kennedy's statement in September that the steel industry can look forward to good profits, and said: "History has already proven that the President's statement with respect to the steel industry's potential profis, based as it was upon the theoretical and academic recommendations of his Council of Economic Advisers, was not in accord with the facts."

The steel industry increased its production the past week but still lagged at about 55.5 per cent of capacity. The output of 1,616,000 tons was up 2.4 per cent from the previous week. Orders indicated that improvement in September will be slight because automakers still have big stocks and will be working them off.

Automobile production still was very low—about 7,000 passenger cars—as the changeover to 1963 models moved slowly. American Motors and Ford joined Chrysler in turning out 1963s.

The railroads and labor were locked in battle on two fronts. Labor emphasized the likely loss of thousands of jobs in the proposed merger of the New York Central and Pennsylvania Railroads in cross-examination of James M. Symes, Pennsylvania chairman, at an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing.

Stock shares sold during the week totaled 20,493,852 shares, compared with 18,808,440 the previous week and 17,221,714 the comparable week of last year. Bond sales amounted to $23,501,-000 par value, up from the $22,222,000 of the previous week but below the $25,631,000 of the comparable 1961 week.

Perkins Receives Franchises for Chrysler, Imperial

Perkins Motor Co. Inc., Chrysler product dealer here for 17 years, has been granted franchises for Chrysler and Imperial cars by Gordon James, assistant regional manager of Kansas City.

Perkins also will continue to sell Plymouths and Valiants.

Perkins receive the franchises after a thoro investigation for the past seven or eight months.

"Chrysler went over our organization with a fine toothed comb and made a thoro study of our total overall operation before granting us this franchise, Will Perkins, owners of Perkins Motor, said.

"We were the largest Plymouth and Valiant dealers in the state this year, volume - wise. And I expect the franchise is in recognition of this and past sales and service records we have made."

"We've had Plymouth and DeSoto since 1945 and now Valiant. We've been here since 1941.

"We will be handling everything with out present facilities at 115 N. Cascade.

"We are making changes over now for the handling of sales have a highly qualified staff in the service department, men who have been trained in the servicing of Chrysler products. We are very proud of the new appointment and will continue to give the same fine service as usual."

Kutsche Says Environment Exerts Greater Influence

The environment of the southern Appalachian Mountains apparently has a greater influence on both the Cherokee Indians and whites living in the region than do their cultural traditions, Dr. R. Paul Kutsche Jr., assistant professor of anthropology at Colorado College, said in a paper prepared for delivery Saturday for the 35th International Congress of Americanists, meeting in Mexico City.

Several hundred anthropologists from Canada, Mexico, the United States and from South America and European countries are attending the biannual convention.

Speaking of the whites in the southern Appalachian region, the Colorado College anthropologist noted that "their material culture and economy has been almost identical to that of the Cherokee, including the delight which the males among them take in hunting and fishing."

An authority on the North American Indian, Professor Kutsche joined the faculty at the independent college of arts and sciences in Colorado Springs in 1959.

Dr. Kutsche said research he has been conducting in the region "indicates that the immediate environment, excluding cultural history, has a powerful limiting or liberating effect on the individual's intellectual perception — a greater influence than major cultural tradition itself."

"At this point in the analysis of the data, without as yet investigating the nature of any difference in scores between the three populations, we can already conclude that the perception of men isolated deeply in the Appalachian Mountains are far more like each other than either is like the perceptions of white collar workers in an industrial metropolis," he said.

But, he said, "it is noteworthy that although they are rather similar in their intellectual perception, they are not similar in indices of emotional life.

"Prestige among the Cherokees is attached to the man who is rigidly controlled and who leads an extremely introverted life with his attention engrossed in the ritual of medical practice, while prestige in the white goes to the outwardly aggressive man, even if he may have violent episodes in his youthful history," Professor Kutsche said.

"Whites let loose all of their aggressive emotions directly and consciously, and there is apparently none left for symbolic expression," the Colorado College anthropologist continued.

"Cherokee males keep such a tight lid on their emotions that they are not conscious of a need for aggressive expression, and it emerges indirectly in the form of ink blot pictures," he told the scholars. "Patterns of expression of violence exhibit the same difference between the two societies.

"The Cherokee devalues violence and seldom shows it except when drunk, and even then prefers to ambush his enemy; the White highly values violence and talks about it constantly both drunk and sober, and prefers to face his enemy with a challenge before striking him," Professor Kutsche noted.

Two Local Marines Thru Basic Training

The two Marines will now be transferred to nearby Camp Pendleton to undergo four weeks of intensive individual combat instruction.

George and Shook will then be given 20-day leaves. After this leave, George will report to San Diego to attend Marine Corps Sea School. He volunteered for this special assignment and was the only applicant accepted from his training unit of 75 men.

Shook will report after his leave to Communications and Electronics Battalion, San Diego, for instruction in the Radio-Telegraphers School.

George, a 1962 graduate of Widefield High School, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl F. George of 125 Ely St., Security. Shook's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Earl E. Shook of 1012 N. Walnut St. He was graduated last spring from Palmer High School.

They enlisted together May 31. Both had been members of the active Marine Corps Reserve since the previous fall.

Cadet Robert W. Broyles Thru ROTC Camp

Cadet Robert W. Broyles, 21, son of Mrs. Mildred M. Broyles, 1011 E. St. Vrain St., recently completed six weeks of training at the Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) summer camp at Ft. Riley, Kan.

Cadet Broyles, who was graduated from Colorado Springs High School in 1959, is active in the ROTC program at Colorado College.

Volunteers Often Play 'Hard to Get,' Naylor Says

"From Ability to Responsibility" was the title of the keynote address made Saturday at the west central regional convention of the International Association of Y's Men's Clubs being held at the Cliff House in Manitou Springs.

Speaking at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Naylor began his talk by listing as a hazard the fact that people have the temptation to play hard to get when asked to do a volunteer job.

He said people will often times use their family or their job as a "front" or an excuse when really all they want to do is play golf or engage in some other activity. Naylor added, however, that for every person who uses this way out, another will do the job with the same limitations.

He cited as another example the fact that sometimes people develop an "oversized ego."

"Because we've done something successful, we get the impression that everything we're going to try will be successful," Naylor said. "We quit asking questions and specialize in giving answers."

He gave as a third hazard a person's proneness to overreach himself. "We accept every job that comes along and pretty soon take false satisfaction in mediocre results."

A tendency to become provincial was listed as a fourth hazard by the speaker who pointed out that people get too interested in their own local situations instead of looking at the worldwide front.

As positive things involved in the transfer from ability to responsibility, Naylor said a person should be high in his purpose, explaining that he should have a sound philosophy and be able to observe the world view.

Secondly, one should be wide in one's interest, to be aware of the need in the world, the speaker continued, and third, to be narrow in one's involvement.

Concerning the last named, Naylor said "It is better to do a truly significant job in one area than a superficial job in ten."

Denver, Springs Not Anxious to See Fair Moved

Denver and Colorado Springs Chamber of Commerce managers say their organizations are not anxious to see the Colorado State Fair moved from Pueblo.

Former Gov. Dan Thornton suggested last week in a talk at the current fair that the exposition might be improved by transferring to another location such as Colorado Springs or Denver.

Shelby Harper of the Denver Chamber said Friday he had no doubt that if a resolution were put ot the Denver directors they would vote not to move the fair from Pueblo but rather to encourage its improvement in Pueblo. Clay Banta of the Colorado Springs chamber said "that goes for me too."

Tommy Thomson, manager of the Pueblo chamber, said his directors will meet next Wednesday to review this year's fair and offer suggestions for improvements to the fair's management. "And with the publicity we've had this week," Thomson said, "we expect to get action."

More than 40 head of beef cattle, swine and sheep were auctioned Friday at the fair's fat stock sale.

The high bids on the top selling beef steer, fat lamb and market hog were all made by Norm Stamp of Longmont.

He paid $50 per hundred for the 800-pound angus steer owned by Loretta Mathias of Greeley. He bought the champion southdown lamb at $125 per hundred and paid $100 per hundred for the champion 4-H pig, a hampshire owned by Mike Hurley of Brighton.

Soviets Bear Watching On Cuban Cold Front

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press News Analyst

There is an axiom about Soviet communism which goes: When the Russians are making a great deal of noise in one area, it is wise to be on guard elsewhere.

The Russians are making an enormous noise about Berlin. The situation unquestionably is full of danger. But what are they doing elsewhere?

Persistent reports that thousands of Soviet personnel have landed in Cuba cannot be shrugged off, even if the imports are just technicians bent on attempting to rescue the Cuban economy.

Some reports insist the visitors in reality are Soviet troops. One report from inside Cuba says the visitors—anywhere from 12,000 to 15,000 men—wear not official military uniforms, but white tunics and blue trousers, just enough to distinguish them from ordinary civilian advisers.

One rumor is that the large majority of the new arrivals from the U.S.S.R. are not ethnic Russians but Mongolians from the eastern Soviet Union. If this is true, it calls to mind the use of Mongolian troops in eastern Europe as a colonial force to nail down European real estate for Moscow. Mongols are easily distinguished and do not mix with local populations. There is little danger that such missionaries might lose sight of their mission.

Dr. Carlos Marquez Sterling, a prominent Cuban refugee whose father once was ambassador to the United States, tells of a smuggled letter from Cuba saying that under cover of darkness nine Soviet ships put in at various Cuban ports and unloaded 12,000 men who are in reality Soviet troops. It says these men have been seen parading along Havana's famed Prado.

Dr. Sterling was a member of the Cuban Congress, a colleague of the late Sen. Eduardo Chibas who gave his life in the battle against the Batista dictatorship. Dr. Sterling was a professor of economics in Havana University where he knew Fidel Castro as a student. He says his information is that Castro gradually is being pushed aside and that Soviet colonialists are taking over.

Dr. Sterling says he is informed the Soviet Union landed technicians, too, in recent weeks, but that these debarked openly in daylight. The others, he says, went ashore secretly, by night, from nine Soviet ships.

If this is so, the United States faces a grave situation. The unchallenged presence of any Soviet troops in a country of the Western Hemisphere could mean the death of the Monroe Doctrine. It would suggest that the United States might have to tell the Cubans to bar outsiders—or have it done for them. On both Berlin and Cuba, the questions always crop up, sooner or later: Where and when is a line to be drawn?

Summer Reopens Memories About Winter Tragedy

LEADVILLE, Colo. (UPI)—Remember Bill and Barbara Adamich?

You may have read about them last winter—the only survivors of a thundering avalanche of snow which killed seven other persons below Colorado's highest mountain, 14,431-foot Mt. Elbert.

"We have each other," Mrs. Adamich said. She and her husband don't have much else.

Their sons, Billy, 8, and Mike, 7, were buried alive in the snowslide. Adamich's 84-year-old mother, who lived 20 miles from them at Leadville, died two weeks later. The shock was too much for her.

Mrs. Adamich estimated the couple lost $60,000 in property when the avalanche crashed through their house and destroyed several vehicles and equipment on their small ranch. They had only $10,000 insurance.

"There's nothing else you can do," Mrs. Adamich said. "You've just got to go on, and make the best of what you've got to do."

But it has not been easy, especially this summer. "We've missed the youngsters terribly," the 32-year-old mother said. "We were so close to them each summer."

The couple moved into the home of Adamich's mother, Frances, after several days in the Leadville Hospital last January. Frances Adamich died a few days later.

"She loved her grandchildren," Barbara explained simply.

Mrs. Adamich said she and her husband both were "black and blue from head to toe" after the accident, but now have recovered fully. The snowslide struck early in the morning when the family was in bed—tearing their small frame house to bits, and hurling them into the snow.

It took searchers two days to find their younger boy.

The five members of the G. L. Shelton family, in the house next door, were killed.

"We're getting over the shock," she said. "It takes a good deal of time to get accustomed to it. But eventually you get over it."

The memory of the children remains. "You can always start over financially — material-wise," she said. "But we miss those boys."

Calcium is constructive and one of the most important of the nutritional essentials required in the growth and repair of body tissues. Soviets Probe Weaknesses Thru Offensive in Berlin

By JERRY GREENE

WASHINGTON — Rep. Wright Patman, the sometimes New Dealer from Texas, came thundering out of his small Business Committee room with the second barrel of his shotgun attack on the nation's awesome tax-free foundations. He caught only the edge of the target, and that with a piece of mattress hair wadding, no buckshot.

The Democrat made public the second section of an "interim report" begun a month ago when, for the umpteenth time, a congressional group sought to stir up interest in the mushrooming foundations whose tax-exempt status costs everybody else more money.

All at the same time, Patman tried to draw a bead on the Ford Foundation, Howard Hughes, the John A. Hartford Foundation and the Carnegie Corp. of New York, among a dozen or so others.

The congressman, who has been calling futilely for a suspension of tax exemptions for foundations pending a cleanup, even bypassed the one line of action so obviously open. He might have demanded that President Kennedy specifically incorporate a foundation tax reform section in the something-for-everybody tax cut bill he has promised in January.

Patman had some interesting cases to prove his contention that the foundations have reached "massive, undreamed-of proportions" and now is the time for an "agonizing appraisal" by Congress on how to control them.

On the surface, something seems to be more than slightly out of kilter when the 534 tax exempt foundations the House committee studied — out of 45,000 enjoying the privilege in the U.S. — can pile up assets of $10.2 billion and keep on growing.

The Congressman found it confusing that the government was trying to halt the drain on U.S. gold reserves by prohibiting dependents from accompanying troops sent overseas, while in 1961 the Ford Foundation "exported" $33 million.

The way Patman tells it, these enormously wealthy foundations have a way of getting into everything else other than the charitable and educational areas for which they win tax exemption.

They lend money, "millions of dollars," to railroads and airlines and cosmetic manufacturers and real estate dealers. They have "loaned money to their creators, traded stock and property with them, paid for insurance policies on the life of the donor" and indulged in fiddling with foreign policy through loans to other governments.

Patman cries because the uncounted billion of dollars float around virtually without public supervision, without paying a dime to the government. All the while the money furnishes harsh competition to his beloved small businesses.

These things, of course, have been going on for 50 years or more, and they have grown like the rest of the country. Because of their professed noble purpose and proved good-works through aid to colleges and universities, museums, libraries and culture generally, it would seem a fair bet the situation won't be changed much.

Now, none but the uninformed and lonely heart would ever accuse Patman of crawling into a political bed with a conservative. But in his slugging at the massive foundations, he has come close to doing so.

There is, of course, a vast difference in motive and approach.

Eight years ago, the late Rep. B. Carroll Reece (R-Tenn.), a devoted friend and follower of the late Sen. Robert Taft, sought to take on the foundations in what could and should have been a worthy battle.

Reece wanted to determine how the vast wealth of the tax-free foundations was being used to finance educational and sociological schemes, which were designed, or permitted, to undermine the basic doctrines of this government.

The bleeding hearts screamed this investigation to death. They wanted no part of a probe intended to unmask subtle use of great money to promote the welfare state. Norman Dodd, New York banker who was research director for the Reece Committee, held it was "incredible" that the favored foundations be permitted a tax-free status to "finance ideas incompatible with the fundamental concepts of the Constitution."

FADED FAST FROM MEMORY

Reece's efforts to lift the foundation lids were quickly forgotten. That could be a pity when one recalls that just two weeks ago in Seattle, W. H. Ferry, vice president of the Ford Foundation's Fund for the Republic, cut loose with such a diatribe about anti-Communist labors of FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover that Attorney General Bobby Kennedy, himself no mossback, cried shame.

For some odd reason, very few conservatives—and there are some who aren't wealthy—seem to be front-runners in these foundations.

Patman doesn't concern himself with this vital phase of the foundation operations, preferring to dwell on tax evasion and unfair competition.

But the untold billions these 45,000 tax loopholes control amount to incalculable power in the economy and in the government itself. Just a small amount of attention to this in the Kennedy January bill might make up all the reductions he has in mind for the average taxpayer and perhaps help people like Ferry to mind their manners.

The Land-Grant Act of 1862 granted the states 30,000 acres of public land for each member of Congress to help higher education.

Sen. Proxmire Hits Business Credit Plan in Tax Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., triggered the opening Senate shot Saturday against President Kennedy's embattled tax revision bill with a sharp attack on the proposed $1 billion credit for business.

He called it a "tax gimmick" and a "subsidy" that many businessmen don't even want.

The liberal Democrat's sharply worded floor speech foreshadowed a prolonged fight over the complex, 390-page bill which the Senate is expected to debate all of next week.

The investment credit, designed to spur business outlays for new machinery and equipment, is the key feature of the much-amended bill. It is the only tax relief Congress is likely to enact this year.

A powerful array of conservative and liberal senators has lined up in opposition to the administration-endorsed provision. Finance Committee Chairman Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., has served notice he will offer an amendment to strike it from the bill.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., told UPI he expected deate to last at least throuh next week. He declined, however, to give a leadership position on a host of pending amendments.

"The President proposes, the Congress disposes," he said, indicating that the leadership will not make its position known in advance of actual voting.

Proxmire said that by blanketing utilities in for a share of the proposed investment credit, the bill would "simply waste taxpayer's money." He said American Telephone & Telegraph Co. would benefit to the tune of $75 million a year.

He added that to AT&T's everlasting credit, their spokesmen testified against the proposal during finance committee hearings. "It's stupid," he declared, "to give an unwanted tax break to a utility whose profits are strictly regulated."

How to Keep Well

INFLAMED EYE

Most of us have had an inflamed eye at some time during life. It was annoying but subsided usually after instilling eyedrops or applying an ophthalmic ointment.

Most ophtahamologists have seen the more serious aspects of red eye and warn against neglect or self-treatment. This is understandable because acute glaucoma, iritis, and a tiny piece of steel in the eye can produce as much redness as does an ordinary cold.

Conjunctivitis is the most common cause of inflamed eye. This is a viral or bacterial infection of the membrane covering the inside of the lids and the white of the eye. In many instances, the victim or someone in the family has had a cold or other respiratory infection.

The eye burns and feels scratchy, as though there were something in it. Secretions form on the lashes and the lids usually stick together in the morning. This is the type of infection that ointments containing a broad spectrum antibiotic. Preparations with penicillin are avoided because of the possibility of developing an allergy to this drug.

Acute glaucoma also leads to inflamed eye but with an entirely different penalty for neglect. In this condition, pressure within the eyeball increases and the retina can be damaged unless this tension is reduced.

Glaucoma is suspected when redness is preceded by periods of blurring of vision and seeing halos around lights. In addition, the eye is painful, especially when sitting in a dimly lighted room watching TV or a movie. Pain may be so severe the individual becomes nauseated and vomits. This combination of symptoms requires immediate care to prevent blindness.

The iris is the colored shutter surrounding the pupil. Inflammation of this structure — iritis, or anterior uveitis — leads to redness along the circular iris. Pain is so deepseated and distress from light (photophobia) so great, the sufferer knows the conditions is more serious than ordinary conjunctivitis.

A speck that lands on the eye also irritates but most victims recall the incident and the physician does his best to locate the source of trouble as soon as possible. The longer the foreign body remains, the more extensive the inflammation.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

Fashion Wigs to Open Shop Here This Week

Fashion Wigs Inc. will open this week in the location of the former Lorna Lockwood Shop at the Antlers Hotel.

The shop will be run by Mrs. Opal Webber of Dallas, Tex., and Santa Fe, N.M. Mrs. Webber, in partnership with Lila Stewart of Santa Fe and Oklahoma City, owns two other wig shops in Santa Fe and Albuquerque and in November, will open shops in Palm Springs, Las Vegas and Scottsdale, Ariz.

Mrs. Webber plans to move to Colorado Springs shortly. Her husband, O. K. Webber, is owner of the Industrial Coatings and Supply Co. of Hobbs and Santa Fe, and the couple will divide their time between Colorado Springs and Scottsdale.

They have three children, Sherri Alexander, 22, who recently got her master's degree from Texas University; Ronald Beevers, 19, a sophomore at the University of Arizona in Flagstaff, and Bradley, 12, who will enter a boarding school in Wichita, Kan. this fall.

Fashion Wigs Inc. was organized two months ago. The company bought into a wig factory in Paris which makes the wigs she will sell from 100 per cent English hair.

Mrs. Webber explained that the age of the person from which the hair comes is important and said the hair for her wigs comes from English women between the ages of 12 and 28 years. "This makes a wig have a longer life," she said.

She further explained that the wigs are made from "virgin" hair, that is, hair that has never been permanented or tinted in its lifetime. In purchasing a wig, she advised looking for quality, age of hair and thickness.

No two of her wigs will be alike, she said, and will come in various shades such as champagne, red, blonde, gray and white.

All members of her staff have been trained in fitting wigs and all have had training in hair styling. Mrs. Webber was formerly a hair stylist for Neiman Marcus in Dallas.

The Colorado Springs branch of Fashion Wigs Inc. will be furnished in traditional style with a purple, white and gold color scheme.

Surveys Become Accepted Part Of Daily Life

By SAM DAWSON

AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Surveys are fast becoming an accepted part of everyone's life. The making of them is a business in itself. They tell where we were, where we are, where we think we're going.

Some businessmen complain they spend so much time filling out questionnaires about what they are doing or intend to do that they don't have time to do it.

But for good or ill, some surveys now affect thinking and planning—and acting. Others (so wide is the field of late) are laughed off as trivial or self-serving.

The taking of surveys is a widespread occupation, in both high and low places. The government, for example does it.

Federal departments ask businessmen how much they plan to spend for plant and equipment. They ask consumers how much they think they're going to spend, for what things, and how they feel about the chances of meeting the bills thus incurred.

Private organizations — educational, industrial, researching, publishing—plow this same field. The effect of these surveys on business thinking and planning is considerable. The surveys thus become both a tool for the economists and a stimulant or deterrent to the economy.

How much consumers trim their own actions to their reading of survey findings is still a question. But it's apparent that many stock traders watch them closely for tips on the business cycle.

Many industrial groups survey the findings and plans of their members. Some aim at gaining information, some at influencing thinking or action.

Individual companies come up with surveys of their own, and their findings often predictably favorable to the future of their products or services.

A common byproduct of a survey is a trend. The company or group or publicity agent making the survey finds that its inquiries all point in one direction—usually a trend spelling profit for the one who made, or paid for, the survey.

The hope is that once a trend is sighted and trumpeted, enough others will want to conform to it to make that trend really profitable.

Originally surveys were mostly designed to gather facts or figures or percentages. There are many refinements of this general idea.

One is called motivational. That is, consumers (or businessmen) are questioned closely to see why they do this or that, buy this product instead of another. Going a step further the designers of such probings say they can detect subconscious reasons that affect sales, product popularity, or a corporation's image.

Subdivisions of such inquiries are almost infinite. Color experts use them to determine package and product designs. The variations of scent become subjects for consultations in directors' boardrooms. Consumers' ideas about taste, or lack of it, are eagerly sought by makers of beverages.

Sex is very much part of the surveying gambit. A recent example: A survey has been made of what young couples think of bucket seats in cars as opposed to the old style seats built for togetherness.

The finding: The honeymoon is over when the couple says it sees nothing wrong with bucket seats.

Harold E. Dragoo Vice President of Investment Firm

Harold E. Dragoo, a member of the Colorado Springs fire department for the last nine years, has resigned to accept the executive vice presidency of the Great Western Investment Company.

The announcement was made by Samuel J. Pacheco, president of the firm. The company makes first mortgage loans on commercial and residential properties and is a loan agent for the Golden Savings and Loan Association of Golden.

The local firm has been formed since the first of the year and has offices at 301 S. Weber St., with the parent firm in operation since 1910.

Dragoo is no newcomer to the real estate and investment business. He has lived in the region about 12 years, making this his home after his tour of duty at Ft. Carson. In that time, he has worked with real estate firms in addition to his position with the fire department.

EVERY NOW AND THEN

we bend our efforts at building a new home, largely as a positive means of keeping in touch with development costs for our professional work of real estate appraisals.

So our present home is now on the market. It is a pleasant place of distinctive design and plan that fits its environment, view, and climate.

It has exceptional yard privacy that needs only minimum care, a 3-walled lanai, 3 bedrooms, 3 baths, recreation room, den - studio.

Our neighborhood is of the finest people, good homes, moderate taxes; excelling in quiet, convenience to sports and recreation, and quick access to all areas of the community. We plan our next home next door.

During 3 years we have developed a fully established yard, and the property has received the numerous after - thought touches of decor and livability added to a home from the experience of living in it.

Final TB Skin Tests Given Tuesday at Fort

Children between the ages of six months and 12 years are eligible for this service. No appointments are necessary but the testing is done at 9 a.m. and at 1 p.m. in Room 122 of the Carson hospital.

Test analyses will be made 48 hours later.

Children taking the test must be accompanied by one parent and must have their immunization with them.

Those who show a resistance to TB are then given chest X-rays to determine the amount of resistance.

All parents are urged by the pediatric and preventive medicine sections to be sure their children participate in the program.

Carson and other military dependents living in the region are eligible.

Mrs. Mary Trujillo Declared Sane

PUEBLO (UPI) — Mrs. Mary Alice Trujillo, 52, charged with shooting her husband to death in 1954 and found legally insane, has been released from the Colorado State Hospital, in Pueblo after being declared restored to reason.

Denver Dist. Judge Gerald McAuliffe issued the declaration.

Mrs. Trujillo had been undergoing treatment at the institution since her trial on charges of slaying Frank Trujillo, March 30, 1954. Trujillo was shot in the head as he lay in bed. His wife admitted the killing, pleaded insanity and was found legally insane.

Two state psychiatrists testified before Judge McAuliffe that Mrs. Trujillo had recovered and was no longer a menace to society.

VOTES WANTED

FRENCH LICK, Ind. — President Kennedy, telephoning Midwest Democratic leaders to get out the vote in their states:

"It is vitally important that we win these states back. Time and again we have seen important matters which benefit the entire United States won or lost in the House or Senate by one or two votes. So every district is important."

GATHERING DATA—Colorado College political science Prof. Glenn E. Brooks interviews Col. Charles A. Willoughby, El Paso County Civil Defense Director, to gather material for a study he is conducting concerning the federal government's plan for a post-attack government to be employed in the event of a nuclear war. Dr. Brooks is interviewing civil defense officials thruout Colorado. (Knutson-Bowers Photo)

Post-Attack Government Plan Studied by Brooks

A Colorado College political scientist is interviewing state and local defense officials in an effort to find out how the federal government plan for a post-attack government really would work in the event of a nuclear catastrophe.

The project is being conducted by Dr. Glenn E. Brooks, assistant professor of political science at the independent college of arts and sciences, under a college grant in public affairs.

"The study is not concerned with the form of government during the actual attack period," Professor Brooks said. "It covers the period when government starts to function again--the reconstruction government.

"This is just one example of the ways the nuclear age is forcing us to think in different dimensions," he said.

In thinking about possible post attack governments, federal officials now favor the idea of using the existing framework rather than attempting to impose a completely different organization, Dr Brooks said.

He noted that President Kennedy's Office of Emergency Planning now is developing a master plan for post attack stabilization and recuperation.

This plan would involve management of resources, and the maintainance of order. Under this plan, government agencies would continue to function as before. However, they would be assigned additional responsibilities. The agriculture department, for example, would be responsible for all food supplies.

Pro. Brooks said local and state governments would have to wait several weeks before they could expect to receive any assistance from federal agencies.

He now is interviewing state and local officials who have civil defense responsibilities and doing research in civil defense literature. The project, which is expected to continue into the winter, will take him throughout Colorado

"In recent years political scientists have learned a great about how governments make important decisions," Brooks said. "It is interesting to ask whether our knowledge of decision-making can turn up any weaknesses in the national plan for making decisions after a nuclear attack. Can we really develop a scientific plan for reconstruction, or will we just have to make our decisions as we go along? I know that a number of county officials are very skeptical about civil defense seminars that try to teach administrators--in advance--how to run their governments after a nuclear war.

"I want to examine the general national theory of post attack government in terms of what we know about nuclear technology, behavior in disaster, and the actual state of preparation at state and local levels," the Colorado College professor explained.

He thinks there may be several complicating factors, such as communications, and the gulf between the untested theory and actual practice.

"Also, the role of the military in the event of such a catastrophy is not clear."Brooks said.

"One of the questions I want to find the answer to is: can our present techniques of government be applied?" he said.

Brooks, who earned his Ph. D. at Johns Hopkins University, joined the faculty at colorado College in 1960. He previously taught at the University of Texas and at Johns Hopkins.

ARMY AVIATOR — Maj. Homer O. Robbins, 1002 Venus Dr., Colorado Springs, newly assigned to Army Air Defense Command Headquarters, is serving as a staff pilot in the Army Aviation Section. Soviets Set Off Two More Tests In Atmosphere

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission reported that the Soviet Union set off two nuclear tests in the atmosphere Saturday.

One blast was in the Novaya Zemlya area in the arctic and the other in the Semipalatinsk test site in central Siberia.

The arctic explosion was described as having a force of several megatons, equal to the blast of several millions tons of TNT.

The AEC said the one in Siberia was of low yield. This would indicate a blast equivalent of less than 20,000 tons of TNT.

The AEC said both explosions occurred early Saturday.

LONDON (AP)—The first part of a three-ton shipment of rat poison has been flown to Sudan to help combat a rat plague, officials said. The rats have destroyed part of the millet crop in the Gezira area at the confluence of the blue and white Niles.

State Guard Units Officially Released

DENVER (UPI)—The Colorado Air National Guard has been officially released from active duty by the Air Force after 10 months of service following last fall's Berlin crisis.

Lt. Col. Marion Barnwell, commander of the 120th Tactical Fighter Squadron, returned the troops Friday to Col. Walter Williams, commander of the Air Guard's 140th Tactical Fighter Wing.

The Air Guard was one of five Colorado units called to duty last October. The airmen participated in maneuvers from California to Georgia. The unit was attached to the Tactical Air Command's 113th Tactical Fighter Wing at Andrews Air Force Base, Washington.

The higher the hose, the smarter the leg, according to college fashion primers. One sock maker has introduced the above-the-knee sock that snugly anchors itself at mid-thigh with an elasticized garter top. Alternating link-and-link cable motifs with a skinny rib, the long socks go well with short, short skirts or bermudas.

The chantilly lace mantilla's headed for church, parties and theaters. The mantillas also are used as a neckline fill-up. Black, white and bisque are favored tones.

The Paris pea coat silhouette has been picked by makers of children's coats and sportswear. In smaller doses, suits with braided cardigan jackets look very Chanel, says Women's Wear Daily.

Melton is the fabric news in children's coats. Non - textured wool knits and woven are strong in sportswear lines. Woven cotton knits are onother popular autumn fabric. Denim, ticking and calico continue the Western kick in both coats and sportswear aimed for the trek to school.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Manufacturers already have planned what homemakers will be buying for Christmas decorations. The word for the future: nostalgia for the past.

The story book quality of one Christmas tree should please adults as well as children. The white icicled tree is trimmed with crystal prisms, ice blue sequins, jewels and frosted ornaments.

Wreaths and table sprays are bon-bon colored to match the candies and cakes of Christmas. Some tree ornaments in the bauble and bangle style are touched with moss-like velvet.

From Italy come tiny carved miniatures. From Taiwan, gaily dressed figures with silk embroidered wings. From Germany, delicate gold foil angels with a lighter-than-air look, suspended in clear glass to hang on the tree.

Nativity figures from Mexico have a worn and aged appearance. They're shadowy gray, highlighted with gold, and look as though centuries of dust had aged them in a forgotten corner of a cathedral.

An order of Franciscan Fathers in northern Italy has created a collection of papier mache reproductions of Biblical figures. They have used a centuries-old galzing formula to achieve a look of antiquity. Colors are somber and faces and robes are delicately sculptured.

You'll also see in the stores, in just a few months, decorated place mats, large candles with new holder bases, espaliered Christmas greens to fit flat against the wall, fiber glass snowballs, and angels and snowmen lighted from within.

Robert H. Jones Weds Catherine Elaine Anderson

The wedding of Miss Catherine Elaine Anderson and Robert H. Jones took place at 1 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 11, at Shove Memorial Chapel, with the Rev. Kenneth Burton officiating. Baskets of yellow and white mums and carnations formed the background for the ceremony, and nuptial music included Shriner's Wedding March.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Newton M. Anderson of 113 S. 7th St., Montevideo, Minn., was given in marriage by her father. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold W. Jones, former Colorado Springs residents, now of 1914 N. Beaver St., Santa Rosa, Calif.

The bride's floor length gown of white silk organza over taffeta was styled with short sleeves, and pleated taffeta midriff extending into a flared back panel which flowed into a brush train. Her short veil was attached to a pearl crown, and she carried an arm bouquet of red roses.

Miss Nancy Anderson attended her sister as maid of honor, and Mrs. Whitney O. Hite, another sister, of Colorado Springs, was matron of honor. Both wore sheath dresses of blue silk organza over taffeta, styled with scoop necklines and cap sleeves. Self-roses secured the flaring back panels, and they wore picture hats of blue net.

Mrs. Jones was graduated from Stephens College, Columbia, Mo., class of 1960, and from Colorado College,, class of 1962. Her sorority is Kappa Kappa Gamma. She will teach at Audubon School this fall.

The bridegroom, who attended Steele School before moving to Santa Rosa, attended Santa Rosa Junior College and was graduated from Colorado College, class of 1958. His fraternity is Phi Delta Theta, and he served as vice president during his senior year. He was with the U. S. Air Force for four years, serving tours of duty in Texas, Alaska, Morocco and California, and was an athletic instructor at the Air Force Academy Prep School from July 1961 to July 1962. While working behind the desk at the Broadmoor Hotel before attending CC, and while a student there, he made his home with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Hutchinson of 1617 E. Boulder St. He will teach this fall at Security.

Guests from other cities at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Everton Moss of Greeley, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Crouch of Denver and Lt. (jg) and Mrs. Robert Hite of Newport, R. I.

What's New

A series of new-process murals is durable enough to be practical for almost any room in the house. Applied on the same principal as a transfer these copies of famous artists' murals add beauty and perspective to a room without requiring delicate handling or professional care. Stains and soil can be removed by sponging with soap or detergent suds. (Art Transfer Co., Merchandise Mart, Chicago, Ill.).

A new device makes it safe to press fabrics on the right side without shine or scorch, glides at a touch without sticking, permits ironing all types of fabrics at one heat setting, and is a "life-preserver" for old or scratched irons, the manufacturer reports. Constructed with a perforated Teflon sole and a metal frame and spring clip, this "slipcover" fits over any steam or dry iron (Try-Point Industries Inc., Albertson, Long Island, N.Y.).

When you are making your vacation cottage or boat ship-shape for the winter, consider installing a tankless water heater. Come next spring, you can have instant hot water from the unit that doesn't take up space with a storage tank. One small gas water heater can be mounted on the wall above the hot water faucet. It lights when the tap is turned on. The flame is extinguished automatically when the water is turned off (Norcold Inc., 5111 W. Washington Blvd. Los Angeles, Calif.).

When a recipe calls for egg whites that are "slightly rounded," beat the whites until the peaks tip over slightly when the beater is slowly withdrawn.

Paul A. Wood Jr. Weds Janith Emlynn Millson

Miss Janith Emlynn Millson, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Cyril A. Millson of Colorado Springs, became the bride of Paul A. Wood, Jr., son of Mr. Paul A. Wood, Sr., and the late Mrs. Wood of Augusta, Maine, on Thursday, Aug. 16 at Ent Air Force Base Chapel.

The double-ring candlelight ceremony was performed by Chaplain (Major) Kenneth G. Irwin before an altar banked with baskets of white gladioli and chrysanthemums.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of silk organza over taffeta with lace applique trim, and a short train. It featured a Sabrina neckline and the long fitted sleeves that ended in points over the hands. Her long double veil, of silk illusion and lace, fell from a cap of lilies of the valley. She carried a white orchid and stephanotis arranged on a white lace and mother of pearl fan.

Miss Dixie Lynn Millson, the bride's twin sister, was maid of honor and Mrs. Warner L. Millson of Boston, the bride's sister-in-law, was matron of honor. Both wore floor-length gowns of light green silk organza over taffeta. The Misses Rose Waxler and Esther Shoemaker, bridesmaids, both of La Jolla, Calif., wore identical gowns of yellow. All the attendants carried bouquets of yellow and green chrysanthemums on white ivory fans.

Little Beth Ann Paluske, flower girl, was dressed in a small replica of the gowns worn by the bride's attendants and carried a small ivory fan. Richard Leroy Irwin, son of Col. and Mrs. Wilburt J. Irwin, wearing a tuxedo, was the ring bearer.

Warner Lee Millson, of Boston, brother of the bride, was best man. Ushers were Robert Brewer of Denver, Ronald Stierle and Duane Youse, both of Arvada.

Mrs. Mary Meguiar sang "I Love You Truly" and "At Dawning."

Baskets of white chrysthemums and gladioli decorated the Stonewall Room of the Skyline Club at Ent Air Force Base where the reception was held. Mrs. Wilburt J. Irwin, Mrs. Howard J. Gould, Miss Kathy Fultz and Miss Anne Meguiar assisted at the reception. Miss Dianna Gould attended the guest book.

After a honeymoon in the mountains, the couple will reside in Denver.

If you mail a gift or have it delivered, it is proper to check as to its arrival.

A waiter is only responsible for serving food. If you have a complaint, tell the manager.

If you don't hear about a death in time to send flowers, do write a note to the family.

Pen in Hand Needs Direction

United Press International

FORT MADISON, Iowa (UPI)—Good handwriting—like charity—begins at home.

Even before youngsters start writing in school, parents should indoctrinate them in the importance of good penmanship, says Wesley E. Scott, former director of commerical and distributive education of the Philadelphia Board of Education.

Scott, handwriting consultant for for a pen manufacturer (Sheaffer), said classroom instruction—when it begins—should be augmented by a daily home practice. Here are some fundamentals to impart to off-spring:

VFW Auxiliary Convenes Tuesday

Here's How to Gain Weight

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—I am much too thin. How can I gain weight?

A—Here are tips for the skinny from Dr. Hazel M. Hauck, professor of food and nutrition, emeritus, Cornell University: To gain 1 or 2 pounds a week, add 500 to 1000 calories a day to your present diet.

First make sure you get the right foods for sound nutrition, then increase calories with foods you enjoy most. Look for calories in small packages—butter, salad oils, cream, nuts, cereals and sweets. Use an extra pat of butter on your baked potato or other cooked vegetables; eat all the dressing on your salad; add cream to your milk; use cream on fruits, cereal, puddings; eat cereals, starchy vegetables, bread and butter, sweetened and dried fruits.

Eat until you feel satisfied. Then eat a little more. If your appetite isn't good to start with, have your meals at regular times and eat them leisurely; make them as attractive as possible, using your favorite recipes. If you eat out, choose foods from the four basic groups, but choose ones you like especially.

Take a few minutes to rest before dinner. Fatigue decreases appetite and interferes with digestion. Remember gaining weight is not all a matter of diet. You also must learn to save energy. Get more sleep; rest during the day. Ride more; walk less. Do things the easy way. And keep cheerful. You'll find a cheery disposition will help you gain more easily and make you a better person to live with.

Atomic Ship Has Cheaper Methods Of Atomic Power

By FRANK CAREY

SAVANNAH, Ga. AP — Development of the pioneering nuclear merchant ship Savannah has shown the way to building improved yet cheaper atomic powered vessles for world commerce.

Robert E. Wilson, a member of the Atomic Energy Commission, made that report Wednesday, forcasting that such advances could lead to:

1. Nuclean powered freighters that would speed across the Atlantic in four days — faster than luxury liners like the Queen Mary, and almost twice as fast as conventionally fueled cargo ships.

He said experience acquired mainly in building the Savannah "has resulted in reactor designs which would reduce the . . Savannah power plant weight and construction cost by 50 per cent and the operating cost by 60 per cent."

The cost of the reactor in the Savannah was $13 million, and its weight is 2,500 tons.

HINTS FROM Heloise

Dear Heloise:

When I made unlined drapes for my living room a few years ago, I got some pointers from my local drapery shop and I was given several ideas I'd like to pass along.

I was told that the small drapery pins should be put two and one-half inches from the top of the drapery to keep it from sagging.

The crinoline that goes in the heading should be doubled on each end of the drapery as far back as the first pleat so it will not droop later. This makes the ends stronger.

Measure the width of the window then double or triple this width as you prefer. Add three inches or more for side hems.

The center of the drape is where the first pleat should be. Measure this and then fold. Measure back one-half width of the pleat you have decided upon. Machine stitch on this line to the bottom of of the heading. Make another pinch pleat on each side of the fold. This will be your center pinch pleat.

Next, decide how far from the end of the drapery you want your first pleat and how wide you want your pleats to be.

Hand stitch these French pleats at the bottom of the heading thru all three pleats. Then make a pleat at the opposite end of the heading in the same position and continue.

Match the center pleat and the end pleat to find the center of the "unpleated distance" then make another fold. This is where your next pleat should be made. Continue until all pleats are done.

The crinoline must be sewed to the top of the drape and folded over its width to make the heading before any pleats are made.

One can machine stitch all pleats first before youfinish each pleat and tack it, if you prefer. This drapery maker told me that women could make each drape about as full or as spare as they had the material for...or the money to do so.

One might consider the width of the drapery material before deciding how wide to make the pleats or how far apart to make them to make the wisest use of your fabric width.

Mrs. Annie Grahn

For those who sew may I remind them never to leave the selvage on a finished garment.

When sewing long pieces of material such as draperies, etc., it is better to clip the selvage at four-inch intervals if it must be left on. The seam will not pucker when dry cleaned if selvage are clipped.

Dear Heloise:

When darning husband's black socks. I have a new idea that I think other women should know about. I use my husband's flashlight.

I find that the material in the socks is very dark. When your eyes are as old as mine, you can turn the flashlight on the exact spot you are sewing and it is a great help.

Cook's Tour

By JEANNE LESEM

During the 1962-63 school year, they're expected to devour 10-million pounds of the sticky but nutritious high-protein food in in-school lunches alone. This amount has been allotted by the federal government for the National School Lunch Program.

The many ways in which they eat it were revealed in a national contest for school cooks, dietitians and lunch room managers in elementary and high schools. Their entries included soups, main meat dishes, salad dressings, vegetable sauces, bread and desserts. But the three top winners were all-time favorites—a sandwich and two desserts.

First prize winner was Mrs. Clay Davison, School District 66, Imperial, Neb., for peanut butter pineapple sandwich; in second place, Mrs. Bertha Letourneau, Notre Dame High School, Berlin, N.H., for peanut butter crinkles, made with cereal, butter, marshmallows and peanut butter; and third, to Mrs. Herman Jachda, Morgan School, Hutchinson, Kan., for chocolate peanut butter cookies.

Mixing peanut butter with other foods has historical precedent. The Peanut Growers of Alabama and Georgia, who sponsored the contest, say peanut butter originated centuries ago in South America when ground peanuts were mixed with honey or cocoa.

The growers credit a St. Louis physician with inventing, independently, in 1890, the plain peanut butter familiar now. He is said to have developed it as a high - protein, easily digestible health food for patients.

Today, North Americans eat 200,000 tons of it a year. And peanuts have become so important to our food industry that the U.S. Department of Agriculture ranks them as one of the nation's six basic farm crops.

Mrs. Davison's prize winning sandwich was filled with this spread: blend together 1 cup of peanut butter, ¾ cup of crushed, drained pineapple, ½ cup each of honey and coarsely chopped nuts, 1-3 cup of finely diced celery and 1 or 2 teaspoons of cream to make easy spreading consistency. This makes 2¼ cups, or enough for 9 to 10 sandwiches on buttered toast. It keeps several weeks under refrigeration.

As an ingredient, peanut butter can also be baked, fried, broiled or frozen. One or two tablespoons added to french dressing is good on lettuce or fruit salad. For a creamier dressing, blend 2 tablespoons of peanut butter with 1 small package of cream cheese, thin to desired consistency with fruit juice and serve on fruit salad.

Blended with 1 teaspoon of prepared mustard and 2 tablespoons of brown sugar, ¼ cup of peanut butter makes a good glaze for ham steak. Spread this on a 1-inch thick slice, and bake 30 minutes in a preheated 350-degree oven. Or double the recipe to use on a whole baked ham.

Sew a Jumper Now for Fall

Make a jumper dress. Have for it at least three separte blouses, or two blouses and a sweater, of white, navy or a pastel that is smart with the color of the jumper. This way you gain variety, and can have your costume look fresh and attractive with a minimum of washing and ironing.

Jumpers, no matter whether for a 6-year-old or a 16-year-old, should be of a fairly firm fabric.

Seam details for you.

* * *

There arae available imitation linens in drip dry fabrics that are ideal. There are also fabrics with a small amount of wool that makes the garment look and act like wool — yet at the price of a good cotton.

A circular skirt, if short enough to be perky and becoming, is ideal for college, high, or grade school wear. A circular skirt looks nice sitting down, and is comfortable. It is easy to care for, as you do not sit on the same wrinkle twice.

Jumper at the left, in sketch, should be joined at the waist. Buttons are there for decoration. Jumber has a center back zipper. Neckline, armholes and skirt should have a true bias or fitted facing. When a true bias or fitted facing is used at the bottom, greater care must be used in turning the hem, to be sure it is even. But even with these necessary precautions, circular skirt jumpers are not difficult and they are ever so attractive.

Top-Stitched Seam

Also called doubled - stitched. Pink or overcast edges of plain pressed - open seam. From right side, stitch on each side of seam, using narrow or wide side of presser foot as a guide to keep stitching an even distance from the seam line.

Welt Seam

Practical for firm fabrics. Baste, stitch, and press seam open. Cut under-seam edge away to within scant ¼-inch of stitching line. Press wide seam edge back over narrow edge and baste. Stitch in place from right side.

Open - Welt or Tucked Seam

Even - baste seam line with short stitches, but do not machine stitch. Press both seam edges to one side; then machine stitch the distance from the seam line that you want tuck to be. The tuck appears when you remove basting. Provide extra seam width when wide tucks are desired.

Welt seams should be made in firm fabric that tailor perfectly and hold their shape.

Slip-Stitched Pocket

On a slip - stitched pocket, no stitching shows on the right side. Stitch one edge of the bias binding to the hem edge. Turn the hem to the right side of the pocket, and stitch thru the hem on both sides. Stitch along both sides of the pocket and across the bottom. Clip the two corners, as shown.

Turn the hem back to the wrong side, and slip stitch it down. Turn the seams back to the wrong side, exactly on the stitching line, and catch stitch all raw edges down.

Baste the pocket to the garment. Then, with matching thread, slip stitch the pocket in position, securing the corners so that they will not pull out. The stitching line on the edges helps the pocket to hold its shape and also give a foundation for the slip stitches.

Do you have a sewing problem? Send it to Mary Brooks Picken, care of this newspaper. While Mrs. Picken cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in the column.

Miller-Barksdale Nuptials Held at Bellevue Baptist

Miss Cheryl Lillie Barksdale and Robert Darrell Miller were united in marriage at 2 p.m. Aug. 11 at the Bellevue Baptist Church, the Rev. Wayne Williams officiating at the double ring ceremony.

Baskets of white mums and pink gladioli were placed on the altar, and Wanda Shoemaker at the organ played the traditional processional and recessional. Mrs. Mildred Humphries sang "Because" and "I Love You Truly."

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a dress of pure silk white organza, styled with full skirt styled with embroidered panels at back and front, and finished at the waistline in the back with a large bow. The bodice was styled with three-quarter length sleeves and was trimmed with seed pearls and sequins, and buttoned down the back with small self-covered buttons. She carried an heirloom handkerchief which belonged to the bridegroom's mother, and wore her mother's pearl necklace. She wore the traditional blue garter and the sixpence in her shoe.

Laird F. Miller of Fayetteville, Ark. attended his brother as best man and the ushers were Charles Ishmael and Jim McBride of Denver.

The bride's mother wore a laguna-blue sheath with silk organza skirt over taffeta, with matching Chantilly lace bodice. The skirt had a flowing organza panel at back, and her corsage was of pink sweetheart roses.

The bridegroom's mother wore a sheath of Persian-rose French Chantilly lace over taffeta, with scalloped hemline matching the surplice shoulder reveres. The dress had a deep crushed midriff of matching chiffon, and her corsage was of red sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Una Childers, aunt of the bride, poured the punch at the reception which was held in the church parlor. Mrs. Elsie Smith cut the cake, and was assisted in serving by Mrs. Dorothy Phillips and Mrs. Genene Smith. All wore coursages of white carnations.

The couple spent their honeymoon at Columbine Lodge, Green Mountain Falls, and are now living at 429 Yucca Dr. The bride's going away costume was a pink linen suit with white accessories, and a corsage of roses.

The bride is attending the University of Colorado Extension here, and the bridegroom, who is employed by the Pikes Peak Photo Co., will be a senior at Colorado College in September.

The out of town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Ray Childers of Oklahoma City; Mrs. Lillie Evans of Bartlesville, Okla., Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Foulis of Washington D.C., Mrs. Anna Miller of St. Louis; Laird F. Miller, and Marvin Allen of Fayetteville, Ark., Rhonda of Los Angeles; Lois Peterson of Montrose; Mr. and Mrs. V. L. TO OWN PAINTING

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Astronaut John Glenn soon will own a painting that depicts the city of Perth, Australia, on the night he orbited over it.

Owen Giarde, a professional painter who is here on a world-wide tour, said Thursday he painted the picture as the citizens of Perth turned on thousands of lights so Glen could see them from his capsule.

50 Million Answer School Bells

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than 50 million students—an all-time record for any country—will enroll in U.S. schools this fall.

The prospective enrollment includes about 39 million in public schools, 6.7 million in private and parochial schools, and 4.5 million in colleges and universities.

The student population of America's school system has been growing steadily for the past 18 years at an average rate of more than 3 per cent a year. The upsurge in enrollment is partly the result of population growth. But it also is partly the result of changing social and economic patterns which put a higher premium on education and cause a higher percentage of youths to attend school for longer periods of time.

Although states and communities have been building new public school classrooms at a feverish rate of about 60,000 a year, the construction boom has barely been able to keep pace with enrollment increases and the necessary abandonment of unsafe and obsolete structures.

Thus the outlook is that many school districts again will face overcrowding and half-day sessions this fall. Last year, in the nation as a whole, schools had about 1.7 million students more than they theoretically were able to handle within their rated capacity. The National Education Association anticpates a shortage of about 127,000 classrooms this fall.

Although there will be more qualified teachers than last year—at least 3 per cent more, according to NEA calculations—the increase will be largely off-set by higher enrollment. Thus, many school districts again will have to rely on teachers who lack full certification.

Jewel-Neck Sheath

With the understated sophistication American women love, Shannon Rodgers designed as costume that offers the widest social opportunities from a.m. thru dark, anytime of the year, any place in the world. The sleeveless jewel-neck sheath is a gentle statement of slimness, important enough to lead an independent late-day life of its own.

For a city whirl of shopping, luncheon, a matinee, it takes pretty cover in a straight-to-the-point jacket that sums up the '62 fashion picture with crisp simplicity. The little collar band stands pertly away from the throat, making the neck appear longer, slimmer.

Suggested fabrics are sheer wool, lightweight tweeds, tissue flannel, silk and wool mixtures, raw silk, shantung, linen, novelty cottons for day wear; brocade, faille, tapestry or slipper satin for evening. From these corresponding body measurements select the size best for you. Our sizing is comparable to that used for better ready-to-wear.

School Uniform Is Maternity Smock

LONDON (AP)-Britain has opened a school for pregnant schoolgirls.

Last year over 700 schoolgirls-none older than 15-became pregnant. They had no husbands.

The 700 were the registered cases. The authorities admit there were probably many others girls who for one reason or another never applied for help.

The maternity school for schoolgirls is located in a London suburb.

There's a Difference

Behind it are the Salvation Army, the London County Council and the National Council for the Unmarried Mother.

Agree to Adoption

This is the difficult period.

LOST IN THE END

LORIENT, France (UPI)—Retired policeman Louis Le Bellour, 55, bet a group of companions he could eat two yards of sausage.

Bellour won. He not only ate two yards, but finished off the meal with an extra four inches of sausage.

The Mature Parent

For Your Own Sake, Learn Generosity's Limit

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Dear Mrs. Lawrence

Our daughter-in-law has written, asking us to look after her three children while she accompanies our son on a month-long business trip this summer.

I have not been able to sleep since getting the letter. As my husband is badly crippled with artritis, looking after him takes all the strength I've got. My daughter-in-law knows what she is asking when she asks me to take on the care of her three active youngsters, all under 10 years of age. She says it's my son who told her to ask this though I am sure that she is the one who is pushing this trip with him . . .

Why are you so angry at her? She is as free to ask you for this favor as you are to refuse it. Why can't you use your freedom to refuse it?

I don't know the answer.

However, I do know that we could become very angry at a daughter-in-law who asks for more than we want to give her, if we idealize our kindly feelings toward other people.

If we secretly think of ourselves as an especially generous parent to our children, any demand they make which we can't grant will make us so uncomfortable that we'll become impatient and critical of them.

We don't want the limits of our unselfishness exposed to us. So they are ungrateful and inconsiderate to ask for what we don't want to give them. Our daughter-in-law and our son should so plan their affairs to enable us to preserve our pride in our boundless generosity instead of showing us up as interested in our own comfort.

How dare a son's wife face us with the truth: our resistance to being bothered with the care of three exhausting children while she goes gallivanting off on a holiday?

It may be that you are shifting the anger you feel at the limits of your own generosity to your daughter-in-law. If so, you'd better accept them.

Sooner or later, we all have to look at our high-flown delusion that our kindliness is limitless—and return to earth from outer space.

Once we can digest the idea that our generosity is imperfect, answers begin to suggest themselves. For example, you might find it possible to sit down and write to your daughter-in-law, "Though I'm not up to looking after the children for the entire period of your trip, I'd be glad to have them for a time. . . ."

The point is, if our kindliness must be boundless, we cannot consider the limited kind. We must give everything we're asked for—or nothing at all. Then we have to begin to lose sleep to our resentment of the daughter-in-law who has involved us in our conflict between the kind of gloriously generous person we think we ought to be, and the person we actually are.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♦	Pass
1 NT	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♣

Even when there has been no adverse bidding the location of a key card can sometimes be determined to a certainty by an alert declarer. The conduct of an adversary in the defense of a hand may permit a player to read his thoughts like an open book. South, for some reason or other, opened with a club, perhaps for the purpose of inhibiting the lead of that suit should he and his partner reach a final notrump contract. Then, for reasons best known to himself, he spurned the diamond raise in favor of a one notrump rebid, despite his very undesirable holding in spades. He should have been aware that the notrump contract might readily play better from North's side, but it all ended happily.

West opened the king of clubs which won the trick and, when the queen of clubs was permitted to hold, he shifted to the ten of spades. If declarer takes the finesse, East will win and return a spade, establishing the suit while he still holds the ace of diamonds and declarer will be defeated two tricks.

A little amateur mind reading will make it apparent to declarer that the contract can be brought home by refusing the spade finesse and winning with the ace. That the queen of spades cannot be subjected to further attack is a moral certainty for the ace of diamonds is known without any doubt to be in East's hand. If West held the ace of diamonds, surely he would have proceeded with the establishment of the club suit.

After winning with the ace of spades, declarer leads diamonds until the suit is established. East, of course, is in and can find no way to transfer the lead to partner who would like to follow through with a spade. Declarer now has nine tricks.

DECADE OF EFFORT

NEW YORK (AP) — After 10 years of planning Broadway Producer Saint Subber expects to get "The Masculine Principle" onstage this season.

The project is based on a short story by Frank O'Connor, and the delay has centered around obtaining a satisfactory adaptation. A decade of effort isn't regarded by Subber as exceptional. He was involved in such extended planning once before. The result was "Kiss Me, Kate," one of Broadway's all-time top hits.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Two Wrongs Don't Make a Right!

DEAR ABBY: I have two daughters. One is 28, married and has two children. The other is 23 and single. The single one was employed by my son-in-law for two years. All this time they carried on a secret love affair. The older one found out about it and started divorce proceedings. I got upset and forbade my unmarried daughter to enter my home again. Now, the older one is being courted by her husband again and it looks like they are going back together. She says if I have anything to do with her sister she will never speak to me. I love them both, Abby. The older one blames her sister—not her husband—for what happened. What should I do? —BROKEN-HEARTED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Your older daughter is wrong to demand that you have nothing to do with your younger daughter. I can't blame her for feeling resentment toward her sister, but if she has it in her heart to forgive her husband, she should forgive her sister, too.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are going to celebrate our 10th wedding anniversary shortly. I have heard that some of our friends are getting together and giving us a surprise party. Should we be "surprised"? —NOT SURPRISED

DEAR NOT: You can't "be" surprised—but you can "act" it.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think I am a case for a psychiatrist? I keep a diary, but it really isn't much good because it is full of lies. It tells about dates I never had with boys I don't even know. I enjoy writing in it, but I am beginning to wonder if I am crazy. I keep it well hidden so there is no danger of my mother or anyone else finding it. What makes a person do things like that? I am 15 and not very popular. —MIXED UP

DEAR MIXED UP: If it will make you feel better, you have lots of company. Many people find escape from dull reality by creating a more exciting make-believe world. A certain amount of daydreaming is normal and healthy. Concentrate on developing your personality and becoming more social, and you'll enjoy reality more and dreams less.

Unload your problems on Abby. For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to "Abby", care of this paper.

CELEBRATE GOLDEN ANNIVERSAY — Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. McMurry of 2007 N. Royer St. celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary last Sunday with a family dinner, followed by a reception attended by many of their friends. Mr. and Mrs. McMurry were married Aug. 20, 1912 in Kansas City, Kan., and have lived in Colorado Springs for 42 years. They have three children: Mrs. Herbert Jewett of Colorado Springs; Robert McMurry of Arvada; and Dr. Edward McMurry of Greeley. All attended with their families, which include three grandchildren of the honored couple. (Stegner Photo)

Jobs of Good 'Sellin' May Work Backward, Too

Recall when wives used to say — "I'd love to dye my hair, but Joe would have a fit." (Now they say: "It's a lot of trouble keeping my hair this color, but Joe likes me as a blonde and I don't dare let my hair go back to its natural color.")

"I'm getting fed up with staying at home while Joe goes on those hunting and fishing trips with the boys." (Now it's: "I'd really like to stay home and loaf this weekend, but Joe wants me to go fishing with him and I'll have to go.")

"I'd love to go back to work, but Joe insists that a woman's place is in the home." (Now the cry is: "I'd love to quit my job, but whenever I mention it Joe says he doesn't see how we can get along on just one pay check.")

"I wish I could persuade Joe to take the children along on our vacation trips, but he says that wouldn't be any vacation for either one of us." (Now the trouble is: "I come back from these family vacations more worn out than when I left and the kids don't really enjoy traveling. What I wish is that Joe and I could get away by ourselves for a real vacation.")

First women work and work to sell men an idea; then they grumble because they've done such a good selling job there's no unselling it.

Tips Help Students Beat Their Scores

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A few common-sense precautions will enable any student to improve his grades on tests, reports the National Education Association.

Here are a few practical tips on how to do your best on any kind of academic test:

—Read the directions carefully, and if there's anything you don't comprehend, ask questions before the test starts.

—Find out the scoring system. On some tests. You'll be penalized for a wrong answer, so it doesn't pay to guess. On other tests, there are no penalties attached to a wrong answer, so you might as well make a stab at it even if you aren't sure.

—Budget your time. Keep an eye on the clock so you can allow more time for the most difficult parts, or the parts where scores count the most.

—After you've finished the entire test, re-read everything to make sure you haven't made some obvious goof. But don't change your answers unless you're positive they're wrong. Your first hunch is more likely to be correct than your anxious second guess.

—On true-false tests, be careful of such qualifying words as all, some, many ,none, always, never or most. The answer frequently hinges on these tricky little qualifiers.

—On multiple choice questions, eliminate the obviously wrong answers first, and spend more time on the remaining possibilities.

Kitchen arithmetic: Adding ¼ teaspoon salt to 1 cup water in cooking vegetables is a safe measurement these days when many people are using less salt than they used to in their food.

Variations in Vegetables Add Interest to Meals

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Potatoes baked with cheese and fresh vegetables in cream are two variations on the vegetable theme. They are different — but not too much so — to add new interest to your meal and very good eating.

Cheese Baked Potatoes

6 large (3 pounds) baking potatoes
6 to 8 ounces sharp cheddar cheese
6 pats butter or margarine, ¼-inch thick
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon ground white pepper

Pare potatoes. Cut 3 crosswise wedges ¼-inch thick in each potato, having the wedge cut out almost to the bottom of potato. Place on squares of aluminum foil. Cut cheese into 18 ⅛-inch slices, as long as the potato is wide. Insert a slice in each wedge. Top with a pat of butter or margarine. Sprinkle with salt and white pepper. Wrap in aluminum foil being sure to overlap at top of potato. Turn up ends and fold against potato. Bake 1 hour or until tender in a preheated (400 degrees F.) oven. Serve in foil, turned back and crimped around the bottom of potato to make it look attractive, or you may bake these for 1½ hurs over the outdoor grill, turning to cook uniformly.

Fresh Vegetables In Cream
Yield: Approximately 6 servings

1½ cups sliced onions
1½ cups thinly sliced celery
1½ cups thinly sliced green pepper
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 cups fresh green peas
1½ teaspoons salt or salt to taste
1-16 teaspoon ground black pepper
¾ teaspoon ground basil leaves
2 tablespoons boiling water
3 tablespoons heavy cream

Saute onions, celery and green pepper in butter or margarine. Add peas, seasonings and boiling water. Cover and cook over low heat 10 minutes or until peas are tender. Just before serving add heavy cream. Serve at once.

FURTHER TESTS SCHEDULED

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former President Herbert Hoover was scheduled to undergo further tests today in a routine checkup at Columbia-Presbyterian Hospital.

A spokesman for the hospital said Thursday the condition of Hoover, 88, is generally good. He entered the hospital Monday.

Military Callup Chances Slim

ELTON C. FAY
ary Affairs Writer

TON (AP)—Current remote that another National Guardsmen servists might result from ew Berlin crisis, short of a rious, shooting outbreak.

Army sources, asked about this today, said the Regular Army is in far better shape to cope with requirements in Europe or elsewhere than it was a year ago.

The Regular Army has five more combat-ready divisions than when the tension over Berlin last year resulted in the government's decision to summon reserve forces for active duty in this country. About 119,000 Army reservists and National Guardsmen were called up and now have been released.

Organizational strength of the Regular Army is 16 divisions. This includes two new divisions and three former training divisions which have been converted to combat outfits since last year.

Eight of the 16 divisions are ready in the continental United States. One is stationed in Hawaii, with one battle group deployed in Thailand. Five divisions are in Europe and one in Korea.

If a worsening of the situation arising out of the new Communist pressures on Berlin should bring a decision to bulwark ground force strength in West Germany, the first of such reinforcements could be landed there within 24 hours of a buildup decision.

As of now, military leaders see nothing that requires any deployment of forces. But plans, detailed down to the smallest item, are ready for an emergency in Europe or elsewhere.

The Defense Department recently completed the "pre-stocking" of arms, equipment and supplies in West Germany sufficient to outfit and maintain two divisions, one armored and one infantry. The stockpile includes tanks, personnel carriers, artillery, mortars, rifles, machine guns and ammunition.

In an emergency, troops from the United States simply would board transport planes, carrying their personal equipment, and head for airfields in Germany. The Army estimates the first of such units would be ready and in the aircraft within 2½ hours of receipt of orders.

The fact that the first of reinforcements could be on their way within a matter of hours does not mean, however, that anything like two full divisions of troops could be put down in Germany within hours or even days. The airlift capacity still is well short of that.

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara started early in his administration to build up and modernize the fleet of military transport planes for airlift purposes. The Defense Department said recently the number of transport planes available is 15 per cent greater than it would have been at this time under programs existing a year and a half ago.

McNamara has said, however, that he still is "dissatisfied" with the troop airlift capability and that the capacity must be trebled.

U.S. Aid Cut Agreed to by Shah of Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—The Shah of Iran told Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson today he understands and accepts a U.S. aid cut that will reduce Iran's army by at least 15 per cent, a closely informed source reported.

The Shah indicated he may ask for large contingent from the U.S. Peace Corps to work with discharged army recruits on construction and development projects, said the informant.

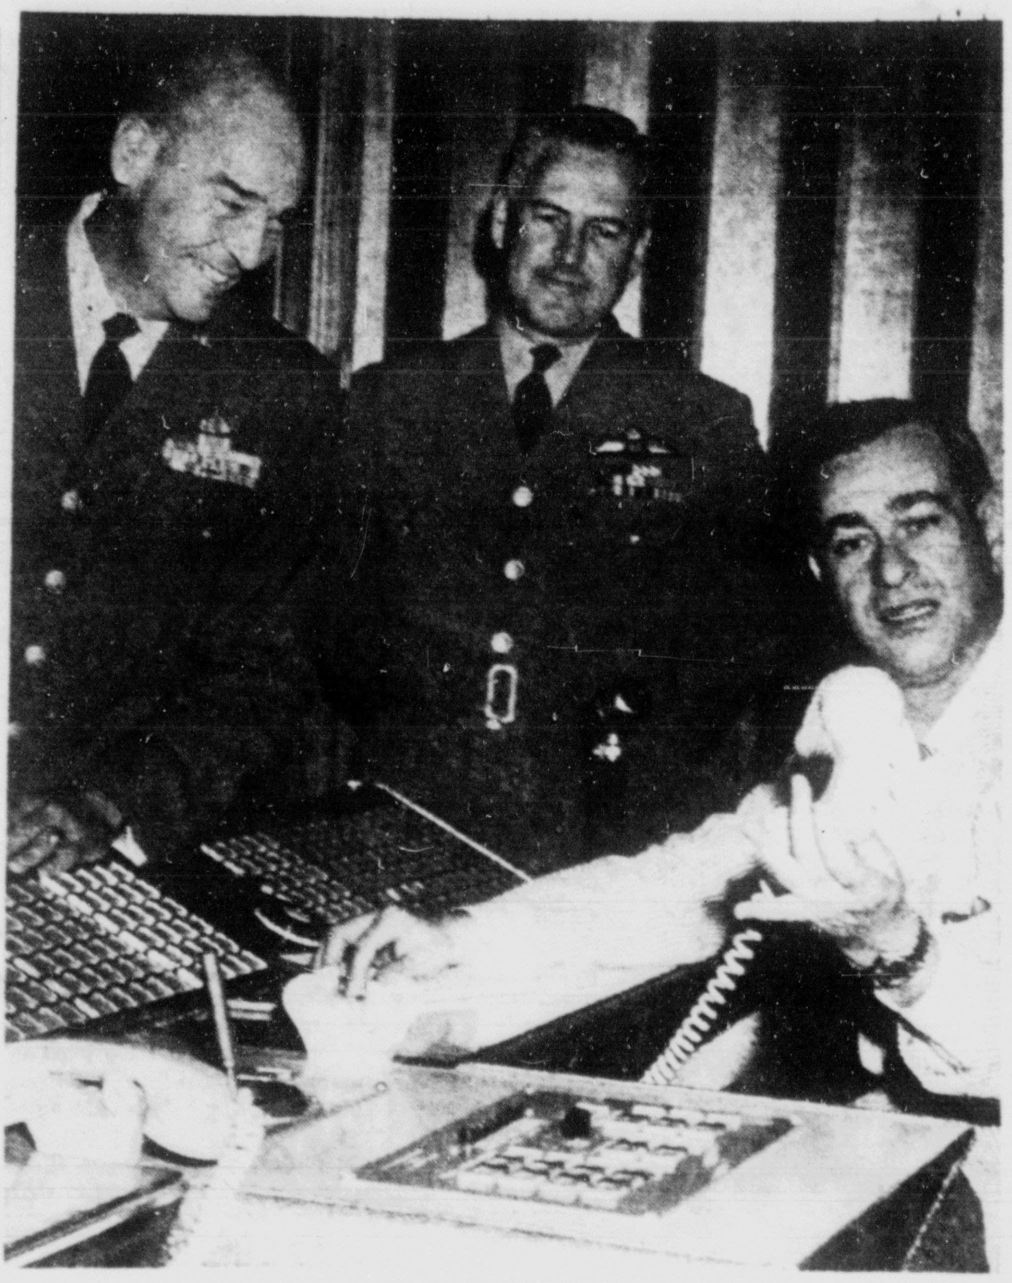
Johnson met the Shah at a palace banquet Friday night and at a royal audience today before he plunged again into crowds of cheering Iranians to drive home the message of American support for Iran.

Johnson told the 42-year-old Monarch the U.S. government would receive Iran's applications for future development loans "sympathetically" and "act expeditiously" on them, said sources close to the vice president.

No new commitments were made by vice president, but the ruler enthusiastically described his ideas for modernizing Iran.

U.S. Ambassador Julius C. Holmes said the talks with the Shah, Premier Assadullah Alam and Foreign Minister Abbas Aram were "highly successful."

Reduction of Iran's costly 205,000-man armed force, which no longer gets budget support from the United States, has been a touchy issue, but the Shah told Johnson he wants an army only large enough and sufficiently equipped "to fulfill its role in the free world."



COMEDIAN VISITS NORAD — "Egad! A real phone," says high stool comic Shelley Berman when brought fact to face with the elaborate communications control console in NORAD's Combat Operations Center here. COC's director, Brig. Gen. Lewis W. Stocking, Rockford, Ill. left, explained that by pressing a button on the console he could reach such points as Alaska, Hawaii, and England in a matter of seconds. Looking on is deputy director of the COC, RCAF Group Capt. W. H. Swetman, Kapuskasing, Ontario. After a review of the gadgetry with which North American Air Defense Command stands off aerospace attack, Shelley said: "It was a traumatic experience. They get Greenland quicker than I get room service at my hotel, but I learned one thing: I'm the only item in orbit they can't track!" (Official NORAD Photo)

Looking at Hollywood

JEAN SIMMONS TO STAR 'IN 'ALL THE WAY HOME'

HOLLYWOOD — Jean Simmons, off the screen too long to suit her fans, waited until she hit the jackpot. Not only does she get Robert Preston as a co-star, but the picture is "All the Way Home," a double Pulitzer prize winner — both the play and the novel ("A Death in the Family) were honored. In lieu of their usual astronomical salaries, Jean and Bob have taken a percentage of the profits, and with a combination like this there'll be plenty. Rehearsals start in New York City on Sept. 17, with exteriors in Knoxville, Tenn.; interiors in Manhattan. Alex Segal directs.

Hurrah for Columbia Pictures! They will release world-wide the anti-communist documentary, put together from actual film clips by Jack Thomas and Jack Leewood. They've given it the Khrushchev title, "We'll Bury You!" Hundreds of persons have written in asking where they could see the film, so here's the answer. It will get a quick release.

Atty. Greg Bautzer advised Merle Oberon not to put up her own money to make "Of Love and Desire," but ate his words when he saw the picture: "This gusty dame, who made this thing without even a release, has one of the most beautiful films I ever saw. And the way she looks, she could play Lolita."

Merle and her husband, Bruno Pagliai, were in Moscow when Richard Nixon had his famous kitchen conference with Khrushchev; but Merle tells me Nixon was at his best when he first met Nikita, a session that she never saw in print. Khrushchev spoke first," she said, "and then when Dick got the floor, Khrushchev started his usual antics to get the crowd laughing. Nixon stopped, said: 'I gave close attention when you spoke. I expect the same courtesy. We don't object to your way of life — if that's what you want. But we don't want you interfering with ours.' And he went on in that vein."

Tony Randall roughed it with the rest of the "Not on Your Life!" company on the tiny Greek island, Hydra (meaning water — only there isn't any there), and says it's good medicine for over-civilized people to live under primitive conditions. Only autos the islanders ever saw were two jeeps used by the crew — they transport themselves on donkeys. The entire population of 3,000 has but one telephone. There's little electricity, no refrigeration, and plenty of child labor. The Randalls had a fantastic maid, Sophia, "who insisted on spoon - feeding my wife and patting me on the shoulder while I ate. She weighed 100 pounds, but dropped everything if there was a dog fight anywhere on the island. She never missed anything. Cried for a whole day when we left."

Never thought I'd like to see the day that Dimitri Tiomkin turned fisherman. But it's here. He'll be in Baja, Calif., another 10 days; then is off to Madrid to put the music in "55 Days at Peking." Tiomkin says he will turn co-producer for "Five Pianos," which will be filmed in as many European countries with an American star in each sequence.

Paramount optioned the services of tiny Linda Bruhl, who managed to steal more than one scene from Jackie Gleason in "pappa's Delicate Condition."

As Gypsy Rose Lee took off for Canada, where they're named the Rose of the Year "The Gypsy Rose Lee," she quipped: "I hope the petals won't fall off when they play my music."

Ray Stark tells about visiting Mary Martin in her New York City apartment some months ago. As he was coming down in the elevator, he became fascinated with two women who got on. So interested, in fact, he lingered to ask the elevator man who they were. "You mean you don't know? Why, that's Miss Garbo and Valentina."

United Air Lines Checks Flights in Planning Center

DENVER (UPI)— United Air Lines' most important operation, making sure every one of its 300 airplanes is exactly where it ought to be every minute it is in the air, will be moved 1,000 miles in the wink of an eye next month—at midnight the night of Sept. 5.

The 110 men in the operations planning center, plus the weather center personnel among the 185-man headquarters flight operations force who maintain this 24-hour vigil will move from Denver to Chicago at the comparatively leisurely pace of commercial flight.

They go off duty in Denver Sept. 5 and resume work in Chicago Sept. 6.

The transfer is part of UAL's transfer of its headquarters functions to the new UAL facilities at O'Hare International Airport outside Chicago. In all, 420 employes are being moved from Denver to Chicago—leaving 1,700 United employes in Denver.

The transfer operation actually begins Aug. 29—moving day for the 100 workers in statistical production, another round-the-clock job, and the 75 employes in line maintenance headquarters.

Statistical production operations will be whipped from Denver to Chicago at midnight the night of Aug. 30. A statistical machine will be flown from Denver to Chicago that afternoon to be ready for the midnight deadline. Another, which will wind up the Denver operation, at midnight, leaves for Chicago by motor van the next day.

A support machine will be available in Chicago if it is needed to guarantee a smooth cutover.

The weather center also needs continuous computer operation. A Bendix fachine has been borrowed from Los Angeles and installed in Chicago to allow time for moving UAL's identical machine to Chicago Sept. 5. The machine prepares detailed flight plans for some 80 jet flights a day.

Other heavy equipment is being moved by truck.

The move affects about 470 positions, UAL said, but only 420 are being transferred.

Colorado College Classes to Begin Friday, Sept. 7

Classes at Colorado College get under way well ahead of most college and universities throughout the nation this year as a result of a new academic calendar adopted by the faculty.

New Student Week begins Sept. 2 and classes meet Sept. 7.

The new calendar, adopted by the faculty last spring, will enable the members of the 1,200 student body to take fall semester examinations before Christmas. It also creates a symposium week to be held during the Christmas recess.

Traditionally students go home for Christmas vacation and return to the campus for a two - week "lame - duck session" before semester final examinations. This is followed by another week of vacation before the opening of the second semester.

Now, under Colorado College's newly adopted calendar, students will complete their fall semester final examinations on Dec. 19. Second semester classes will not resume until Jan. 21, but students will return for registration Jan. 11 and 12. This will give them an opportunity to attend the newly created symposium week during Jan. 14-19.

Symposium week will serve as an additional focus on college intellectual life. Designed to cover a key issue, it will feature a number of authorities who will spend the week on campus lecturing and holding round - table discussions with students and faculty. Attendance will be voluntary.

"Independent colleges are changing their calendars because they must change to keep their place," President Louis T. Benezet said following the faculty action. "We have set ourselves a course of getting extra results inn education from better - than - average prospects. To win our case we must move along, eliminating distractions, inconsistencies and hiatuses long endured as accidents which became custom rather than as educational rationale."

By eliminating certain tests, duplicated by the College Board examinations, it is possible to shorten new student week and to bring the students into the classroom on Friday and Saturday of the first week, faculty members said. This should be a more meaningful introduction to Colorado College than the social events which have been traditional during the first weekend of new student week, they agreed.

"Final examination periods in both semesters will be increased from six to eight days," Dean Lloyd E. Worner said. "With such a schedule, it is likely that few students would have more than one examination on a particular day. Faculty would also have more leisure to grade their final examinations than under the present calendar."

Under the new calendar, fraternities and sororities rush activities will be held during the second semester. The calendar sets aside four days for these activities.

Seay Will Write History Book on Medieval Music

Dr. Albert Seay, professor of music at Colorado College, has been commissioned by the New York publishing firm of Prentice-Hall to write a history medieval music.

Seay said the 200-page work would be the first book in a nine-volume history of music. Books in the series will be paper-backs.

Nine leading authorities on music, asked by Prentice-Hall to write to write the books have been invited to meet with the editors in New York this fall to work out plans for the series.

Meanwhile, Seay has just been informed that his third and final volume of the Declaratio Musicae Disciplinae by Ugolino of Orvieto has been published by the American Institute of Musicology in Rome.

The Colarodo College professor said his history of medieval music would cover music for voice from the first or second century through the middle of the 15th century.

He noted that most serious medieval music was written for voice. "There was little music written for instruments and less has been preserved," Dr. Seay said.

Preliminary plans call for the books to be divided into three parts. The first will deal with the play chant, also known as Gregorian, written for one voice. Part two will cover sacred polyphany—music for two or more voices. And, part three will deal with secular polyphony.

Seay, an internationally-known musicologist, has just returned to Colorado College from Italy where he spent a year doing research into the history of Italiam music theory in the 14th and 15th centuries under a Guggenheim Fellowship.

The musicologist, who holds a Ph. D. from Yale University, joined the faculty at Colorado College in 1953. During the 1956-57 academic year he was a Fulbright scholar in Italy.

Prior to joining the faculty at Colorado College, Seay was a research assistant at Yale and an assistant professor at Southwestern Louisiana Institute.

Goldwater Denies Talk He's Running for Chief

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI)—Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said Saturday he is neither seeking nor running for his party's nomination for president in 1964.

"I am not seeking it," he said. "I don't know where all this talk is coming from. Every news conference I go to, they ask this, and I have said I am not running.

"I haven't the organization, money or desire," he said, "and it takes a lot of all three. I want to stay where I am if I can."

Glenn Gibson, Repulican nominee for Conress from Oklahoma's 6th district, had introduced Goldwater in Clinton, Okla., earlier Saturday as "a man most people would like to see elected president in 1964."

LESSENING THE RISK

NEWYORK (AP)—A three-in-one financing plan for off-Broadway productions has been launched by a group called Theater Unlimited.

A capitalization of between $75,000 and $100,000 is being sought. The fund would be divided among three musical projects, a procedure designed to increase investors' chance at profit.

School of Future Urged to Expel Report Cards

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Students in the next decade might very well study in a school that has no windows, no grades — and yipee—no report cards!

Such expectations are based on experimental studies now underway on building design, teaching tools, changes in curriculum.

Changes around the corner, as authorities at the National Education Association reports them, include:

—Classrooms of different sizes. If the "team teaching" method becomes popular, school buildings will have to be changed. Team teaching will require large rooms for use when the entire class gets together and smaller ones for small group tutoring.

— Tape recorders. Especially helpful in teaching foreign languages, recorders now are being used in conjunction with slides and films to provide a running commentary for the ear to match visual stimulus.

—Tests. There will undoubtedly be fewer outside tests, already under fire from school administrators. It's wasteful to give so many tests, the administrators say, because many duplicate measurement of the same thing—academic ability.

—Grades. An articulate group of educators, whose number is growing, says that grouping pupils on the basis of age is illogical since age alone has little to do with the level of ability of the student. Grouping on the basis of grades in each subject is better. But the best is obolishing grades and erasing report cards, too. Instead, each student should be taught, these educators say, as much and as fast as he can absorb it.

Old Dobbin Still Thrives in Poland

VIENNA (UPI) — Old Dobbin still is much in evidence in Poland despite official attempts three years ago to liquidate him.

In 1959, when Poland was faced with acute shortages of both meat and fodder, government and party chief Wladyslav Gomulka proposed to do away with the horses, thus saving fodder and making more meat available.

"Whatever we may think of the horse," the Warsaw party daily "Trybuna Ludu" said recently, "it is working hard, pulling millions of ploughs, carts and, to be honest—is still the main power in Polisa agriculture."

Even if Poland should have 100,000 tractors by 1965, the end of the present five-year plan, this would account for only a small part of the rural needs, the paper said.

If the horses are cut in number from the present 2.8 million to 300,000 by 1965, according to the paper, the horse to tractor ratio still will be 20 to one in favor of the horses.

In Poland at least, the horse is still having it's day.

Woman Owes Self Much In Those Middle Years

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

To make the most of herself in her middle years a woman should:

Have friends of all ages and different interests so that she doesn't drift into the habit of thinking exactly like a small group of friends who are all very much like her.

Make sure that her tongue doesn't grow sharper every year so that the remarks she thinks are clever or worldly or frank are actually cutting.

Watch out for the tendency to talk too much in a desperate effort not to be overlooked.

Make time for some of the things she really wants to do and refusing to do things that don't really interest her just because it's hard to say "no."

Plan her days so that she can look forward to something pleasant or challenging or rewarding almost every day.

Admit that worrying has never done any good and refuse to worry over things she can't do anything about, things that might never happen and things that have already happened.

She can also give her husband a copy of Ruth Millett's booklet, "Happier Wives (hints for husbands)." Just send 25 cents to Ruth Millett Reader Service, in care of Gazette Telegraph, P. O. Box 489, Dept. A, Radio City Station, New York 19, N. Y.

For Super Desserts, Use Fresh Peaches

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Peaches are the darling of the teen-age set. In fact, they seem to be everybody's darlings—especially now when they are fresh, plump and blushing.

We asked some of our teen-age friends to give us their favorite peach recipes. Here are two of them:

Coconut Peach Melba
(Makes 4 servings)

1 package (10-ounces) quick-frozen raspberries, thawed
2 teaspoons cornstarch
1 tablespoon sugar
Dash of salt
8 fresh peach halves
1 cup flaked coconut

Drain raspberries, reserving juice. Combine cornstarch, sugar, salt and 2-3 cup raspberry juice in a saucepan. Bring to a boil slowly, stirring constantly. Cook until mixture is clear, about 2 minutes. Cool slightly. Thenfold in the drained raspberries. Chill. Serve over the peach halves and sprinkle with coconut.

Fresh Peach Betty
(Yield: 5 to 6 servings)

½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup soft bread crumbs
4 cups sliced fresh peaches
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

Combine first 4 ingredients and set aside. Arrange half the peaches in a 1-quart casserole. Top with half the bread crumb mixture. Dot with 1 tablespoon butter or margarine. Repeat with remaining ingredients. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (375 degrees F.) about 40 minutes or until crumbs are golden and peaches are tender.

Stuff Garden Tomatoes With Shrimp and Ham

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Big, plump red tomatoes are a boon for the hot weather cook. Stuffed with meats, seafood, garden vegetables or mushrooms, they make delicious main course salad recipes or full-bodied hot vegetable dishes.

Ham and Shrimp
Stuffed Tomato Salad
(Yield: 6 servings)

6 medium whole raw tomatoes
1 cup diced tomato pulp
1 cup diced cooked ham
4½-ounce can (1 scant cup) diced shrimp
½ cup finely chopped celery
1 tablespoon finely chopped onion
½ teaspoon salt, or salt to taste
1 teaspoon powdered mustard
⅛ teaspoon ground black pepper
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
Fresh parsley

Cut a slice from stem end of tomatoes. Scoop out the pulp with a teaspoon, leaving the shell intact, and invert to drain thoroughly. Combine the 1 cup tomato pulp with ham, shrimp, celery, onion, salt, mustard, black pepper and mayonnaise. Sprinkle inside of tomatoes lightly with salt and fill with the shrimp and ham mixture. Garnish with fresh parsley. Serve with salad greens and mayonnaise, if desired.

Baked Tomatoes Stuffed With Fresh Vegetables
(Yield: 6 servings)

6 fresh tomatoes
3 medium carrots
1 large potato
3 ribs celery
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup fine dry bread crumbs
6 tablespoons grated cheddar cheese

Cut off tops of tomatoes and scoop out centers (invert tomatoes to drain) and save centers for later use. Put carrots, potato and celery through a food chopper using medium blade or chop fine with a sharp knife. Mix with tomato centers, salt and black pepper.

Melt butter or margarine in a skillet. Add mixed vegetables and cook until tender, about 10 minutes. Add eggs and bread crumbs and spoon into the drained tomatoes. Bake in a preheated, moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) until tomatoes are tender, 30 minutes. Sprinkle tops of tomatoes with grated cheese about 10 minutes before cooking time is up.

No baked or boiled ham on hand to add to that chef's salad? Cut slices of bologna or salami into thin strips and use instead of the ham. But do have Swiss cheese ready to go in—it's a "must" for a real chef's salad.

SONGWRITERS TRY AGAIN TO 'COME ON STRONG'

NEW YORK (AP) — Sammy Cahn and James Van Heusen, the songwriting team that has twice won Hollywood Oscars for movie themes, have composed a title song for the upcoming Broadway stage comedy, "Come on Strong."

The melody is to provide background for a second act scene in which a film starlet displays her dancing skill. Cahn and Van Heusen won the 1957 music Oscar for "All the Way;" repeated in 1959 with "High Hopes."
